A MOMENT OF CALM

For a brief time yesterday, the skies over San Rafael turned from gray to blue and fleecy, white clouds replaced dark storm clouds. As the sun moved lower in the sky, the city saw a lovely sunset, clouds shot with gold, salmon and orange lights. Independent-Journal photographer Jim Kean captured the moment from the top of the Independent-Journal building. The atmospheric clarity didn't last, however, and the weatherman predicted a new storm with today's showers followed by a 70 per cent chance of rain tomorrow.

Council Would Save Old Hotel

The Sausalito City Council last night began a last-ditch effort to save the mudslide-threatened Casa Madrona Hotel by creating a committee to explore alternatives to its condemnation. (Another Sausalito City Council story, page 8.)

But if none is found by Jan. 15, the council is to begin formal proceedings causing the hotel's abandonment unless owners repair it.

Owner of the old building is the estate of the late Floyd D. Allensby, who originally leased it to the Deschamps family. The Deschamps have operated it for 15 years as a 12-room hotel and a restaurant, Le Vivoir.

According to John Colteaux, attorney for the family, Crocker National Bank, executor of the estate, has refused to repair damage caused by a mudslide during last year's rainy season. He said the building itself stands on firm footing, although two porches were undermined by the slide. Since then, Colteaux said, the Deschamps have confined their restaurant to the building itself, no longer serving patrons on the porches.

The Deschamps' lawyer said he believes "the estate would like to tear this building down so they could build something else there and turn a better profit." No estate representative was on hand last night.

The committee charged with finding a way to save the building consists of City Mgr. Thomas P. McKenzie, Mayor Robin Sweeny and representatives of the city Landmarks Committee and the Sausalito Foundation.

Building Ban Set On San Pedro Ridge

By ERIK M. INGRAM

In a move to preserve open space lands pending acquisition, Marin County supervisors yesterday imposed a temporary building moratorium on portions of the picturesque San Pedro Ridge in Santa Venetia. (Other supervisors stories, page 9.)

The construction ban, which covers more than 400 acres of densely forested slope, was approved unanimously and, in effect, kills a controversial townhouse project proposed for the 256-acre Fierman property.

It was that project, called the San Pedro Reserve, which rallied strong community support for passage last month of a $500,000 open space bond issue by Santa Venetia voters.

The board's moratorium brought protest from backers of the townhouse project, which envisioned 456 dwellings on about seven acres of the Fierman property.

Property owner Jack Fierman of Philadelphia told the board he considered its action unfair. He said two years and $250,000 had been pumped into planning his townhouse project.

His architect, Eugene Wedell of Sausalito, predicted the moratorium, to last five months

Jaworski Is Handed Dean Tape

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Judge John J. Sirica turned over to Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski today the tape of a conversation last March between President Nixon and John W. Dean III and Nixon's notes on another talk he had with his former White House counsel.

The tape was of a March 21 discussion in which Dean claimed he told Nixon that the Watergate cover-up was becoming "a cancer on the presidency."

The notes given Jaworski were of an April 15 meeting between Nixon and Dean, for which the White House has said no tape recording exists.

The President has contended that it was not until Dean told him on March 21 that he realized that some of his top aides, including Dean himself, had been involved in covering up the scope of the Watergate scandal.

Teacher's Students Roamed, Court Told

By GEORGE NEVIN

A former Tamalpais High School principal testified today that suspended teacher Kenneth A. Anderson sometimes permitted students to wander about campus.

Raymond J. Bell also recalled two or three occasions when he met with Anderson about complaints that the teacher was not emphasizing traditional English skills in his classes.

A civil suit by which the Tamalpais High School District is attempting to fire Anderson, 32, entered its third day in Marin Superior Court before Judge E. Warren McGuire.

Bell also said he received a complaint of a Viet Cong flag and a defaced American flag on Anderson's classroom wall but when he asked the teacher to remove them Anderson refused, saying his students had the right to express themselves.

In yesterday's testimony, other allegations of misconduct were described by three educators.

The testimony sought to

Panel Plans A Complete Study Into Nixon Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress' Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation decided today to examine every aspect of President Nixon's federal income taxes from 1969 through 1972 and not confine it to the two questions Nixon proposed.

In making public his tax records last weekend, Nixon asked the House-Senate panel to examine his deductions for the gift of vice presidential papers to the nation and whether he should have paid a capital gains tax on the sale of some of his San Clemente, Calif. property.

During a two-hour closed meeting today, the committee decided to "look at every aspect of his return for those years," according to Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, the committee chairman.

Mills made public Nixon's Dec 8 letter requesting the investigation. It appeared to ask the panel to limit itself to the "two tax-related items" (which) may continue to be a subject of continuing public questioning."

The letter added, "In the event that the committee determines that the items were incorrectly reported, I will pay whatever tax may be due."

Some experts have calculated the President and Mrs. Nixon would owe about $300,000 in back taxes and penalties if the two questioned items are disallowed.

One is a $235,000 tax saving resulting from the donation of papers for which Nixon took a $576,000 deduction. Mills said the committee would seek to find out if the donation was made before or after the July 25, 1969, deadline set when such deductions by public figures were disallowed in tax reform legislation that year.

Novato's Policy On Open Area

By FRANK FARRARA

The Novato City Council last night adopted a policy designed to prevent development of thousands of acres, including Mount Burdell, a dominant natural feature overlooking the Novato Valley. (Another Novato City Council story, page 6.)

After a two-and-a-half hour hearing, sprinkled with protests by representatives of landowners, the council split 3-2 on the policy covering about 8,000 acres, 1,386 within city limits, the rest on city borders.

Mayor Fred F. Ruegg, who opposed recommendations to buy open space, and Councilman Dorothy P. Young, who said "she couldn't go along with some of the things" in the policy, cast the dissenting votes.

The policy, covering an area from Highway 101 to west of San Marin and from the northern city limits to the Marin County line at San Antonio Creek, conceives of Mount Burdell and surrounding properties as mainly a major open space system.

Planning Director Brian W. Mattson described the policy as a guideline for future development, a basis for acquisition of open space and preservation of the historic Rancho Olompali.

The policy recommends that all of the 700-acre Olompali parcel, owned by the University of San Francisco, and a portion of the Garlick property, along Novato Boulevard, west of the city, be acquired for open space.

The policy calls for preserving the top of Mount Burdell, most of the ridges, knolls and forested areas, but allowing development on the south and southeast faces of the mountain up to 600 feet.

Richard Hill, vice president of the University of San Francisco, suggested the city attempt to acquire open space by a "trade off" on land; getting open space at key spots by permitting development elsewhere on a parcel.

Ruegg said "there are better ways" than having the community buy open space, and "I don't think the community can afford it." He said it would seem wiser to acquire the land by a "fair trade off."

Planning Commissioner Gail Wilhelm said the county has open space funds, that federal or state funds might be forthcoming or the city could hold a bond election for purchase money.

One of the critical areas discussed was a 77-acre "upper bowl" area at the end of San Andreas Drive, owned by Humble Oil Company (Exxon).

Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing the oil firm, said that of the firm's holdings of about 1,000 acres only 100 to 120 acres are suitable for development,

Study Criticizes First Draft Of San Rafael Plan

Staff Analysis Claims Document Lacks Data, Basic Cost Estimates

By NELS JOHNSON

Criticism of San Rafael's emerging general plan mounted yesterday as the city administration released a staff analysis calling for substantial revision of an initial draft of the document.

The four-page analysis, a compendium of critiques by city department heads, declares that the initial report by consultants Duncan and Jones lacks substantiating data and basic cost estimates of proposals submitted.

The analysis calls for outright deletion of some proposals from the 307-page initial general plan report, revision of others and investigation of yet other proposals not covered in the document.

The analysis is the result of a recent all-morning staff meeting at which city officials expressed a "very strong overall reaction to the degree of generality of the plan and the lack of backup information," according to City Mgr. William J. Bielser.

The staff analysis will be revised and submitted to city consultants for incorporation into a second draft of the plan to be distributed on Jan. 21, Bielser said.

The staff document rejects a proposal for people movers, or automated transit vehicles downtown, and declares the proposal should be deleted from further consideration.

The document also asks for cost estimates of proposals to revise the east-west traffic corridor through downtown San Rafael, extend First Street and create a major new interchange near Second Street and Highway 101.

The analysis also blasts a

Six Struck Markets In Marin Open Again

Cala Foods reopened its six Marin markets today after the butchers' union and Food Employers Council reached an agreement yesterday to partially reopen 50 Northern California markets that had been closed in a labor dispute.

Although meat departments at the stores will remain closed, the union will remove pickets at the markets so that members of other unions can return to their jobs.

The strike and picketing will, however, remain in full force against Safeway, Lucky and other major food chains.

In Marin, pickets will leave Cala stores, United and Big G supermarkets. Big G has kept its local store open during the labor fight. United shut down its two stores for one day last week, then reopened them.

Pickets will remain at Alpha Beta and Albertson's markets in the county and at Safeway and Lucky stores, original targets of the butcher's strike which began Dec. 3.

The other markets locked out members of the butchers' union in retaliation for the strike against the two giant food chains. Some remained open using temporary help and supervisory personnel, while others were forced to shut down when members of other unions walked out.

No word on progress of the talks between butchers and the Food Employers Council was available today. The union has opposed automation in meat handling and demanded higher pay.

Meanwhile, negotiations continued in an effort to end a five-day strike by hospital workers against 11 hospitals and 14 clinics operated by the Kaiser Foundation.

Kaiser's San Rafael hospital and others around the Bay Area were using supervisory and non-striking personnel to operate the facilities and provide essential medical services.

The union seeks an 8.2 per cent increase in wages and fringe benefits, while Kaiser has offered 6.5 per cent.

Carpenter Pickets Halt One Job, Not A Second

By BILL ROBERTS

Striking carpenters this morning shut down one Marin construction job where carpenters had returned to work yesterday but failed to stop work at a second.

Led by two members of the San Francisco local, members of Carpenters Local 35 of Marin talked 10 carpenters into leaving the job at the Courthouse Square office-parking complex in San Rafael.

But 14 carpenters at the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center addition refused to leave their jobs.

Literature encouraging a full strike against all Marin construction jobs was distributed this morning by the San Francisco men at the local union hall. About 25 members of the Marin union joined them in going to the two jobs in an attempt to stop work.

"Marin County is kind of weak," said one of the San Francisco men. "We came up to give it a shot in the arm. If it doesn't work we'll come back and give it another shot in the

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Lone Survivor Of Crash Dies

BOSTON (UPI) — Leopold Chouinard, who became engaged to wed the night before becoming the sole survivor of a Delta DC9 passenger plane crash, has lost his 19-week battle for life.

Chouinard

Chouinard, 20, Marshfield, Vt., died last night at Massachusetts General Hospital of complications resulting from "extensive and severe burns," according to a hospital spokesman.

The Air Force sergeant suffered third degree burns on 80 per cent of his body when a Delta jetliner crashed July 31 in dense fog on an approach to Logan International Airport. Killed in the crash were 88 persons.

Bomb Expert Turns To Prayer

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UPI) — A Baptist minister who also works as a state explosive expert turned to prayer when police asked him to disarm a bomb made by a mental patient.

Davis

"This was the first bomb I actually disarmed, fully took apart," the Rev. William E. Davis, 48, pastor of the First Baptist Church in nearby Bridgeville and an inspector with the Pennsylvania Division of Explosives, said yesterday.

Defectors Fight

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A 200-man battalion of insurgent defectors fought their pro-Communist former comrades today as reinforced government troops sought to dislodge rebels from a highway only 12 miles northwest of Phnom Penh.

The defectors, now fighting for the Phnom Penh government, traded shouts with Cambodian liberationists who occupied a mile stretch of Highway 5 early yesterday after crossing the nearby Tonle Sap River in motorized sampans.

New Emergency

LONDON (UPI) — The government today proclaimed a state of emergency for a second one-month period to give it powers to deal with Britain's mounting economic and industrial crisis.

A government spokesman said the state of emergency decision today came after a slowdown by 34,000 railroad workers hit train services throughout the country and brought London commuter services almost to a standstill.

Soviet Budget

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet government announced today a record budget for 1974 and promised its citizens more consumer goods, housing and food on the table next year.

Finance Minister Vasily Garbuzov told parliament the budget would reach $259.9 billion, up more than 6 per cent from 1973.

He said defense spending would total $23.5 billion, down slightly from this year. But Western military experts regard the announced defense figure as meaningless. They say the real figure may be triple that amount, with defense funds concealed in heavy industry and other sectors of the budget.

Perez Leading

CARACAS (UPI) — — The opposition Democratic Action party, its presidential candidate claiming victory, appeared headed today for control of Congress as well.

In ballot-counting since Sunday's elections, Carlos Andres Perez, 51, has been receiving a steady 48 per cent compared to 37 for his leading opponent, Lorenzo Fernandez of the ruling Social Christian party.

The national election board said it expects to finish counting the more than four million votes cast and announce the official results tomorrow.

Voters marked their ballots twice, once for the president and once for the party to rule in Congress.

Open Relations

PRAGUE (UPI) — West Germany and Czechoslovakia put their "woeful past" behind today and began a new era in relations aimed at solving the problems of the present.

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt went into meetings with top Czech officials today after the two nations yesterday established diplomatic relations and signed a six-point non-aggression treaty.

Brandt scheduled talks with Communist leader Gustav Husak and Premiere Lubomir Strougal to discuss "substantive issues" such as European security and the status of West Berlin, German officials said.

Irish Attacks

BELFAST (UPI) — Roman Catholic Irish Republican Army gunmen killed and wounded policemen and soldiers in a nightlong offensive against security forces throughout Northern Ireland, the army said today.

Booby-trapped cars killed one policeman and blew the leg off another in the attacks, which began late last night and continued until dawn today. Another policeman was wounded in a rocket and machinegun attack and five soldiers were hurt in two landmine explosions.

Skylab Wait

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab astronauts stayed up three hours past their bedtime for a blast that never came.

The astronauts were told to stay awake a little longer to take pictures of a Minute Man rocket scheduled to blastoff today from the Vandenburg, launching pad. Scientists and space engineers were particularly interested in pictures taken as the rocket charged through the Earth's atmosphere.

But moments before the scheduled launch, the mission was canceled.

Carrier Fire

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Fire broke out aboard the carrier USS Kitty Hawk at sea yesterday, killing six crewmen and injuring 38, the Navy said.

The ship was about 700 miles east of the Philippines, steaming for Vietnam, when fire broke out in the main machinery room, according to a spokesman for the Pacific Fleet.

The blaze occurred almost eight years to the day after a similar fire and in the same place. On Dec. 6, 1965, a fire in the main machinery room killed two crewmen and injured 29.

Cause of the fire was not known.

Twin Satellites

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — An Air Force Titan 3C rocket scheduled for launch tonight will carry into orbit twin communications satellites designed to act as space "switchboards" for transmitting top secret information around the world.

The original launch for yesterday was postponed 24 hours when a faulty instrument was discovered in the third stage of the rocket, which will position the "triple seven" satellites on opposite sides of the world, where they will remain in stationary orbit.

Each 1,200-pound satellite is capable of handling 1,300 telephone calls or television and other messages from its position 22,300 miles above earth.

OIL WELL FIRE RAGES

Workers used tractors to dig a reservoir around an oil well near Casper, Wyo., yesterday as efforts continued to quell the blaze, which broke out Nov. 30. The Red Adair Co. of Houston, Tex., is in charge of firefighting operations. Some 200 barrels of oil are wasted each day the fire continues.

Israel May Decide Friday On Geneva

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The well-informed Tel Aviv newspaper Ma'ariv said today the Israeli cabinet would meet Friday to make a final decision on whether to attend the opening ceremony of the Geneva Middle East peace conference on Tuesday.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Monday that Israel would not attend the opening ceremonies if Syria persisted in holding back a list of Israeli prisoners of war. Yesterday, he said Israel would boycott the entire peace conference if there was no list. Ma'ariv said the cabinet meeting was called "in light of world reaction" to the decision.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Health Minister Victor Shemtov followed the Dayan statement with election campaign speeches in which they said Israel would not sit with the Syrians without the list. Syria is believed to hold more than 100 Israel POWs and has refused to give a list to the Red Cross.

A British Foreign Office spokesman said Kissinger told Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home today he was confident the Geneva conference would open as scheduled despite what he called "procedural matters."

Cairo reports said Kissinger had hoped to confer with Palestinian leader Yassir Arafat, but the Beirut newspaper Al Liwa said Arafat had refused to see him. It was still uncertain whether the Palestinians would be represented at Geneva; Israel has been violently opposed to meeting them.

UPI Correspondent Raymond Wilkinson reported from Cairo that Kissinger will have two lengthy meetings with President Anwar Sadat during his 24-hour visit to Cairo starting tomorrow. Cairo diplomatic sources said Sadat and Syrian President Hafez Assad had worked out a common strategy for the Geneva meeting during two days of talks in Cairo.

The sources said one of the main topics discussed was the POW issue. Syria has refused to discuss the subject with Israel and diplomatic sources have said Damascus would use the issue as a bargaining point in Geneva.

Consumers Seek New Food Labels

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A coalition of consumer groups joined with 31 members of Congress today to ask the Food and Drug Administration to require a new kind of warning on food labels.

It would read: "Warning: Unlabeled ingredients contained in this product."

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., who is coordinating the FDA petition with Consumers Union and the other groups, said such a warning is needed because food manufacturers are now required to list only certain ingredients and fail to disclose other "often dangerous," or controversial, contents.

The warning, he said, would put the consumer on notice that he doesn't know everything he's getting.

One of the consumer groups involved in the petition is LABEL Inc., which began as a project for a group of law students who brought suit to try to force the FDA to require all food manufacturers to list all ingredients on all labels. LABEL lost the case when, after a number of appeals, the Supreme Court refused to hear the case.

Art Koch, who headed LABEL, said the ruling resulted in a legal situation where the FDA could not now require complete ingredient labeling even if it wanted to. The FDA had argued in court that it didn't have the power to do so.

Both Rosenthal and the administration have introduced separate legislation that would require more complete ingredient listin

SAN RAFAEL MARIJUANA HAUL

San Rafael Juvenile Officer Scott E. Nelson examines 67 kilos of marijuana discovered Saturday in a vacant apartment at 175 Clinton Court in San Rafael. The pot, estimated to be worth as much as $37,000 in street sales, was uncovered by a landlord of the building who became concerned when a new tenant failed to forward his rent. Police, who kept a lid on the find while staking out the building, said the tenant has disappeared. Police said they are seeking a man called William B. Hanna, described as having a moustache and in his late 20s.

Hub Officials Revive Ancient Custom To Express Park Thanks

City Administrator Alfred C. Kaeppel handed acting Mayor Warren R. Perry an antique pewter bowl filled with soil from the parksite, in which grew a fern freshly dug from the hillside. City Atty. Hadden W. Roth explained that "in feudal England, to transfer property it was necessary for one to hand a piece of the actual soil, to the new owner."

"Christmas has come early for San Anselmo," Kaeppel said.

"It's the nicest thing anyone's done for the city in the 10 years I've been associated with city government," said councilman Kenneth L. Anderson.

"One of the particularly valuable things about this property is that it can be seen throughout the city — and enjoyed even by those who can't go to the actual park itself," Perry said.

The parksite is on Oak Hill, north of Sir Francis Drake High School. It is bounded by Oakland, Alderney and Tomahawk streets.

The park's donor, Faude, is a longtime San Anselmo resident and owner of an art and antiques gallery in Sausalito.

The land is appraised by county officials as worth $40,000 on the open market. Faude asked only that it be preserved in the most natural state possible, that the park be named for himself, and that the city pay the $1,370.02 property tax bill on the land for this year.

Kaeppel said the improvements would be limited to "a rustic entrance and perhaps a couple of picnic tables."

Big Suit Over Frame Charges

MARTINEZ (UPI) — A onetime Richmond vice squad officer has filed a $1,250,000 suit against that city, saying another detective had tried to frame him as a drug pusher.

In his suit, Robert Ambrose, 28, accused detective Walter Marshall and other officers of trying to frame him "in an attempt to divert attention from illegal activities."

Ambrose resigned from the force Aug. 1.

Bandits Pull Not Push On A Door

ROME (UPI) — Bandits trying to break into an office for a payroll robbery fired a submachinegun burst at the lock but still did not manage to knock down the door. Finally, they gave up and fled.

Police said they had been pulling at the door instead of pushing.

Perry Will Not Seek Reelection

San Anselmo City Councilman Warren R. Perry announced last night that he won't run for reelection in March.

Perry, a partner in a San Rafael law firm, was elected to the San Anselmo council in 1970 after seven years on the city planning commission. He served as mayor last year.

"Four and one-half years of law school at night, seven years on the planning commission and my council service have given me enough night meetings," Perry said. "I'm not going to run again. I've enjoyed being a councilman."

He said he wanted to announce his decision early, so other San Anselmo cnadidates could plan their campaigns. Filings will close Dec. 27.

Perry served as acting mayor at last night's council meeting, with both Mayor Lewis M. Stewart and Vice Mayor Martin G. Blinder absent. The relatively short meeting was marked by unanimous votes on every action the three attending councilmen took.

The San Anselmo City Council Also:

ELECTION — Formally set March 5 for the election of three councilmen.

SCHENK PROPERTY — Endorsed Marin County planning staff recommendations that the controversial 15-acre parcel in the county area next to Sorich Park be rezoned to allow only 11 dwellings, or three-fourths of a unit per acre. County staff recommendations for other parcels surrounding the city-owned park also were endorsed.

SIDEWALKS — Postponed to Jan. 8 a public hearing on the protest of Charles L. and James E. Townsend against being billed $606 for installing a sidewalk on their property on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. Ordered a $489 sidewalk installation on Mario Arbini's property on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, after Arbini said he would not protest.

YOUTH CENTER — Formally received a $600 grant from the Marin County Youth Commission to augment $1,000 the city has earmarked for operating the San Anselmo Youth Center one night a week and during school term vacations.

LAND SWAP — Approved transferring Van Norden Logan's property in San Anselmo, off Woodhaven Drive, to the Town of Ross, in which the bulk of Logan's lot lies. Logan sought the switch so he could build on the parcel.

PARKING LOT — Approved final plans and ordered bids called for an estimated $60,000 worth of grading and landscaping for phases One and Two of Creek Park.

SITE PLANNERS — Agreed to appoint a committee consisting of one councilman, one planning commissioner and one member of the board of design review to screen architects to make a selection for planning the city's public facilities site locations.

ENERGY — Accepted without discussion, a staff report on measures to cut energy consumption. "I don't think the city's acts will be highly significant" to solving the nationwide crisis, Perry remarked, "but they will be symbolic."

LIBRARY — Postponed to Jan. 8, appointing a replacement for library board member Mrs. Robert Gicker, who resigned.

CRIME — Adopted a resolution that the city will participate in the countywide Central Investigation Unit.

UTILITIES — Put off to Jan. 8, discussion on councilman Kenneth L. Anderson's proposed ordinances regulating utility connections and undergrounding.

CHILD CENTER — Approved waiving city fee for the nonprofit Fairfax-San Anselmo Children's Center in Isabel Cook School.

WALKATHON — Approved plans for a United Cerebral Palsy Association-sponsored walkathon in San Anselmo next May.

ADJOURNED — To 8 p.m. Tuesday, for a hearing on the city's proposed open space element of the San Anselmo General Plan.

Comet Can Now Be Photographed

Color and black-and-white photographs can be made of the comet Kohoutek from now to mid-January, according to National Aeronautical and Space Administration and the Astronomical Society of the Pacific.

Cameras should be mounted on a tripod. A fast film should be used and the camera's lens should be opened as wide as possible. A 30-second exposure is recommended, because a longer exposure produces a distortion of the comet head, according to the agencies.

Pictures should be taken from a place which is above the glare of city lights and the haze layer, they said. The comet is now visible in the southeast for about an hour before sunrise.

Jail Time Given On Bad Checks

A San Mateo man, who said he began writing bad checks when his drapery business started to collapse, has been given a six-month jail term for passing $1,400 in bogus checks around Marin.

Jack William MacDonald, 26, told the Marin Probation Department he wrote between $10,000 and $20,000 in bad checks in five Bay Area counties.

Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best sentenced MacDonald Monday to the jail time, ordered him placed on two years' probation and fined him $500.

MacDonald, who pleaded guilty to three counts of writing bad checks in Marin, also admitted the same offense in San Mateo County and must spend six months in jail there as well.

Cyclone Deaths

DACCA, Bangladesh (UPI) — The official death toll from a cyclone that hit southern Bangladesh Sunday stood at 89 today, but independent news reports said several thousand persons may have died in the storm.

School Elections Will Remain Same

Marin school districts will not have to change their trustee elections from odd to even numbered years as a result of emergency legislation passed last week in Sacramento.

The bill, signed by acting Gov. Ed Reinecke, voids earlier legislation requiring that school and municipal elections be combined.

The earlier measure also changed municipal elections from April to March of even numbered years and next year's local municipal elections will be March 5.

Byron W. Mauzy, Marin deputy superintendent of schools, said the change of trustee elections from odd to even numbered years was probably unintentional, part of an effort by the Legislature to combine several election dates.

He said combining municipal and school elections would have forced some trustees to seek reelection next year, even though they were originally elected to serve until 1975.

PLANS

controversial proposal for balanced socio-economic housing mixes in city hamlets (neighborhoods), saying a potpourri of housing types and densities in each neighborhood is not desirable.

"Changes in housing densities from single to multiple should not take place for sociological purposes in residential neighborhoods," according to the document. (The general plan report recommends that moderate income duplex and triplex units be erected in upper income single family residential areas to provide for wide population mixes.)

In addition, the staff recommends that local neighborhoods be given veto power over decisions by public bodies that affect these neighborhoods.

The analysis rips into the initial plan for not providing for "decent local traffic circulation," proposing an open space element that is imprecise and lacks criteria to select open space acquisition areas, and for lacking basic cost estimates.

"It is fruitless to spend time analyzing whether proposals are worthwhile or not unless we have some idea of what ball park figure we are in in relationship to the cost of doing the thing one way as against doing it another way," according to the analysis.

The staff analysis also declares that:

A land use policy map provided in the plan is so broad that it is essentially useless.

Local hamlet neighborhood boundaries have been erroneously drawn and are "not the meaningful ones as locally construed."

Transportation and traffic recommendations for the Northgate area lack clarity.

The plan lacks any provision for emergency connector roads as alternatives to Highway 101, and lacks a satisfactory bicycle and pedestrian system.

The plan lacks adequate background information needed by staff to evaluate proposals aimed at reducing seismic risk in the city, including a proposal that high intensity land uses adjacent to the San Rafael Canal be banned.

The plan lacks a noise element.

The analysis indicates support for high density development of downtown San Rafael, and for residential development above ground-floor commercial establishments in the central business district.

The staff also recommends that consultants consider the possibility of a ferry terminal at McNears Point.

"I sincerely hope that you give substantial weight and consideration to the general criticism contained herein and, in consequence, make substantial additions and deletions to the preliminary plan report," Bielser tells consultants in a letter that prefaces the analysis.

The staff complaints are the latest in a growing wave of criticism that has enveloped the initial general plan report since it was issued last month.

The report has drawn mixed reactions from concerned residents, been called an "impossible dream" by Mayor C. Paul Bettini, and a "ridiculous" document by former planning commission chairman Jorgen V. Lunding.

Teen Mothers Lose Welfare

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The state Court of Appeal ruled yesterday that minors who are unwed mothers and live with their own mothers are not entitled to independent welfare.

The ruling was in the case of two teen-aged girls, each with one child, who lived with their mothers, who get Aid to Families With Dependent Children.

In November 1971, grants to the young mothers were cut off and they and their children were included as additions to their mother's grants.

That action was under a state Social Welfare Department regulation.

Light Quake

SANTA ROSA (UPI) — A light earthquake rolled through Sonoma County yesterday but its intensity of 2.2 on the Richter Scale was too low for an epicenter reading.

New Recreation Supervisor Picked In Mill Valley

Don L. Dimitratos, director of parks and recreation, told the parks and recreation commission Monday that he had received the city manager's approval to hire Hunter to replace John Garber who left in October.

Hunter, 24, was reared in Mill Valley, attended Tamalpais High School and earned a recreation degree at San Jose State University in 1971.

Before coming to Mill Valley, he worked one year in Ferguson, Mo., as a recreation supervisor in teen and athletic programs.

Dimitratos estimated Hunter's annual salary would be about $10,800.

and 20 days, "will not be the end of the issue." He said, "I'm firmly convinced that the value of the land will be found — whether in negotiations or in the courts —to be in excess of the amount available (from the bond issue)."

The project, featuring two "cluster villages" with underground parking, water recycling, local transit and nature study center, was to have been considered yesterday had the moratorium not been imposed.

Spearheading the move for the moratorium was Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere who told his colleagues "it's only fair to the public that voted" to impose the building ban and let them negotiate for the property. Should the bond issue not be enough, he said, he will urge use of county open space funds to offset the difference.

County Planning Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo, a supporter of the townhouse project which was rejected twice on tie votes by her commission, told the board it was losing "a very remarkable opportunity" to provide moderate income housing and open space at no cost to taxpayers.

Robert Jones of the Las Gallinas Valley Master Plan Committee answered Fierman's complaints of investing substantial time and money in the project by saying "Fierman took a roll of the dice and may lose."

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, who in the past has cautioned against use of building moratoriums, said the Santa Venetia request "is a classic example" of how it should be used.

He told supervisors he could recommend imposing moratoriums only where lands, for which public funds have been earmarked, are threatened with development.

He said negotiations should be completed, or condemnation started, within six months to avoid an inverse condemnation suit from property owners.

As a matter of procedure, the San Pedro Reserve townhouse project hearing was put over to May, at which time it will be heard if the land deal falls through.

Closed Meeting Is Set Tonight

The Tiburon City Council will hold a closed meeting today at 6:30 p.m. at city hall to discuss lawsuits against the city by owners of property which the city hopes to buy as open space.

Following this session, at 8 p.m. a citizens anniversary committee will meet to plan a celebration next year in honor of Tiburon's 10th anniversary as a city and 90th anniversary as a town.

arm."

Carpenters and iron workers walked away from their jobs at the Courthouse Square project but the move was not unanticipated by the contractor. "I kind of suspected this so I didn't fire up full bore today," said Gary Ordway, project manager.

Union members talked with carpenters working at the Kaiser project for about 30 minutes but none of the men left their jobs.

"Most of the guys that are working in there are company scum. They are sleeping with the contractor," said one of the San Francisco men.

Union members pledged to return with 100 to 200 men tomorrow to prevent the carpenters from returning to work at Kaiser.

"Tomorrow there will be some guys down here and I don't mean a few, more like 100," said a member of the Marin union.

The 25 men who were moving from project to project stopped to discuss their next move for about 10 minutes and conflict among the members was apparent.

"You're all worried about the little jobs. Xxxx the little jobs," shouted one man.

They finally decided to move to other Marin projects in an attempt to get all carpenters off the job.

They spoke of going to the "Jasper project" but by midmorning no strikers had appeared at Indian Valley Colleges in Novato where the Jasper Construction Co. is working.

The San Francisco union members left after the attempt to close the Kaiser project and pledged to return tomorrow if the Marin local needs more help.

William T. Wilson, financial secretary for Local 35, declined comment on the strikers' actions and said nothing has changed for the union since carpenters were advised they could return to work Monday.

Carpenters also remained off the job today at the Firemen's Fund Insurance Building in San Rafael and Highway 101 project in Novato in the continuing wage dispute. Union members were to receive a 65-cent pay increase in June but it was limited to 15 cents by the federal government's price control administration which started the carpenters' protest.

passes," said Public Works Director Norman Wohlschlaeger, because heavy rains due in January could worsen the problem. McKenzie called the condition of the porches and lot "a hazardous situation" because of the site's poor drainage.

"The owners have plans drawn up for draining the excess water," Wohlschlaeger said, "but they'd have to go to Court to get the money to do it and they're not sure they want to. It's a stalemate."

Virtually everyone who spoke to the Casa Madrona issue last night supported efforts to save it.

After setting up the committee, the council agreed to consider at its meeting next Tuesday an ordinance forcing property owners to clean up "public nuisances" on their land. According to the city manager, the chief target would be owners who allow sliding mud and debris to pile up on public roads and walks. The city would be empowered to do the work itself in stubborn cases, with the cost attached to the property, Mayor Sweeny said the council plans to have the ordinance in effect by the Casa Madrona action date.

prove the high school district's contention that Anderson engaged in questionable teaching methods and in improper acts with a girl student.

Patrick Gaynor, a Tam High English teacher, told Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire that he and his family accompanied Anderson and a 15-year-old girl student to Yosemite Valley in November 1971.

(The girl was Beth Okamura, who later married the 32-year-old Anderson, said the teacher's attorney, Carl B. Shapiro).

The Gaynors stayed in a room at Yosemite Lodge while Anderson and Miss Okamura spent two nights in a cabin, Gaynor testified.

Under cross-examination by Shapiro, Gaynor acknowledged the two-room cabin contained ample space for one of the two to have slept on the floor

He said he saw Anderson and Miss Okamura holding hands several times at sporting events, hikes and school-related dinners.

Attempting to prove the district's contention that Anderson used poor teaching methods, Attorney William O. Weissich produced a journal written by Bruce P. Lohmann, another former student of Anderson's. (The district has accused Anderson of encouraging Lohmann to bomb three buildings and set two fires in Southern Marin in the spring of 1971.)

Gaynor said he could see how the journal — a stream-of-consciousness account of Lohmann's thoughts — could have been given an "A" grade by Anderson.

The teacher said the notebook followed the format suggested in a textbook used in English classes at the high school and as such might deserve a high grade.

Next to testify was James Hanratty, associate principal at the school, who said he warned Anderson about letting students smoke in class, a violation of state law.

As far as he knew, Anderson made good on his promise to halt the smoking, Hanratty said.

The administrator also testified that he noticed a painted slogan, "Smoke Dope," on the wall of Anderson's classroom in May, 1971.

the present time I'd hoped we'd get."

Sirica turned over the Watergate material at a closed 45-minute session between himself, Jaworski and White House lawyers Leonard Garment and J. Fred Buzhardt.

After the meeting, Sirica issued a statement saying that he had given to Jaworski:

One page of notes that H. R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff, had with Nixon in the executive Office Building on March 22.

Four pages of notes Nixon made about a late evening, April 15 talk with Dean in the Oval Office, during which, according to Dean, Nixon said he should not have discussed an offer of executive clemency to the original Watergate defendants.

The White House turned over to Jaworski during last weekend several other tapes. Jaworski said today nine tapes were given to him "but I can't tell you what they are."

Jaworski said he has requested six additional tapes which the White House has not yet agreed to turn over.

OBITUARIES

Internationally famed sculptor and painter Ralph Stackpole, who dreamed of creating a 200-foot-high version of his "Pacifica" statue on Alcatraz Island, has died at his studio home in France, Bay Area friends learned yesterday.

No details of the 88-year-old artist's death had been learned, other than that he was to be buried today.

Stackpole is survived by two sons, Francis, a postal executive, of Mill Valley, and John of Oakland, a photojournalist, and six grandchildren.

The artist last visited the Bay Area in 1964. He then told an Independent-Journal reporter that he had once lived in Fairfax, during his years of creating such monumental works as the sculptures that adorn the San Francisco Stock Exchange, the murals in Coit Tower, and the 80-foot high Pacifica that was the theme work of the World's Fair on Treasure Island before World War II.

The Pacifica statue, constructed in stucco, was demolished when the Navy took over the island. Stackpole kept his working models and talked for years of recreating it in larger scale as a sort of Statue of Liberty looking westward to all the peoples of the Pacific Basin.

The artist was born in Williams, Ore., and came to San Francisco in 1900 to study art. After the 1906 earthquake and fire dispossessed the young artist, he received a $200 grant from a New York City fund established to aid Bay Area artists. He took the money to Paris to continue his art studies. By 1914, he again was living in the Bay Area, and in 1923 succeeded the late Beniamino Bufano on the faculty of the California School of Fine Arts.

Among the many honors Stackpole received was appointment in 1941 by the late President Roosevelt to the National Fine Arts Commission; Stackpole served simultaneously on the San Francisco Arts Commission.

He resigned those posts in 1949 to move with his wife Ginette to a farmhouse-studio in Chauriat Puy-de-Dome near Auvergne, France. There he happily described himself as living in the "heart of the garlic belt of France" while continuing to create abstract sculptures and paintings which were exhibited in Paris.

NOVATO

and the bowl area represents the major part of that.

Development of the bowl isn't authorized under the policy. Donald Dickenson, representing the citizens open space committee, which started the study to preserve Mount Burdell, said, "I feel the upper bowl is important. Any development of it would be an intrusion into the open space."

Bianchi said the oil company has spent more than $100,000 in the area in reliance on a former master plan, prompting councilmen to wonder how much "vested right" in development the firm may have established already.

A. Crawford Cooley, trustee of the Porter Trust, requested that the trust's 2,592 acres be removed from the plan except for the land at the top of the mountain.

Francis E. Allison of San Rafael, owner of one-fourth of the 470-acre Pashburg property, protested the proposed prezoning to agricultural with 60-acre lots. He said he opposed "downgrading in zoning to the detriment of the owner."

The council commended the citizens committee for its work on the policy.

The council unanimously introduced an ordinance to prezone parcels in the unincorporated area covered by the policy to agricultural with 60-acre minimum lot size: University of San Francisco, 700 acres; with 60-acre lots. Alyce Pashburg, 470 acres; Jay Garlick, 856 acres; Mary F. Silveira, 738 acres; Porter Trust, 2,592 acres; Charmaine Burdell Veronda, 695 acres.

Others: McGraw-Hill, 94 acres, to planned industrial; Oliver Kullberg, four acres, to highway commercial district; William Wright, five acres, to limited agriculture, with lot size not specified; Dorothy Hammerman, 15 acres, agricultural with five-acre lots, and Manual Nunes, 375 acres, to single-family planned district.

TEENS SURVIVE AUTO CRASH

San Rafael High School students appear grim as they survey the crumpled wreckage of a car that smashed into a tree near the school gymnasium. The accident sent four colleagues to Marin General Hospital yesterday. Passenger Dennis Gotelli, 17, of 24 Elizabeth Way, was reported in satisfactory condition today with a fractured leg. Driver Melvin Mathies, 16, and two other teen-aged passengers, were released after being treated for cuts and bruises. Police said Mathies was traveling at a high rate of speed when he lost control of the vehicle on Mission Avenue near Alice Street.

Novato Council Favorable To Neighborhood Center

Councilmen were considering rezoning the 15-acre site when Boyd Lang, representing Standard Growth Properties, said a "supermarket, super drug and eight or nine small stores were planned" on about half the site.

Although there was no plan before them for review, Mayor Fred F. Ruegg and Councilman F. Wayne Sartain supported the idea of a shopping center.

Councilman George C. Quesada said he was concerned, after hearing of the proposed stores, that the center might dilute the city's downtown plan.

Standard Growth was seeking a zoning change from planned community to 7.5 acres of commercial zoning and 7.5 acres of planned residential zoning, which would permit apartments.

Robert Burke, president of the San Marin Improvement Association, opposed residential development, which would lie between the proposed shopping center and the San Marin Club, and councilmen indicated they wouldn't favor residential development.

The council suggested that Standard Growth seek a variance, instead of a zoning change, to permit commercial development, and referred the matter back to the planning commission.

The Novato City Council Also:

TACO BELL — Voted 3-2, with Councilman Dorothy P. Young and Ruegg dissenting, to make the final determination on architectural plans for a Taco Bell restaurant at the southwest corner of Grant and Machin Avenues. The action, in effect, called for review of the planning commission's decision Monday night to uphold an appeal by Ben. R. Ostlind of plan review committee rejection of architectural plans for the mission style building.

ZONING APPEALS — Introduced an ordinance amendment to establish the city council as the body to hear appeals of decisions by the city zoning administrator.

BEL MARIN COMMERCE PARK — Introduced an ordinance approving a master plan by Ronald Antonioli for a 10-lot industrial park on 8.5 acres along Bel Marin Keys Boulevard, north of Los Robles Mobile Home Park.

REZONING — Introduced an ordinance to rezone 4.4 acres at the end of Zandra Place and Sherwood Place, owned by North Marin Title Co., from residential to residential single-family dwellings to bring it into conformity with the Novato General Plan.

UNDERGROUNDING — Adopted a resolution revising the boundaries of Underground Utility District No. 5 to include most of the area along Scott Street, between DeLong and Grant Avenues.

TENNIS CHALLENGE — Received a report from Ruegg that he has sent letters out challenging every city councilman in Marin to compete in a tennis tournament at the Olive Ridge Tennis Club in Novato next month.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned until 9 p.m., tomorrow at the Novato Community House for a joint meeting with the Novato Planning Commission on the city's growth control policy.

Hutchings, 33, is a building demolition contractor.

San Quentin Six Judge Hints Charges Might Be Dismissed

A visiting judge hearing motions in the San Quentin Six case hinted yesterday he may dismiss murder charges because Mexican-Americans were excluded from the 1971 grand jury.

For three weeks, attorneys for the six convicts have argued charges should be dropped because the grand jury which indicted them was not representative of the community.

As arguments were completed yesterday, Judge Vernon Stoll of Nevada County announced:

"The court feels there is sufficient (evidence) before it to indicate that in likelihood an identifiable group, particularly Chicanos, were overlooked . . . by the judges in the composition of the 1971 grand jury."

Deputy Dist. Atty. Vernon F. Smith, prosecuting the case, had asked Stoll to tell which way he was leaning so the prosecution could introduce new evidence if an unfavorable ruling was in the winds.

But after Stoll made his announcement, Smith told the surprised courtroom he had no further evidence to present on the question.

Stoll asked both sides to summarize the weeks of testimony and arguments into legal briefs and submit them by Dec. 28. He promised a decision either the first or second week in January.

Defense attorneys hailed Stoll's announcement as a "hopeful sign."

The case — in which the inmates are charged with murder and conspiracy in an alleged escape attempt at the prison in which three guards and three inmates died in August, 1971 — recessed until Monday.

On that day, defense attorneys will argue the case should be dismissed on the grounds there is insufficient evidence.

DEATH CAR — Officer Tim Miller of the California Highway Patrol (above) inspects the wreckage of a car involved in an accident yesterday in which a Santa Rosa man died. The auto struck the center guard rail on Highway 101, then flipped over, causing the damage shown at right. The highway patrol is seeking a pickup truck which may have triggered the crash.

Santa Rosa Man Killed In Crash, Pickup Sought

A Santa Rosa man died yesterday after his auto smashed into a guard rail on Highway 101 and the California Highway Patrol is seeking a pickup truck which may have caused the accident.

Ernest Daulton Howard, 57, died in surgery at Marin General Hospital shortly after the 12:25 p.m. crash.

The highway patrol said Howard, a retired farm worker, was driving south on the freeway near Terra Linda when his car went into a skid, and crashed head-on into the center divider. The vehicle flipped over and Howard was thrown from the car, officers said.

A witness told officers a dark grey pickup truck had cut in front of Howard's car, causing it to swerve into the guard rail, then skid into the rail a second time.

The California Highway Patrol is seeking witnesses to the fatal crash. Officers also would like to find the truck, described as an older vehicle, painted in dark gray primer paint. Officers say the truck may be raked, with its rear end higher than its front.

Howard was a native of Oklahoma.

Survivors include his wife, Mary J. Howard.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at the Harry M. William Mortuary in San Rafael.

Howard was the 34th traffic death to date this year, as compared to 42 highway deaths for the same period last year.

Three More Will Seek Council Seats In Mill Valley Election

Three more Mill Valley residents, including the incumbent mayor, have announced that they will run for election next spring to two open city council seats.

Mayor Jean S. Barnard, planning commission chairman Ivan S. Poutiatine, and attorney Gregory C. Dyer said they will compete for positions now occupied by Mayor Barnard and Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker.

Boessenecker announced last week that he will run again.

Mayor Barnard was elected to the council in 1970 and has served as mayor since April, 1972. Shortly after being appointed mayor, she was the center of political controversy when the council reduced the mayoral term from two years to one, thus cutting her term in half But when her time as mayor ran out last spring, the council reelected her

Besides her council experience, Mrs Barnard served on the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission for five years, two of them as chairman. She belongs to the Sierra Club, Marin Conservation League and the League of Women Voters of Southern Marin. A Mill Valley resident for almost 30 years, she lives at 1 El Capitan She is a Vassar graduate

Mrs Barnard pointed to the building of a new public safety headquarters, work on a new general plan, upgrading of the sewer system and selection of a new city manager as accomplishments while she was on the council.

Architect Poutiatine, 42, was appointed to the planning commission in 1969. Before joining that group, he served two years on the city's architectural advisory committee, including six months as its chairman.

He is head of the steering committee of the citizens advisory committee on the Mill Valley General Plan and a member of the North Ridge Open Space Committee. He is a principal in Agora, a San Francisco architectural planning firm.

He and his family have lived in Mill Valley since 1965 and reside at 400 Tamalpais Avenue.

Dyer 26, has practiced law in Mill Valley for two years with offices on Miller Avenue and lives in the Cascade Canyon area of the city.

He has worked on the city's business assistance committee and served as the attorney for the Alto-Sutton Manor District Association in its successful fight against the Cal-Fong development in the Alto Bowl.

He has applied unsuccessfully for positions on the city's parks and recreation and planning commission.

Dyer said, "It is important that some members of the council work in town as well as live here."

He is a graduate of Stanford University. A member of the Sierra Club, he also has been active in the Boy Scouts, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club and the Marin County Bar Association.

Plans For Park In Canal Area Revised As State Disapproves

The City of San Rafael has revised plans for a canal area park in the wake of state disapproval of the project.

Parks and Recreation Director Andrew J. Snyder Jr. said today the city has redesigned fill plans for the 1.8-acre parcel at Canal Street and Kerner Boulevard to preserve a marsh area adjacent to the San Rafael Canal.

The state Department of Fish and Game had urged the Army Corps of Engineers to reject a city request for a fill permit for 7,000 cubic yards of fill on the site, because it might damage the marsh.

The corps is expected to rule on the new fill plan in about a month, according to corps spokesman E. R. Schleiger.

Snyder said the new plan preserves a 50-foot strip of land immediately adjacent to canal banks.

In analyzing the park fill plan, the state found that the canal marsh provides "important fish and wildlife benefits that should be preserved," and is inhabited by three species of rare or endangered wildlife.

In addition, state inspectors found that "the quality of the water in San Rafael Canal does not meet the state's standards for water contact sports. Until such time as the water quality improves, persons should be discouraged from such activities as swimming, surfboarding, skin diving and water skiing."

Two Bank Of America Units Hit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bandits in two unrelated holdups robbed Bank of America offices of more than $22,000, police say.

The robberies occurred within minutes of each other yesterday. Three masked gunmen made off with $19,000 from the Glen Park branch at 12:25 p.m., police said.

Officers said bank security guard Richard Hargens pursued the three as they fled in a car driven by an accomplice. Two shots were fired in the chase, but no one was hit.

Police said the car was found abandoned a short distance away.

About 15 minutes after the holdup, a young woman pulled a gun on a teller at the West Geary branch of Bank of America and fled with just under $3,000, officer John Komisky said.

Komisky said the woman was caught by bank security guard Andy Stopplewerth and the money recovered.

Oh, Deer! This Was Some Foxhunt

WARRENTOWN, Va. (AP) — The foxhounds chased deer instead of foxes, the deer ran down route 802 instead of through the woods, and at high noon the whole baying, galloping mass, followed by mounted hunters, thundered through Warrenton.

It all began Monday as a foxhunt in this hunt country 45 miles southwest of Washington, D.C.

Two deer vaulted through a window at the law office of Robert D. T. Lawrence, traumatizing two legal secretaries and an IBM repairman. Another doe tried the plate glass window of a downtown notion shop, but the thick glass held.

The deer in the law office exited through a rear window and was last seen hoofing it out of town in a northeasterly direction. The doe that smacked into the notion shop window headed southeast.

After viewing the scene from his law office across Culpepper Street, John Alexander said:

"District court was in session, and I believe every lawyer in town was out watching . . .

"And of course foxhounds all over the place. Just all over the place!"

The hounds, tail-wagging and baying, milled around downtown among the noon shoppers for awhile until they were corralled by the chagrined hunters.

"They don't track too well around cars and people and such," said Warrenton Police Chief H.B. Jones.

The hunters stopped outside of town.

"They're just mortified," said one fox hunt authority.

Ban Is Lifted On Offshore Drilling

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Environmentalists today denounced the state's approval of renewed offshore oil drilling, declaring it could cause massive oil spills and blacken the scenic California coastline.

"It's a tragic decision that could ruin one of America's most beautiful shorelines," said Al Weingand, chairman of Santa Barbara's Get Oil Out (GOO).

The ban on offshore drilling, imposed nearly five years ago after the disastrous Santa Barbara oil spill, was lifted yesterday by the state Lands Commission to help ease the energy crisis.

The all-Republican commission voted 3-to-0 to permit resumption of drilling from existing platforms in the Santa Barbara Channel and the Huntington Beach area if oil companies adopt new safeguards designed to prevent spills.

Democratic Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. charged the commission had been "brainwashed" by oil companies into believing the "environment must be sacrificed to avert an energy crisis."

Republican Sen. Robert Lagomarsino of Ojai said production from the new drilling "will be very small compared to the risk involved."

Controller Houston I. Flournoy, commission chairman, said he was "very confident" the new drilling would not result in a major spill, and viewed the action as striking "a livable balance between resource needs and ecological health."

The ban on drilling in state waters was imposed by the commission in 1969 after the well blowout in federal waters which resulted in 800,000 gallons of crude oil fouling the Pacific Ocean. Some 1,300 cores have been drilled on state tidelands without incident.

"Under the new drilling and operating procedures, there is little chance of a spill," said E.N. Gladish, the commission's executive secretary. "We cannot, however, and no one can, guarantee that there will not be a spill."

He said the new drilling could begin production in about a year

A Tax Hike Looms For Customers

Taxpayers in the Novato Sanitary District can expect a tax hike of about 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation during the 1974-75 fiscal year, according to Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph.

District directors decided Monday night against imposing a service charge to gain revenue next fiscal year, but will continue to pursue the idea of such a charge possibly in 1975-76, Joseph said.

Thus it is likely the maintenance and operation tax of 33 cents per $100 assessed valuation will be increased next fiscal period, Joseph said.

The district is short $76,000 this year and is tapping its capital improvement fund to cover the deficit, he said.

Directors canceled the next regular meeting on Dec. 24 because of Christmas and scheduled its meetings next month on Jan. 10 and 28 at 6 p.m. at the district office, 500 Davidson Street, Novato.

Sausalito Council Favors Children's Theater Idea

The Sausalito City Council last night tentatively approved a plan by the parks and recreation commission to start a children's theater program.

The money was left over from the city's tennis and sailing programs, City Mgr. Thomas P. McKenzie said.

Mayor Robin Sweeny said she was informed a theater instructor would cost about $6 hourly. "Somehow that figure seems a little excessive to me," she said. Councilman Stephen A. Fraser took issue with Mrs. Sweeny's remark.

The council unanimously approved the fund transfer, reserving the right to give the theater program a final review after the recreation commission acts on it.

McKenzie said the money will also pay part of the salary for a Martin Luther King School recreation supervisor.

The Sausalito City Council Also:

REVIEW — Agreed to make city development projects available for county review when necessary provided that no delays are caused.

STREETS — Approved on first reading an ordinance preventing parking at Sausalito Boulevard and Spencer Avenue, and approved stop signs there.

APPOINTMENT — Reappointed George Carney to a two-year term on the Marin County Mosquito Abatement District.

OPTION — Put in writing its agreement reached verbally this fall with the school district for the purchase of the Central School building, with the city paying utility and insurance costs and $14,145 for a six-month option, prorated at time of purchase.

REFUSE — Allowed the Bay Cities Refuse Co. to make its free January refuse pickup the last Monday in January rather than during the entire week as in the past.

HOUSE — Concurred with City Mgr. McKenzie's purchase of a house at 45 Lincoln Drive from Albert St. Cyr, former city manager. The city is part-owner of the residence.

RECORDS — Concurred with the city manager's decision to pay $3,500 to the Remington Rand Corp. to index city ordinances and resolutions and to set up a history file of all deeds and agreements.

PARKING — Set for consideration Thursday a request by businessmen for 2-hour free parking Monday through Friday to encourage Christmas shopping.

College Offers Comets Course

A special short course on comets, designed for the public, will be offered at Sonoma State College in January.

Taught by Dr. Joseph Tenn, assistant professor of physics and astronomy, the course will include telescopic observations of the Comet Kohoutek. The class will meet for four consecutive evenings starting Jan. 7 in Darwin Hall.

Reservations must be made in advance at the college's office of continuing education.

Synanon Action Seen Next Week

An emergency ordinance to clamp a lid on Synanon's growing population in West Marin will be considered next Tuesday by the Marin County Board of Supervisors. (Another supervisors story, page 1.)

The threat of tougher regulations on the drug rehabilitation foundation came as supervisors reacted yesterday to a report from county planners that Synanon's population now stands at about 550.

Under existing county ordinances, there is no restriction on the number of persons who can live on the foundation's two ranches as long as residents are engaged in agriculture.

Additionally, the county has only limited jurisdiction over new dwellings (if occupied by agricultural workers) on the foundation's two ranches, located east of Marshall.

(Existing A-60 zoning restricts the number of dwellings to one for every 60 acres for nonagricultural families but does not limit agricultural family dwellings.)

Some county officials maintain Synanon is using this as a loophole to increase the number of persons in its communal rehabilitation program, which otherwise would fall under stricter county zoning regulations.

One of those is Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere who said he supported efforts to close the loophole and urged adoption of a 120-day emergency ordinance to halt new construction and allow time for further study.

As part of the emergency ordinance to be considered next week, supervisors will review a proposed amendment to the zoning code to apply the same density limits to agricultural families as to nonagricultural.

Where dormitories or communal living quarters are proposed, such as at Synanon, "accommodation of three persons shall be considered the equivalent of one dwelling unit" under the zoning, the proposed amendment reads.

It would apply not only to Synanon, but to all lands under agricultural zoning, said Planning Director Werner von Gundell.

Under the proposed amendment, the number could be exceeded by going through the use permit procedure, which gives the county tight controls.

Von Gundell said the proposed amendment was reviewed and referred to the county agricultural advisory committee and two members — including chairman Robert Parks of Tomales — reported it "would not harm present agricultural operations."

Oil Tax Hike

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada intends to raise the tax on all oil it exports from the present $1.90 per barrel to $2.20. The increase is scheduled for January, and Canada's energy minister, Donal MacDonald, said yesterday the export tax could go as high as $4 in February.

Board Opposes A Cut In Hours At Library

Marin County Supervisors yesterday approved turning off lights and turning down furnaces in response to the energy crisis — but refused to cut down on county library hours as suggested, and couldn't decide whether to ban office coffee pots.

The decisions and indecisions came during an hour-long review of a 10-page conservation survey prepared by Mario Balestrieri, deputy director of public works.

Ray W. Foreaker Jr., Balestrieri's boss, said he calculated that outlawing individual coffee pots and hotplates, portable heaters and desk lamps in the county offices, and eliminating electric pencil sharpeners and fans would save enough power to supply four homes.

But Supervisor Michael Wornum objected that the office coffee pots helped morale and cut down on trips to the civic center cafeteria. Francis J. O'Connell, county employee spokesmen, and Mill Valley Mayor Jean S. Barnard protested any desk lamps ban, arguing that heating used much more energy than lighting.

The supervisors deferred decision on the "extraneous appliances" pending further study by the county administrator.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere voted against the delay.

The supervisors unanimously asked Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to turn off parking lot lights at the Veterans Memorial Building when the lot isn't in use. Foreaker explained that the utility firm must obtain permission from the state Public Utilities Commission to shorten the lighting hours, under the existing rate rules.

Board members couldn't decide whether to limit the number of evening meetings in the civic center so janitorial work can be finished and utilities turned down earlier. Roumiguiere successfully requested that the night meeting issue be given more study.

The energy crisis survey mentioned that the escalator, one elevator and two of the three civic center boilers have been shut down, air conditioning curtailed, and county vehicles slowed to 55 miles per hour except in emergencies. It also suggested reducing street sweeping operations, using debris boxes instead of dump trucks, and other steps to offset a predicted 15 per cent cut in fuel allocations to the county.

Counterculture Book Published

The People's Yellow Pages, a directory of the counterculture's businesses and services around the Bay Area, has been published in a third edition.

The book's format follows that of a commercial telephone book. Listings are alphabetized (abortion and aikido through yoga and zen).

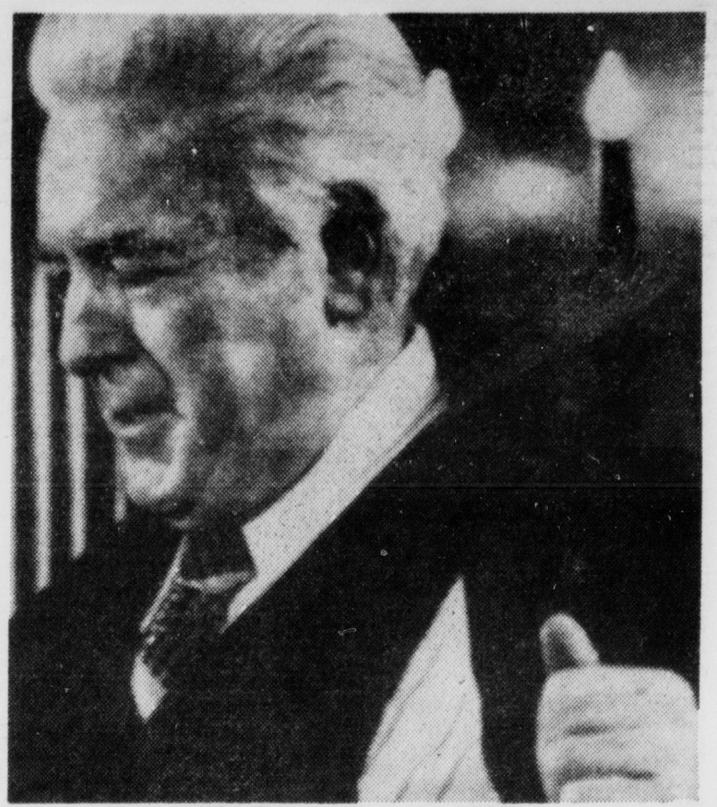
The directory, for sale at many book stores, was first published in 1971.



NO GUN IN MY VEST

Labor Secretary Peter Brennan opens his suit coat in response to being asked by a reporter at a Labor Department ceremony yesterday if he still carried a gun as he did when he was a construction labor leader in New York City. Brennan was informally dubbed "Pistol Pete" after aides disclosed earlier this year that he had carried a pearl handled revolver at times even after becoming labor secretary. (UPI Telephoto)

Tam Valley Auto Wrecker Given Year To Relocate

MacAndy Auto Wrecking in Tamalpais Valley, considered an eyesore by some residents, was given one year yesterday by Marin County supervisors to relocate elsewhere.

The action came on a 3-to-2 vote with supervisors Robert A. Roumiguiere and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. urging more time be given the 20-year-old business at Dolan's Corner.

A spokesman for the firm argued it was unfair to force the firm to close down or move (by not renewing a use permit) because it had been in the area longer than most complaining residents.

Residents, supported by Supervisor Michael Wornum, countered that the wrecking yard is no longer a proper land use since the surrounding area has developed into a residential community and will be the main entrance to the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

In setting the one-year deadline, supervisors tossed out a planning commission decision to grant only 90 days to move the old junkers.

Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

APPOINTMENTS — Appointed James Looney, executive director of the Marin YMCA, to the county juvenile delinquency prevention commission.

JUNIPER RUST — Requested officials of the state Department of Food and Agriculture to meet and answer questions why the state should not reimburse property owners for Tam juniper plants removed in its eradication program of hawthorn-juniper rust disease.

McINNIS PARK — Authorized the parks and recreation department to proceed with contracting for schematic drawings and detailed planning of the swim and tennis complex at the John F. McInnis Park. Architectural fees are expected to be about $80,000. Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste dissented.

MEETING — Will meet Monday at 8 p.m. with the Novato City Council to discuss the proposed growth control ordinance. The meeting will be held at Novato City Hall.

LOAN — Approved a $3,000 loan to the Greenbrae County Service Area to finance appraisals and related matters connected with the service area's planned acquisition of open space lands behind Marin Catholic High School.

SONOMA — Approved 3-to-2, with Roumiguiere and Wornum dissenting, dispatch of a letter to Sonoma County supervisors complaining an attorney had exceeded the bounds of propriety and good judgment in handling Sonoma's side of the intercounty dispute over location of the Renaissance Pleasure Faire. Sonoma's Deputy County Counsel Prentice Fish had ired Marc supervisors by asking them for an accounting of any private meetings with fair promoters or gifts from the promoters. There was none such, the Marin officials have said.

COUNTY PLAN — Gave economic consulting firm Baxter, McDonald and Smart of San Francisco a second three-month extension of deadline to April 1 for its report on the economic impact of the new Marin County General Plan, after the firm's Angus McDonald said it would add no cost to the $80,00 study and pleaded the need for time to complete a doctoral dissertation, illness of a key employee and that one portion of the study has proven "surprisingly difficult and time consuming."

CORRECTIONS — Directed the county administrator to draft a statement of policy and responsibilities for the recently created 13-member corrections commission, whose members have been divided as to whether they are limited to advising the new department of corrections or may look into correctional issues in all departments, such as the probation department.

BELVEDERE — Unanimously approved a request from Supervisor Michael Wornum that the county planning department be allowed to contract to provide a general plan for the City of Belvedere. The city will pay all the expected $6,000 cost; no county staff would be needed, Planning Director Werner von Gundell reported.

JOBS — Voted 4-to-1 with A. Roumiguiere opposing, to continue 17 Emergency Employment Act jobs through June 30, 1974, because federal funds originally granted for the on-the-job training program won't be used up by the original Feb. 1 deadline.

AIRPORT — Approved increasing the contract for engineers Wilsey and Ham of Foster City to $31,300 maximum to plan additional improvements to the Marin County Airport, Gnoss Field. More federal funds are available, Public Works Director Ray W Foreaker Jr reported.

FIRE STATION — Hired contractor Joseph Redmond of San Rafael, lowest of four bidders, for $150,348 to build a new county fire department administration building and dormitory in Woodacre.

CHRISTMAS PARTY FOR CHILDREN

Dancers, musicians and singers entertain children at the Novato High School Cafeteria. Approximately 130 children attended last night and were given gifts and food by Santa Claus, according to Joseph D. Gargiulo, chairman of the Novato Community Christmas Party. Entertainers came from all over Marin County to help with the charitable event.

Kissinger Will Stop In Algiers

LONDON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today extended his Middle East tour to include Algeria and made substantial progress towards mending frayed Anglo-American relations, U.S. and British officials said.

A spokesman for Kissinger said he will meet with Algerian President Houari Boumedienne and Foreign Minister Abdel Aziz Boutelike during a brief stopover in Algiers Thursday en route to Cairo, which was to have been the first stop of his Middle East tour.

The spokesman would say only that Kissinger would discuss "questions of mutual interest" in Algiers, a reference that could only mean the Middle East crisis and ways of achieving lasting peace in the area.

The announcement of the Algiers stopover came before Kissinger emerged from a one hour and 40 minute conference with British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home at the Foreign Office.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the talks were "free from recrimination, were positive and constructive and the Anglo-American relationship emerged strengthened."

"The talks took the form of a friendly and forwardlooking exchange of views," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said Kissinger and Douglas-Home agreed on "further consultation measures" to avoid future misunderstandings between United States and Britain. He did not elaborate.

British officials said progress has also been made in the drafting of a "Transatlantic Declaration" which aims at setting out the broad principles of future cooperation between the United States and its European allies.

County To Continue Preschool Program

Marin's preschool education program can continue through the current school year, the Marin County Board of Education decided last night.

Asst Supt. Robert E. Spain said that state funding has been assured through June 1 at the current rate of $33,838 per half-school year. Funds come from the state's Department of Education, he said.

The program consists of three classes of 18 children each at the Manzanita Children's Center.

Marin County Board of Education Also:

CONSULTANT — Hired Nadine Shea, a behavior therapist, part time to train teachers of handicapped children. Her fee is $500.

POLICIES — Scheduled a Jan. 8 first reading for new policies on instructional materials, including guidelines for review of "controversial issues."

JOB — Approved revision of the job description for a secretarial position.

DATE — Changed the board's February meeting date to Feb. 5 because Feb. 12, the usual date, is Lincoln's Birthday.

BUSES — Renewed an agreement with the Marin Municipal Water District for housing and maintenance of county school buses.

SCHOOLS WEEK — Declared April 1 through April 5 Public Schools Week at the behest of the Free and Accepted Masons of California.

Hub Market Robbed Of $100

A San Anselmo market was robbed of $100 at gunpoint yesterday, police said today.

Police said a man who waved a blue steel revolver forced a clerk at Short Stop Market, 4 Bolinas Avenue, to empty two cash drawers at 7:20 p.m. yesterday.

The man, described as wearing rose-colored glasses and a raincoat, thanked a clerk who handed over the cash and then fled on foot.

Demos Set A Midterm Convention

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats will hold their 1974 mid-term national convention, the first of its kind for a major U.S. political party, at Kansas City, Mo., next Dec. 6-8, it was announced today.

The site selection was announced by the Planning Advisory Committee of the Democratic National Committee after several months of considering bids from nine cities.

The meeting, which the Democrats are calling a conference, will draw 2,035 delegates from every state and territory. Its main purpose will be to act on a new Democratic party charter, but presidential politics probably will dominate the meeting a month after the 1974 state and congressional elections.

The conference itself is somewhat controversial. The original draft of the Democratic Charter submitted to the 1972 national convention provided for a regular mid-term meeting to discuss and act on party positions on national issues.

That provision, along with establishment of a more formal national party structure, caused enough controversy at Miami Beach to put the entire charter question over for consideration.

Senate Votes For New System To Operate Bankrupt Railroads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted yesterday to create a giant new railroad system for the East and Midwest from the best lines of seven bankrupt railroads.

The House has passed similar legislation, and final congressional approval is expected before Congress adjourns for the year. A compromise version of the bill will now be worked out by a House-Senate conference committee.

The legislation likely would lead to mass abandonments of thousands of miles of low-density rail lines in 17 states unless local communities or states agreed to underwrite 25 per cent of their losses with the federal government paying the remaining 75 per cent.

However, the Senate approved an amendment that would place a moratorium on further rail abandonments anywhere in the country for two years unless there was no opposition from shippers or the communities or states served by the line.

The new railroad would be primarily a freight system, but under terms of the Senate bill, the Transportation Department was ordered to produce recommendations for an expanded national passenger rail system under Amtrak.

The legislation contains $2 billion in loan guarantees for purchase of freight cars by all the nation's railroads, along with $10 million to set up a national computerized system to keep track of the cars.

In creating the new system, two new government corporations would be established: the Government National Railway Association, (Ginnie Rae) which would help plan the new system and have loan guarantee authority to provide funds for the system and for other failing railroads and the United Rail Corporation, which would actually run the new system.

The seven bankrupt lines are the Penn Central, the Lehigh Valley, the Erie-Lackawanna, the Reading, the Jersey Central, the Boston & Maine and the Ann Arbor.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Renee Sheer reported yesterday someone stole her truck, her purse, $330 in the purse, and her 4,600 pairs of pantyhose.

Miss Sheer, a truck driver, said she had parked the truck and was preparing to fill a store's display racks with the $4,800 worth of pantyhose when she looked out of the store and saw the truck being driven away by two men.

Police later recovered the truck but the purse, money and pantyhose were gone.

WOODSY GIFT — This grassy knoll with its meandering flagstone path may soon belong to the City of Mill Valley. It has been offered by representatives of the late John R. Geary, who created a valuable collection of flora native to California on the third of an acre near the Dipsea Trail.

Mill Valley Is Offered A Gift Of Edgewood Botanic Garden

The Edgewood Botanic Garden, a collection of dozens of plants native to Marin and California lying near the Dpisea Trail in Mill Valley, has been offered to the city as a gift.

Acquisition of the property was discussed at a parks and recreation commission meeting Monday, according to Don L. Dimitratos, parks and recreation director, who said the commission recommended that the city council accept the property from the Edgewood Botanic Garden Trust Fund.

Dimitratos said trust fund representatives explained that the fund is running out of money to maintain the garden, begun in 1961 by the late John R. Geary, a Mill Valley psychiatrist and nature enthusiast.

The garden covers about one-third of an acre and lies between Cypress and Edgewood avenues. It has long been a stopping spot for hikers on the nearby Dipsea and Pipeline trails.

The county assessor has estimated the value of the land at $37,000, and plants and improvements in the garden are believed to be worth about $29,000, according to Dimitratos.

He said that, if the city accepts the garden, it will have to pay maintenance costs of between $500 and $1,521 a year, depending on how much care is given to the property.

The garden contains many varieties of ceanothus, ferns, manzanita, oak, pine and roses which are native to California or Marin. There is also a collection of rhododendrons and azaleas native to other states.

Local botanists and home-owners groups have asked the city to take over the property.

Death Shock Said Cause Of Robbery

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A man accused of murdering a park ranger at Point Reyes National Seashore last August was a spectator when the killing took place, the man's attorney said yesterday in U.S. District Court here.

The incident so disturbed Alan W. Veale's mind that Veale later robbed a Berkeley bank, attorney Paul Harris claimed. Veale, 24, of San Francisco, is on trial for the $995 holdup of the bank on Sept. 6.

Harris established the Point Reyes Seashore killing as a defense argument, during his opening statement before a seven-man, five-woman jury hearing the robbery case in Judge William T. Sweigert's court.

Sweigert earlier tried to avoid bringing out that Veale also is one of two men indicted in the Aug. 5 slaying of Park Ranger Kenneth C. Patrick, asking newsmen covering the robbery trial to avoid linking the two cases in their stories.

Harris said Veale was picked up by two friends and driven to Point Reyes for some midnight target shooting and poaching of game animals. The attorney said the trio's car was stopped and Patrick shined a flashlight on Veale in the car's back seat and "someone in the front seat shot the ranger."

Seeing the killing, combined with Veale's poverty-strained life in a Berkeley ghetto, so deranged the youth that he turned robber, Harris claimed.

Veronza L. Bowers Jr., 27, of San Francisco, is to stand trial the week of Jan. 7 on the federal grand jury murder indictment. Whether Veale will be tried at the same time or separately has not yet been determined by U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents said Veale implicated Bowers in the Point Reyes episode after Veale was arrested through photos taken by the robbed bank's automatic cameras. The third man in the car hasn't been named or charged.

Tanker Truck Used To Siphon Off Gas

SALINAS (UPI) — Thieves using a tanker truck siphoned off 800 gallons of gasoline from an underground tank at Raleigh Alston's service station.

"No one would give a second thought to seeing a gas tanker at a service station in the middle of the night, would they?" a police officer said yesterday.

New School District Plan Opposed

The Petaluma Board of Education last night refused to endorse a proposal for a new unified school district north of Petaluma, and, in effect, asked that the plan be sent back to the drawing board.

The Cotati-Rohnert Park Elementary School District has proposed that a new district be formed which would include the junior and senior high schools in the area, now in the Petaluma High School District, as well as three small elementary school districts and parts of others.

The new district would provide education for youngsters from kindergarten through high school in the greater Rohnert Park area.

The Petaluma board last night listened to strong opposition from representatives of the small districts, Libert, Dunham and Penngrove, which fear loss of local control and higher tax rates. Other districts affected would be parts of Belleview and Old Adobe.

Representatives of the Cotati-Rohnert Park district again argued for the plan.

The Petaluma Board, however, passed a resolution that the current study being considered by the Sonoma County Committee on School District Organization which is the proposal for the new district be set aside and a new study be made.

The trustees asked also that such a study include the rest of the Petaluma high school district and the elementary districts within its attendance area and, further, that a staff member from the county schools office "with enough time" assist the committee in making it.

The committee is due to discuss the matter again on Jan. 10 and make a decision on whether to hold an election to determine if the district should be created.

Opponents have expressed fears that in such an election, the more populous areas of Rohnert Park and Cotati would outvote the smaller communities.

The Petaluma Board of Education Also:

APPRECIATION — Awarded plaques to the Petaluma agricultural mechanics team for participation in the national agricultural mechanics contest in October.

CANCELLATION — Cancelled the Dec. 25 meeting because it falls on Christmas Day.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of high school teachers Marilyn Goehring, who is moving; James E. Morris, who gave personal reasons, and Paul Nobmann, who is leaving teaching.

HIRED — Approved the hiring of Karen Vinti as a high school teacher at $5,400 for the rest of the school year after Jan. 28.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to Jan. 8 in memory of Nada Stanley, a Grant School teacher who died recently.

Petaluma Sets Deadline For Rating Appeals

The Petaluma City Council last night set Jan. 23 as the date for developers to appeal the ratings given them by the city's residential development evaluation board.

The board has listed priorities for builders next year under the city's growth control ordinance, which limits new housing units to 500 a year.

(The ordinance is due for a test in U.S. District Court in San Francisco next month.)

The council also was told last night that the $2.65 million bond issues for park improvements and a new library on the March 5 ballot would require a tax rate of 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Zenger Award To Katharine Graham

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Katharine Graham, publisher of the Washington Post, has become the first woman to be named recipient of the John Peter Zenger award for distinguished service to freedom of the press, given by the University of Arizona.

"The reputation of the Post was on the line during those long, lonely months when one newspaper carried the brunt of the Watergate investigation," her nomination said.

Two Take Seats On Parks Board

Tina Helgren and Dr. Peter Weber III have been installed as new members of the Rohnert Park Parks and Recreation Commission. They replaced Elmer Hamann and Nancy Mettert, who resigned.

In other action Monday night, the commission recommended that the new youth advisory council, proposed by Mayor Armando Flores, consist of seven young people, rather than five as suggested earlier. The commissioners thought adding an additional seventh or eighth grader and another high school student would give the council more balance, according to James Pekkain, recreation director.

The council has been proposed as an advisory body to the city council, planning commission and parks and recreation commission.

Alto Board Elects

The Alto Sanitary District board last night elected director Franklin J. McClain to serve as president and director Daniel R. McNeill as secretary.

Lesson Not Taught By The Textbooks

A generation of youngsters in the Pajaro Valley of Santa Cruz County are likely to grow up with diminished respect for law and the American legal system, thanks to their teachers and the Pajaro Unified School District board.

On Tuesday, Dec. 4, the 490 teachers in the district went out on strike — a walkout voted by locals of both California Teachers Association and California Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO.

That evening, a Santa Cruz County Superior Court judge issued a temporary restraining order against the strike, ordering the teachers back to work. The teachers, however, ignored the order. For the remainder of the week, they stayed out, and picketed the 21 schools of the district with "Unfair" signs.

The school board kept the schools open with substitute teachers. But attendance was down sharply.

THE TEACHERS thus gave the 12,803 pupils in Pajaro Valley schools a lesson in non-citizenship: Ignore court orders when you don't agree with them.

The school board, although it kept the schools open, continued to negotiate with representatives of the striking teachers — whose strike was illegal to begin with and had been enjoined by the court.

During the week end, board and teachers came to an agreement to end the walkout.

The school board thus completed the youngsters' education in non-citizenship: Defy the court and you can win.

The teachers did not win much. The school board's last pay offer before the walkout was a scale ranging from a minimum of $8,021 to a maximum of $16,225 per year. The two teacher unions settled for a scale of $8,063 to $16,311. Total additional cost of the pay package, according to school district figures, was $50,000 — or not much more than $100 per teacher. That amounts to less than the four days' pay lost by the walkout.

BUT THE PAJARO Valley teachers accomplished several other things by their strike.

They sharply divided the community, according to editor Frank F. Orr of the Watsonville Register-Pajaronian and Sun. Parents "chose up sides," some bombarding school trustees to "hang tough," others urging that the teachers be given what they wanted; some insisting that their children attend school during the walkout, others keeping their youngsters home "in support of the teachers."

And teachers and board taught young Pajaronians a lesson they are likely to remember: Ignore the law and the courts when you think you can benefit from doing so.

We doubt that is part of the education that Pajaro Valley parents intended their children to receive in the public schools.

To Eat Or Not To Eat?

They are the most handsome mushrooms we have ever seen. Really beautiful. Creamy white gills. Perfect form. A fawnish-white cap. Edible?

These mushrooms growing in the manured soil of our rose bed send us on a three-hour reading expedition through our fungi books. We think we nailed them down as succulent members of the Tricholoma genus. Yet, we are haunted by the fact that they are quite similar to the deadly Amanita in some respects.

We were particularly struck by this description of Amanita: "They are the aristocrats of fungi. Their noble bearing, their beauty, their power for good and evil, and above all their perfect structure, have placed them first in their realm."

We think we'll study a lot more before we eat garden volunteer fungi.

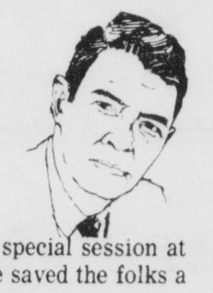
State Trying To Reduce Cost Of Welfare Hike



By RUS WALTON

Those legislative birds were back on the roost last week, and they raised the state's welfare payments to the aged, blind and disabled by $122 million a year — plus cost-of-living increases.

No committee hearings. No public debates. Just wham-bam, and there it was. California was already second only to Alaska in such benefit payouts. Now we go even higher.

Of course, part of the action was demanded by Washington — a form of legislative backmail to get back money California taxpayers had sent east. That's the way it goes these days: the feds dictate, the states legislate — and we pay.

DAVID SWOAP JR., California's director of social welfare, says things could have been worse for the taxpayers.

"The least expensive version of the recent court decision — the one that said the administration could not increase those payments through departmental regulations — was $171 million. Maybe even more.

"The least expensive version of Assemblyman John Burton's AB 18 — the bill that was defeated by just two votes back in September — was $140 million.

"We came out of the special session at $122 million. I figure we saved the folks a bit of dough."

Every little bit helps, these days. I thanked Dave Swoap for you.

Swoap says the new legislation will not do much damage to the state's basic welfare reforms that were enacted two years ago. The one big change will come in the relatives' responsibility law. That payment scale was reduced to pre-1971 requirements, meaning individuals with relatives on welfare will now make smaller monthly payments to the county.

SWOAP THINKS he may be able to make up part of the additional $122 million in welfare costs through economies. He's working on what he calls "the second mile" in welfare reform.

Two task forces are at work on this. One group is reviewing AFDC — Aid to Families with Dependent Children. That category of welfare accounts for almost ¾ of all welfare caseloads in the state.

The task force is "combing the corners" of AFDC to see what was not included in the reforms of two years ago that should have been. And it is looking for reforms that were included but have not yet been implemented.

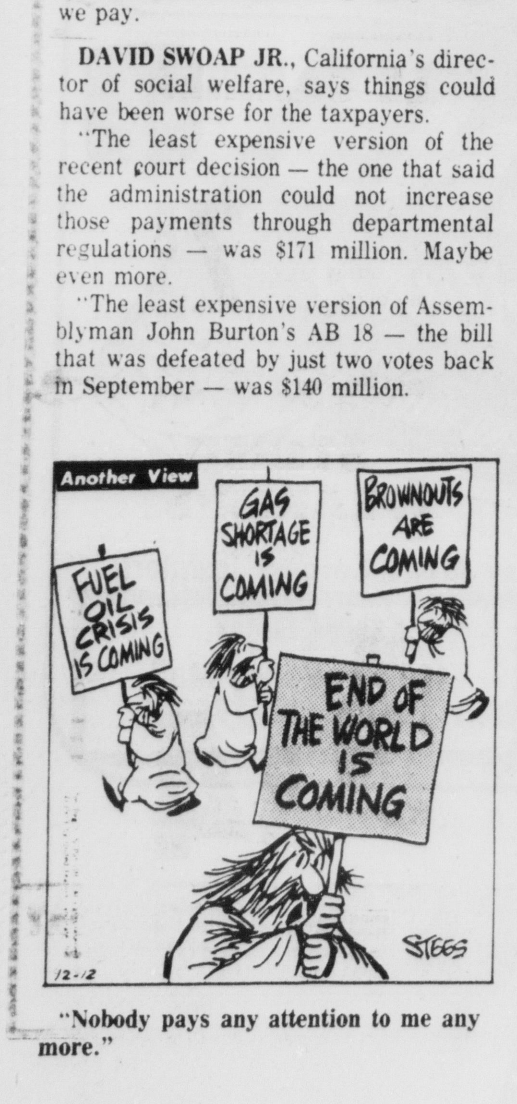
A SECOND TASK FORCE is checking into the food stamp program. Swoap reports three are few controls on that and "massive opportunities for abuse — theft, fraud and counterfeiting."

Five years ago the net cost of the food stamp program in California was $35 million. This year it's $500 million.

College students often "qualify" for food stamps even though their parents are able to support them, says Swoap, due to inadequate checking at the county level.

A lot of the students see the food stamp game as a rip-off game, asserts Swoap. He tells of an article in the McGeorge School of Law campus newspaper. It pointed out loopholes in the food stamp program and advised studnets on how to take advantage of them to get on the food stamp program.

Swoap chuckles: "We closed those loopholes in a hurry."



"Nobody pays any attention to me any more."

Busing For School Integration Runs Up Against Fuel Shortage

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Classroom integration has run head-on into the energy crisis.

Complete elimination of busing is among measures being considered to reduce schools' fuel requirements, according to the Dec. 3 Legislative Review of the Education Commission of the States.

"The no-busing proposals," said the Review, "are coming from those who don't have sufficient gasoline or diesel fuel in sight to keep their wheels moving very long, as well as from those who see the energy crisis as the answer to the desegregationist's prayer."

THE DAY AFTER the appearance of that report, however, the San Francisco Board of Education was told that eight of that city's high schools, 13 of its junior high schools, and 36 of its elementary schools did not meet the "racial balance" requirements of a federal court order under which the system is operating. Busing to achieve the court-mandated mix already has hiked San Francisco's school costs considerably. But it has not been enough, reported Supt. Steven P. Morena. To bring the "unbalanced" schools into compliance will require still more busing.

No one at the San Francisco board meeting had any idea where the additional motor fuel is to be found.

That same day, the U. S. Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, Ohio, upheld a Memphis, Tenn., school busing plan which had been approved by a lower court but appealed by the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, which did not think it went far enough. It involved busing 38,000 Memphis pupils — 83 per cent of the entire school enrollment.

It was, of course, left up to Memphis city and school authorities to find the money —and the gasoline.

AT THE SAME TIME that more and more busing for "racial balance" is being mandated, schools are planning such measures as extended Christmas vacations, "cold days" closings, and shortening of school terms because of insufficient gasoline and fuel oil, according to the Education Commission of the States.

The Maryland Legislature has given Gov. Marvin Mandel authority to close all schools in the state if necessary because of fuel shortage. Similar authority is being proposed in some other states.

In Colorado, some suburban districts expect to have to shut down their schools within two weeks if a cold snap hits.

Massachusetts and Illinois have authorized districts to reduce the school term f necessary because of lack of fuel oil and gasoline.

And all across the country, school Christmas trees will go without lights this year as a symbol of energy saving.

AMONG THE FINDINGS of that federal appeals court in the Memphis case was that the City of Memphis had been guilty of obstructionist tactics by failing to apply for more gasoline for the school district —the gasoline needed for all those extra buses.

A long series of court orders, gradually widening and distorting the original Brown vs. Board of Education decision that a child could not be barred from her neighborhood school because of race, have imposed great added costs on many districts.

The results have included improved schooling for black children in many places. But whether busing children back and forth to provide black-white checkerboard patterns in the classroom has contributed much to this is a matter of wide dispute.

There scarcely can be dispute, however, over the proposition that lengthening vacations and closing schools whenever the weather gets cold would be harmful to the education of all children, black and white.

Some school boards might welcome it, because it would help a little in keeping down costs. But the children (as so often) would be the sufferers.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Opponents' Time Cut In School Debate

Betty Frost's Dec. 5 coverage of the AAUW-sponsored meeting in which the Mill Valley community explored the concept of year-round schools was entirely accurate. However, something of which neither Mrs. Frost nor the audience was aware was that Mr. Jack Osman and I limited ourselves to a total of five minutes of panel time, as had been requested of us by the AAUW.

On the other hand, year-round proponents on the panel imposed no such limitation on themselves, but rather occupied at least a half-hour of the meeting. . .

In the spirit of "equal coverage", may I ask that you print my plea to working mothers in the Mill Valley School District to become fully acquainted with the concept of year-round schools, its advantages and disadvantages. Will year-round schools pose unmanageable child care burdens on the working mother? If so, should the school district accept the responsibility in its year-round school planning to aid in alleviating some of these burdens?

Fighting Ourselves Instead Of Inflation

In a war against ourselves, it is difficult to identify the enemy.

Unquestionably, we are in a war against inflation, but who is our enemy? Failing to recognize this, we can continue fighting forever, without victory.

Generally, in a war, we blame the other side, but who is the other side, when people fight people for advantage?

At this point in time, it would serve little purpose to quibble over which came first, the high cost of living or the higher wages. We have them both, and we know, now, that they are getting us nowhere. We also know that one won't stop rising without the other.

This is a sad situation, because the harm we do, we do to ourselves.

This deserves some profound thinking, by all of us.

Bigger Citizen Committees Advocated

The Citizens Advisory Committee on the San Rafael General Plan has finished most of its work. To those who took part, the value of having a great variety of experience to draw upon was impressive.

The council was wise in establishing a CAC and the public hearings hopefully will see many well informed citizens being an aid rather than a hindrance in the final formation of the plan.

The council should be encouraged to follow Councilman Mulryan's views in getting more people rather than fewer people on these committees which are advisory and hence work best with many and varied backgrounds to draw upon. If the CACs were primarily decision making bodies then perhaps limiting their membership would be wise. But basically the CAC is like a questionnaire sent to the citizenry — and the more questionnaires, the better the feedback.

Hopefully CACs would be a welcome aid to government which desperately needs less centralization and bureaucracy and more of the common sense of citizen input.

Vice Presidency Suddenly Becomes Of Great Importance

When in American history has the vice presidency been so important? In the 1930s a popular musical comedy celebrated that official as Alexander Throttlebottom. The word has entered the language as a symbol of futility. Many vice presidents have heaped scorn on the office in earthy terms.

None of this is the case with Vice President Ford. In Washington there is widespread talk, nowhere more vigorous than in Republican party circles, that the 40th vice president may become the 38th president. It is not morbid talk. It is reaction to the troubles of the Nixon administration. And it may be entirely wrong, entirely wishful.

President Nixon repeatedly has affirmed his intention to see his troubles out. He is supported and encouraged by considerable sentiment throughout the country from ardent Nixon loyalists. They minimize the events of the past year and a half, attribute comparable scandals to earlier politicians, and blame the news media for exaggerating the troubles.

THE NIXON administration has its undeniable strengths. The president and Secretary Kissinger are bold and experienced world diplomats. They have charted a shrewd, delicate balance-of-power policy between the two Communist superstates. They are carrying it out well.

Recently they faced up to a crisis in the Middle East and helped produce more hope for a solution than has existed for a quarter of a century. Taking a long time about it, they got American troops out of Vietnam and American prisoners back. They have fences to repair in Western Europe and Japan. But on the whole they deserve high marks for strong policies in a difficult time.

On the domestic side, the score is not reassuring. The energy crisis, with multiple causes, was not adequately foreseen. There were no effective preventative measures. The public was not alerted and prepared. Remedial measures are only now being hastily scrambled together.

The domestic economy suffers severely from an unconscionable inflation. Business leadership bluntly anticipates recession. The pinch will hit every pocketbook. This is bound to have political consequences.

MEANTIME, Vice President Ford possesses the confidence of Congress. He fully supports the policies of the Nixon administration. His succession would be faithful to the voters' verdict in 1972. At the least, he would be expected to be a good caretaker president, and at best might turn into a Harry Truman. Nobody can say.

Up to now, however, the House of Representatives, shows little willingness to impeach President Nixon, even for the purpose of providing him what he can get in no other way: a genuine day in court.

The House Judiciary Committee does not expect to approach a vote on impeachment until spring. If there are other disturbing revelations touching the presidency, they might precipitate earlier action. And pressure for abdication is undeniably quite strong. It would have to be relentless and overpowering before the president could be expected to yield. But it is frankly admitted that such a time might come.

With this possibility in existence, it may be that the atmosphere will grow less tense. A solution for the crisis is possible. It does not have to be precipitated. The departure of Bryce Harlow and Melvin Laird from the White House will not help, unless men of comparable stature are willing to come aboard. There is vital work to be done in the executive offices, now as ever.

Mr. Laird has recommended, and the president seems to agree, that Vice President Ford should be given responsibilities in coordinating the domestic program which no vice president has ever held before.

Such plans have been suggested before, never fulfilled. If this comes about, the vice presidency becomes important for a reason other than the succession.

No miracles are expected. It will be a rough time for steering the American economy through hazards unequalled since the Great Depression. But the challenge and opportunity might lift the Nixon-Ford administration out of the slough of despond.

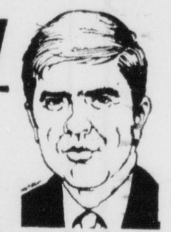
ERNEST B. FURGURSON



Christian Forgiveness Shown In Vote For A Decent Man

WASHINGTON — On July 9, 1965, years of bloody effort by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference bore fruit. With belated but strong support from the White House, a federal voting rights bill passed the House of Representatives and was sent to conference for alignment with the Senate version. By common retrospective agreement, it was the most effective piece of civil rights legislation ever enacted.

During the SCLC effort in those years, a young black minister named Andrew Young seemed to be everywhere. As executive director of the organization headed by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., he was one of the leaders of the march from Selma to Montgomery, which lit the country's conscience and pushed the bill through Congress.

A middle-age congressman named Gerald Ford was on the other side. Not in outright opposition to voting rights in the abstract, but as a major advocate of a weaker bill, one that would have watered down the successful measure.

IF THAT BILL had prevailed instead, the Voting Rights Act could not have become so historic an instrument in enfranchising hundreds of thousands of Americans who had never voted before. Very likely, if the Ford version has passed, Andrew Young in 1972 would not have been able to become the first black congressman from the Deep South in modern times.

And, in turn, Young would not have been able to vote for Ford at another historic moment, when Congress confirmed him as vice president last week.

Yes, for him.

AS THE ONLY BLACK congressman to approve the Ford nomination, Young set an example of stature, political common sense, and Christian forgiveness — all of them worth popular emulation in these weeks and months. He did it not only with his vote but with his short accompanying speech.

He might have done as all other black congressmen did, and voted against Ford on his record. That record was laid out for the House by Rep. Donald Fraser of Minnesota, who opposed Ford and said why. He cited Ford's role in the fundamental fields of civil rights, social programs, labor, civil liberties, environment and defense-foreign policy, and leading the list were more than a dozen "anti" stands on civil rights matters, from 1950 up through last month.

Young knew all this, yet when he stood he put it aside and explained that his was an affirmative vote of "faith and hope that he will be a uniting and stabilizing force in a nation beset by division and crisis."

Noting that Mr. Nixon's resignation or impeachment would be a much less anxious development with a Republican successor confirmed by orderly process, he added that anyone picked within that process by this president would have had a similar political philosophy.

AND THEN HE SPOKE out of his own special background, but said what nearly all Americans must have had in mind when Mr. Ford was sworn in.

He looks to Mr. Ford, he said, "to rise to the occasion of assuming this high office, to grow in that position as many have in the past.

"Out of my own southern experience, I have confidence that people can overcome past parochial views and develop a broader perspective which takes into account the interest of all of the people. Decent men, placed in positions of trust, will serve decently. I believe that Mr. Ford is a decent man."

Mr. Nixon has abused his electoral mandate beyond any value, Young said. So "let us hope that Mr. Ford will respect and abide by his own mandate which we, as representatives of the people, are giving him in one fateful and possibly final act of trust."

What he meant by that, in case he understated it, was that the House vote to confirm Ford may have been confirming him at the same time as the next President of the United States. Should Mr. Nixon resign or be removed through impeachment, there would not be another vote on his replacement. That vote was cast last Thursday afternoon.

And on that roll call, the Rev. Andrew Young rose above past differences — and he and 386 of his colleagues put themselves in position to apply the highest standards to this man whose greatest recommendation, in these pathetic times, is the simple fact that he is "decent."

To Simplify Christmas List, First Eliminate 'Bad Guys'

It's the season — there's just not time for everything.

So, the best way to handle the holidays is to put things in priority and use one's limited energy to get the important ones done first.

For example, Christmas cards are loads of fun to receive, even if you've never heard of some of the senders, the same old bores write endless letters about their perfect children, and the people you'd really like to hear from simply sign, "Betty and John."

But to get Christmas cards, it's usually necessary to send a few. The whole task can be reduced to relative simplicity, I discovered last year, if you first make a list of people who are not going to be on the list.

FIRST, THERE ARE Nixon's tax accountants. I think they sound just neat, but I'm too jealous to put them on my Christmas card list. Rather, I think I'll send them a note asking them to write a how-to-do-it pamphlet I can give my own accountant. The latter hasn't caught on at all and obviously needs some lessons.

Turning a little more to the local scene, my gas station isn't going to make the list this year, either. The attendants seem to think that discontinuing the little niceties like washing the windshield, checking the oil and putting air in the tires is miraculously going to solve the energy crisis.

The San Rafael City Council is a scratch, too. Why can't the councilmen simply realize that a certain number of people earn their living working in downtown San Rafael and must park there? The workers do park their cars there, anyway, but must indulge in a parking roulette game, rushing out several times a day to move them a few feet. The end result is not more parking spaces for shoppers — just constant irritation for those who have to play the silly car juggling game.

YOU GET THE IDEA — the possibilities are endless — like the State Theater in Petaluma, which is showing "Deep Throat" for what seems like the 92nd week.

Now that that's out of the way — start on the good guys.

There are the post offices and banks which have adopted the "red carpet" line system — a simple procedure of making the awful decision of what is going to be the slow line.

There are the local craftsmen and artists — the "dirty hippies" of yesteryear, who are now producing some very nice wares, often at reasonable prices. They enliven the season with their fairs and festivals, and if they would discover that bright colors are not sinful, they'd be even more jolly.

And, finally, there's Bob Collins, an almost saintly young man who again this year is pulling together "Tiny Tim's Christmas" — an effort by many people to provide food and toys for the surprising number of poor people who still live in Marin.

He deserves not only a card but also a nice contribution to the program.

Californians Told How To Meet Energy Needs

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Rand Corp. scientists testified yesterday that if Californians joined in simple energy-saving efforts the state could come close to meeting current fuel shortages.

But the leader of the research team said conservation efforts must be put to use quickly in order to be effective.

Commissioned to do a year-long study of California energy needs, Rand representatives presented a joint legislative committee with preliminary results showing startling shortages of fuel but impressive possibilities for savings.

Rand researcher William Ahern told the subcommittee on state energy policy that California could be faced with a reduction from last year's supplies of 10-15 per cent in natural gas, 20-30 per cent in oil and up to 30 per cent in electrical generating. The estimates do not take into account California's normal growth.

But according to Richard D. Doctor, head of the Rand project, potential fuel shortages could be nearly equalized if California businesses and citizens immediately did their best to save by:

Carpooling, which could save up to 50,000 barrels of oil per day if commuter cars carried an average of 2.8 passengers instead of the current estimate of 1.4.

Reducing home thermostats to 68 degrees, which could save up to 100,000 barrels a day of oil or the equivalent.

Implementing various industrial "thermal management programs," which could save 75,000 barrels per day in the short run and even more over a longer period.

Cutting back industrial lighting, both in the number of bulbs and the hours used, which could save a whopping 125,000 barrels of oil per day.

The total possible savings of 350,000 barrels of oil per day is roughly equal to 20 per cent of the state's expected oil needs of two million barrels a day by mid-1974.

Other assorted short-term energy cut-back efforts, such as a speed limit reduction and a ban on outdoor advertising, could add another 100,000 barrels a day in savings.

Doctor cautioned, however there are uncertainties in trying to judge how the public will react to calls for cutbacks. He said therefore "energy conservation alone may be insufficient to deal rapidly with anticipated shortages."

He urged the legislature to take "strong and prompt" action to curb energy use.

Kenyatta and Kenya

Kenya gained its independence from Great Britain 10 years ago today. Its leader since then has been 83-year-old Jomo Kenyatta, shown with Queen Elizabeth during her visit to Kenya last year. The fight for Kenyan independence was not without violence. The terrorist Mau Mau rebellion resulted in brutal slayings of whites and Africans serving whites, and equally brutal retaliation by the white community. The British jailed Kenyatta as the alleged Mau Mau leader. He was freed in 1961. After independence, he became Kenya's first and only President. He is affectionately known as Mzee, meaning "the Old One."

Accurate Quake Prediction Made

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Columbia University team claimed yesterday the first successful prediction of an earthquake.

The quake was predicted last Aug. 1 in the Blue Mountain Lake area of New York. The team concluded that a quake of a Richter magnitude 2.5 to 3 would occur in a few days.

On Aug. 3 a quake did occur. Its magnitude was 2.6.

Paul G. Richards, a Columbia seismologist, told the annual meeting of the American Geophysical Union that the prediction was made on the basis of the controversial theory of "the dilatancy effect."

This effect was first observed several years ago by the Russians in studying data concerning the Tadzhik earthquake. It was noticed that before the quake, a change occurred in the ratio of two kinds motion waves in the earth.

This theory later was applied to a follow-up study of California's San Fernando quake of 1971. James H. Whitcomb of the California Institute of Technology told the convention the dilatancy effect occurred 1,300 days before the quake.

But the Columbia team's effort was the first successful attempt to predict the size and timing of a future quake. The experiment was carried out with seven seismographs in an area with constant "microquakes" whose motion waves could be measured. Motion waves also can be produced for measuring by setting off underground explosions.

Richards said the usefulness of the dilatancy effect method still needs proof. If the method is better developed, he said it would apply to about half of the world's earthquake prone areas.

Along California's San Andreas fault, where catastrophic quakes have occurred, Richards said the method probably would not work. However, in the Los Angeles basin he said it should.

A Scientist Doubts The Pollution Crisis

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A meteorologist startled scientists yesterday at the annual meeting of the American Geophysical Union by arguing that the air of industrialized nations has been getting progressively cleaner since the turn of the century.

Hugh W. Ellsaesser, the meteorologist, said the United States' $100 billion effort to clean up the air is nonsense. The only benefit, if any, he said, would be aesthetic.

The air has always been polluted by particulates from dust, forest fires and man's domestic burning, he said.

But in recent decades, he said, pollution actually has decreased because of a switch to cleaner fuels such as natural gas, the irrigating of arid areas, development of lawns and the paving of highways.

He said this cleansing has more than made up for pollution from autos and factories.

Ellsaesser based his conclusion on an analysis of numerous studies and observations by others through the years.

Ellsaesser is a University of California scientist who works at the Atomic Energy Commission's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory in Berkeley. Currently, he is studying the climatic effects of supersonic aircraft, and believes the effects are negligible.

In the so-called air pollution disasters in London in 1952, Donora, Pa., in 1948 and the Meuse Valley of 1930, Ellsaesser said, no evidence has ever been developed to prove that the hundreds of dead died because of smog's toxic effects. He speculated that some other factor might have been the cause.

The federal Clean Air Amendments of 1970, in which the U.S. committed itself to a $100 billion program to clean up the air, "are not based on logic at any point," Ellsaesser said.

"I don't know anything in air pollution that is worth $100 billion," he said. "The only real argument is aesthetics."

Ellsaesser said the energy crisis should bring a realistic reappraisal of the air pollution program. He said that "in terms of air pollution bureaucracy, we should go back to where we were in 1967."

U.C. Gets Grant To Tap Steam Energy

BERKELEY (UPI) — The University of California announced yesterday it has received the first major funding from the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission for basic research in tapping geothermal energy sources.

The university said it would receive nearly 90 per cent of a $4.7 million research grant to develop electricity from hot dry rock, hot water and brine trapped deep underground.

"Extracting energy from geothermal resources would make a significant contribution to the nation's electricity supplies," said a university spokesman.

The AEC national goal is to generate 20,000 megawatts of electricity from underground sources by 1985 and 80,000 megawatts by the year 2,000. By comparison, California's capacity from all energy sources is presently 37,000 megawatts.

The university said $3 million will go to the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, N.M., operated by UC, to study geothermal technology in hot volcanic rock beds.

The Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory will receive $800,000 to demonstrate generation of electricity from geothermal hot water.

The Lawrence Livermore Laboratory will receive $350,000 for research on use of hot brine from the Salton Sea Trough to generate electrical power.

Steam is the easiest but scarcest form of geothermal energy and only one producing steam installation exists in the U.S. run by Pacific Gas & Electric Co. in California's Sonoma County.

The $3 million grant will go toward drilling a second test hole into hot, dry volcanic rock 7,500 feet into the earth near Los Alamos. Research is underway to determine the feasibility of pumping water into the rock beds and using the heated water to turn turbines, officials said.

Tapping hot brine for production of electricity is "one of the more difficult geothermal technologies known," said Dr. Roger E. Batzel, director of the Livermore laboratory.

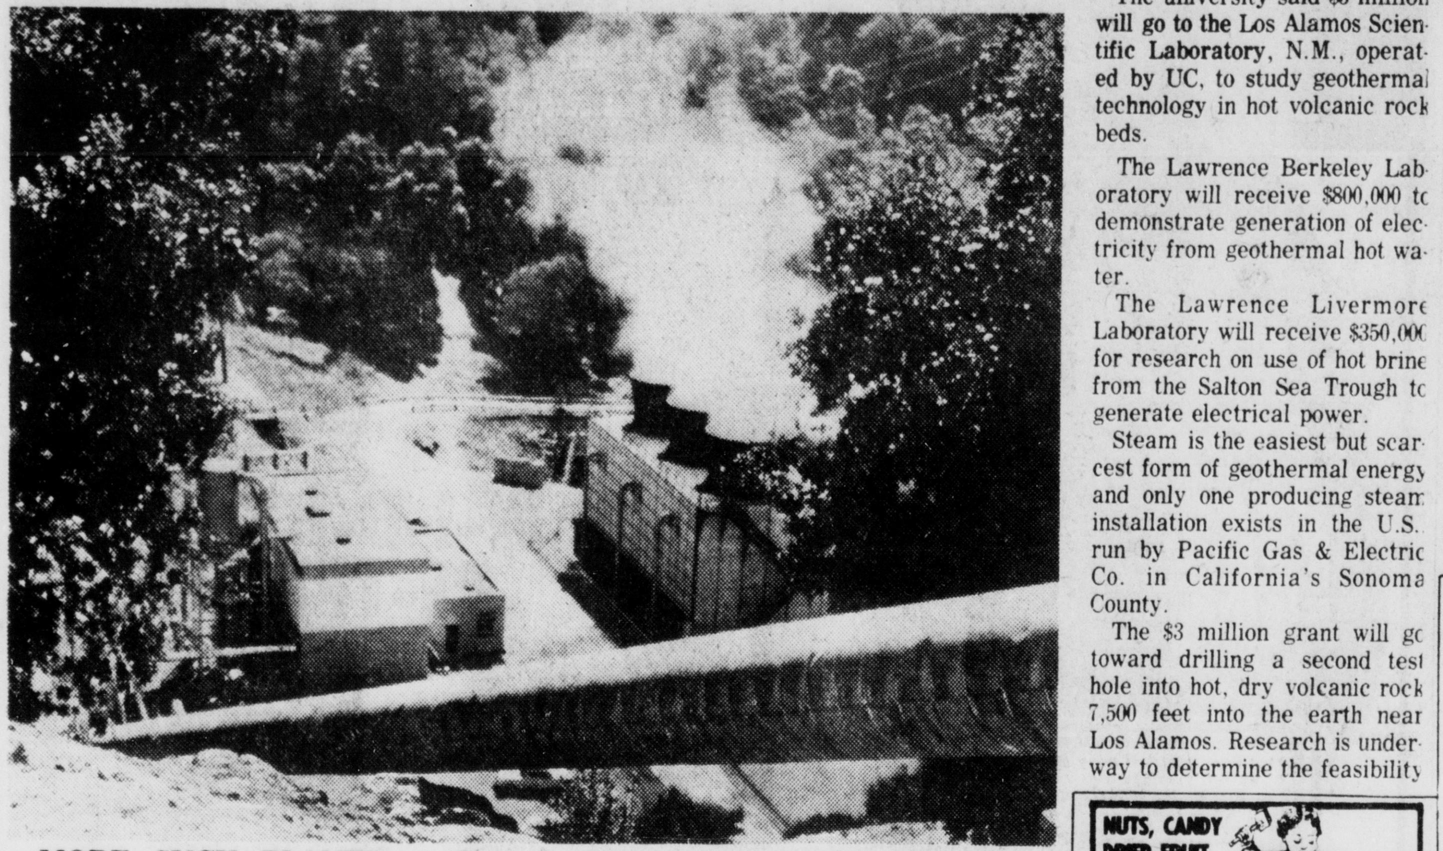
By 1980, he said, scientists hope to demonstrate that the unseparated, corrosive hot brines of the Salton Sea Trough — salts and all — can be put through a turbine with a higher efficiency of energy production than any other geothermal method.

"The method, if successful, can be applied to virtually any of the hot water geothermal deposits in the country," he said. "By bringing into production a vast, available and untapped resource, the technology could have a far-reaching impact on the national energy situation in the 1980s, for example, by giving virtual energy independence to some large population centers such as southern California."

The effort represents the first serious attempt to tap salty hot waters underground, he said, and could produce 60 per cent more energy than steam-only methods.

Scientists must develop a non-corrosive, non-clogging nozzle through which 570-degree bride could be used to turn a turbine that generates electricity. The equipment, he said, must operate under variable conditions without close tolerances of present gas turbines.

The Berkeley laboratory will work on development of low-salt hot water technology, officials said. Scientists will search for reservoir sites in northern Nevada and hope to have production wells and a demonstration plant by 1975.



MORE SUCH PLANTS — The University of California will soon embark on a federally funded program for tapping geothermal energy sources. Presently the only steam generated power plant — a geysers outlet — is located in Sonoma County and run by Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

Tree Lighting To Be Allowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans may use electric lights on Christmas trees inside their homes this season despite the energy crisis, William E. Simon, head of the Nixon administration's new Energy Office said today.

"I do not want American families to lose the festive spirit of Christmas because of the energy crisis. . ." Simon said in a statement.

But he said his office would wage war against other Christmas lighting, including outdoor promotional displays and ornamental lighting of homes and apartments.

He said the ban on such lighting is voluntary at present, but he will enforce it as soon as he receives authority to make the ban compulsory.

Simon suggested families can compensate for electricity used to light home trees by turning off other lights in their homes.

A Japanese Favorite For Entree

Chicken is a staple food throughout the world, utilized by many cultures because of its high nutritional value at relatively low cost. Every variation produces a different flavor, through cooking method or use of spices.

Here's a Japanese favorite utilizing fresh chicken and shrimp, cooked quickly in a broth to maintain fresh taste and texture. All the ingredients are easy to find in your local supermarket, and the cooking time is short.

1 fryer, about 2 lbs. (cut into 2-inch pieces)
½ lb. fresh shrimp
1 lb. bamboo shoots (1 can-whole)
½ lb. (1 package) snow peas (you can buy these frozen in the supermarket)
1 tsp. salt
6 to 8 fresh mushrooms
1 cup chicken stock
4 Tbsp. soy sauce
4 Tbsp. sugar
5 Tbsp. Sherry
Pinch of powdered ginger

Boil the shrimp in a cup of salted water for about one minute; remove the shells and clean. In a saucepan, place the chicken stock, sugar, ginger, soy sauce and sherry. Boil the shrimp in this liquid for a few minutes more. Remove them; boil the snow peas for one minute and remove. Cut the chicken into two-inch pieces and boil in the mixture until done, less than ten minutes. Remove the chicken and sprinkle it with soy sauce.

Cut the top of the bamboo shoots in half lengthwise, the lower parts in small pieces, and boil in the broth along with the mushrooms for about two minutes. Place all ingredients back into the saucepan and boil for several minutes. Serve with rice. Makes four servings.

Treat For Chanukah Season

The traditional Chanukah food, latkes served with applesauce and sour cream will be featured at the Marin Jewish Community Center's Chanukah family celebration Sunday at the center in San Rafael from 3 to 5:30 p.m.

The members share two latke recipes for readers to try:

OLD FASHIONED LATKES

6 med. potatoes
1 small onion
1 tsp. salt
1 egg
3 Tbsp. matzo meal or flour
¼ tsp. baking powder

Wash, pare and grate raw potatoes. Strain out excess water. Add a little of the meal or flour; if there is excess liquid, add more. Grate and add onion. Add salt and egg. Beat well.

Mix in remaining ingredients. Drop by spoonsful into hot oil and brown on each side. Drain on paper towels. Keep latkes warm in oven. Serve with applesauce on top and sour cream. Serves four or five.

BLENDER LATKES

From Alice Braunstein of Terra Linda

Peel, wash and slice six medium potatoes. Place in blender (can be done in two batches by dividing all ingredients.) Add two eggs and one medium onion, diced. Blend, adding sufficient matzo meal to thicken batter. Season with salt and pepper. Add half teaspoon baking powder and blend. Drop by spoonsful and brown as above. Serves four or five.

Cranberry Jelly Makes Ideal Gift

Cranberry jelly in decorative jars makes a welcome gift to the hostess during the holidays. It is simple to make, also.

Almost everyone has some names on the Christmas gift list followed by big question marks. How about something made in your own kitchen, something they can enjoy and share during the traditional holiday repast?

Consider homemade cranberry jelly. It is very simple to make, and once canned in some special holiday jars, can be a timely and delightful, delicious surprise.

To make six half-pints, mix 3½ cups cranberry juice cocktail with one 2¼ ounce package of powdered fruit pectin in a large kettle. Begin to cook, and stir until boiling. At that point, immediately stir in 4 cups of sugar. Then bring the mixture to a full rolling boil, and boil it hard for two minutes, stirring constantly.

Next, remove the mixture from the heat and stir in ¼ cup of lemon juice. Skim off the foam as the jelly begins to cool, and pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. It is a good idea to put a towel or rack under the jars as you pour to avoid possible breakage due to sudden temperature change. A quarter-inch of melted paraffin poured on top makes an excellent seal.

Beef To Braise

Select beef to braise from some of the less expensive, more flavorful cuts. Brisket, shank, bottom round and rump are all excellent choices for moist heat cookery. Simmer at low heat on top of the range or in a slow oven for fork-tender beef.

A British Inspired Holiday Feast

When you prepare Christmas dinner this year, why not try the traditional, Old English style? Your family can dine royally on the same Yuletide fare as Queen Victoria did in 1895.

The entree for the holiday feast sets the mood for the British-inspired repast. The conventional turkey makes way for a savory goose. As a change in typical American holiday diet, you'll find this bird an epicurean delight.

The recipe was made available to readers by the gourmet chef at the Southampton Princess Hotel in Bermuda.

ROAST GOOSE WITH APPLE STUFFING

1 goose (8 to 10 lbs., dressed weight)
2 packages stuffing mix
½ cup diced celery
¼ cup dried parsley flakes
4 tart apples, chopped
1½ teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons poultry seasoning
¼ teaspoon coarse black pepper
½ cup golden raisins
½ cup giblet stock
2 tablespoons minced onions

Wash goose inside and out; pat dry. Cook giblets to make stock. (Use chopped giblets in gravy.) Prepare stuffing mix as directed on package. Add rest of ingredients; mix thoroughly. If stuffing is not moist enough, add a little more stock to taste.

Stuff and truss goose; place on rack in large open roasting pan. Do not add water; do not cover. Roast at 325 degrees for four or four and a half hours until thoroughly done. (If goose is very fat, prick skin lightly after first hour.) Makes eight servings.

Create Your Own Holiday Gifts With Delicious Mini-Fruitcakes

Instead of fighting crowds of shoppers, you can stay home and create delicious holiday treats for those on your Christmas list. Whether for a friend, relative, hostess or an elderly neighbor, these presents are sure to be warmly appreciated.

Fruitcake is one of the most traditional holiday foods. Packed with fruits and nuts, these cakes were originally considered a delicacy that could not be afforded other times of the year. Mini-fruitcakes are ideal for giving. They can be made days ahead of time since storage improves their flavor, and one batch makes four minicakes. Wrap in cellophane or plastic wrap and tie with a ribbon.

MINI-FRUITCAKES

2½ cups chopped walnuts
2 cups (1-pound jar) candied mixed fruits and peels
½ cup raisins or currants
¼ cup chopped candied cherries
1¼ cups unsifted flour
⅓ cup margarine
⅓ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground allspice
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
½ cup orange juice
4 whole candied red cherries

In a large bowl, thoroughly combine walnuts, candied mixed fruits and peels, raisins or currants, candied cherries and one-half cup flour; set aside.

In a small mixer bowl cream margarine with brown sugar until fluffy. Add eggs and beat at medium speed for two minutes, scraping sides of bowl occasionally. Combine remaining three-fourths cup flour, baking powder, cinnamon, allspice and cloves. Stir into margarine mixture, alternately with orange juice.

Pour mixture over nuts and fruits; blend well. Evenly divide mixture among four greased 10-ounce deep pie dishes, mounding center. Smooth surface of each and place one whole candied cherry in center of each.

Bake at 275 degrees for one hour and 15 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking dishes and place on wire racks to cool. When cool, brush with warm corn syrup to glaze. Slices best when wrapped in foil and chilled or stored in a cool place for several days. Makes four cakes.

Let Grocer Make Up Holiday Gift

NEW YORK (UPI) — Want to give a holiday gift of food but don't have the time to brew, bake or concoct it in your kitchen? Let the grocer help.

Many food stores cater to holiday trade by packaging and shipping food gifts on order.

A fruit basket can cost less than you think and makes a magnificent gift. Many grocers will make up a fruit basket to the size and price you specify. During the holidays the baskets usually have grapefruit, navel oranges, tangerines, pears, yellow and red apples, grapes and bananas. Larger baskets also contain cheeses, fancy cookies, candies, nuts, liver pate and crackers.

If you can afford a higher price tag, the basket might contain also canned hams, imported salamis, preserves, marmalades, fruit cakes. They make a nutritious and fine gift everyone in a family can enjoy.

Beef Stew Ideas

Variations on beef stew come in many guises. In France, boeuf bourguignon is made with red wine, onions and mushrooms. Hungarian goulash features paprika flavored beef brisket or stew simmered with potatoes and onions. A Basque style ragout cooks beef stew with onions, carrots, turnips and white wine.

Keeping Eggnog

Eggnog, like other fresh dairy foods, needs to be kept cold and covered at all times. When properly handled, it'll keep for two or three weeks.

CHILD PSYCHOLOGIST Dr. Joan Kelly of Mill Valley has completed a research project on children in the crisis of divorce in Marin with Judith Wallerstein of Belvedere, principle researcher. Dr. Kelly found that small children worry about who will take care of them when the parents divorce.

MARIN WOMEN'S STUDY

On Children And Divorce

By PAT BALMES

How does a child feel and what does he fear when his parents undergo divorce?

Those were among questions two Marin women at Marin Community Health Center sought to answer in their research project on "Children in the Crisis of Divorce."

Originator and principal investigator Judith Wallerstein of Belvedere, a lecturer at the University of California School of Social Welfare, and Dr. Joan Kelly of Mill Valley, clinical child psychologist at Mt. Zion Hospital, hope to share their findings through professional journals, a book for parents, and with judges, psychiatrists, social workers, family counselors and lawyers to help prevent much of a child's pain during divorce of his parents.

Their research on 60 Marin divorcing couples and their 131 children will also be presented at the International Congress of Child Psychiatry and Allied Disciplines in Philadelphia next July. And Judith Wallerstein will give a workshop for lawyers and judges at the national meeting of the Conciliation Courts in Hawaii in May.

Reasoning that during divorce preoccupied parents are less available to their children, the clinicians offered preventive intervention, helping parents assess their child's needs and to respond in a useful way. The counselors hoped, also, to be available as neutrals so the child could express his feelings.

"IF HE IS angry at his father, a child is reluctant to express it. He doesn't want to antagonize his overburdened parents," explained Dr. Kelly at her Mill Valley home, where she is analyzing stacks of research data.

Each family was counseled during the divorce for six weeks with about six interviews with each parent, usually separately, and three or four with each child. The counselors followed up with an interview a year later.

Dr. Kelly learned that the preschooler worries about who will take care of him. He does not understand divorce, only that one parent is absent. She advised that a parent should be specific, saying, "You will live with me."

The youngster should be told that his father will still be his father and will continue to love and visit him, she said.

Regression at this early age is universal. The preschooler may give up bowel control and revert to temper tantrums. At 5 he may have nightmares and want to come into his parent's bed, which should be discouraged, she said.

A mother should not say, "You are the daddy of the house now." The child should be allowed his position as a child and not become a pseudoadult which would hinder his development, she said.

"Putting a child into a father's role can also be hazardous for an adolescent boy at a time when he should be psychologically beginning to disengage himself from his parents," Dr. Kelly said.

WHEN A divorced mother must work full time, her child's recovery is jeopardized because he loses both parents. Parttime work is better, providing her with gratifications that complement her ability to be a good mother, she said.

"Most of the children wished their parents would get back together; the difference is what they did about it," said the psychologist. Six to 10-year-olds were most active in pleading and maneuvering for reconciliation, frequently with one parent's implicit consent.

Almost always one partner wants the divorce and the other does not, she said. The dissenting partner may garner the children to effect a reconciliation, but only both parents can effect a reconciliation. Saying, "Tell your mother I want to move back in' or 'Ask your father to come over for dinner' is too hard on a child,' said the psychologist.

If parents are sure divorce will occur, they should tell their children why in a way appropriate to their age and say there is no possibility for reconciliation.

She suggested telling the children together, using words like, "We are getting a divorce because we have not been able to live happily together; you have seen us fighting. We do not love each other. We think we will be happy apart."

Be honest without brutally derogating the other parent, Dr. Kelly cautioned divorcing parents.

"After all, that parent remains a parent of your child," she said.

The child is the product of both parents, to derogate one is to derogate that part of the child which he identifies with the "bad" parent.

Expressing hatred of a former spouse can backfire; it angers adolescents because they realize that there are aspects of themselves similar to that parent, she said.

"THEORETICALLY, BECAUSE the adolescent is psychologically moving away from intense parental ties anyway, he should be less devastated by the divorce. However he is the one who shows the most obvious pain; he has had to telescope his normal five-year disengagement period into an intense disengagement," Dr. Kelly stated.

Often miserable parents try to reverse roles with adolescents saying, in effect, "Agree with me. Support me in what I want and need. Take care of me."

The adolescents seemed aloof as they tried to disengage themselves, expressing that the divorce was not their problem. They withdrew to protect themselves from anger and disappointment, to take it later in small doses, so that they could continue functioning. A year later these adolescents who had been aloof from their parents were able to reach out and sympathize, Dr. Kelly said.

She does not advocate waiting to divorce until the children become adolescents. The researchers were astounded at the violence reported between parents during their marriage.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Mother Wonders If Teachers Really Trade Grades For Sex

DEAR HELEN:

My daughter, who is away at college, sent me two newspaper clippings.

One revealed that several women students were accusing college instructors of the "A for a lay" policy, which means they bribe girls into sexual relations —and those who don't succumb find the courses suddenly so difficult that their grades plummet.

The other article said some 40 professors at one state university admitted having sex with girl students.

She ended her letter, "You'll be happy to know I'm not on the honors list this semester!" Always the humorist! But . . .

Is it possible that a "loose" girl could make it through college without any brains at all? Will a college "A" come to be the "Scarlet Letter" of the 1970s? — WORRIED MOM

DEAR MOM:

College diplomas on the "lay-away" plan? Stop worrying!

It's true that certain instructors aren't exactly immune to women students, and vice versa —and a few might ease up on grades for favors rendered — but the majority of professors wouldn't jeopardize their jobs for a passing fanny, er, I mean fancy. —H.

DEAR HELEN:

Your recent item about a club for "shy ones" prompts me to tell you about International Toastmistress Clubs.

A former shy member says she still has "butterflies" when she faces an audience, but since her Toastmistress training, they fly in formation.

Toastmasters offers a similar program of communication and leadership training for males.

Friendliness and acceptance are the keynotes at these clubs, and shy ones are particularly welcomed. — M.M.

READERS ALL:

As a former Toastmistress, I can vouch for the club's effectiveness and real help. Information about the branch nearest you can be obtained from ITC Headquarters, 9068 East Firestone Blvd., Suite 2, Downey, California, 90241. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

The letter from "Alice's Mother" in a recent column was a fine example of the kind of ignorance we doctors see every day. She was sure her virgin daughter couldn't have an "internal examination."

My stock answer is that a girl who can't comfortably undergo a doctor's vaginal examination stands a good chance of turning the honeymoon into a disaster. After all, just how virginal should a girl be on her wedding night? Namely, enough to make her point, if this is important, but not enough to ruin the evening.

Actually out of literally thousands of girls I have examined, I recall only one or two who couldn't be examined without damage to their "virginity."

Many come equipped with no hymen to speak of in the first place, and once in a while I run across the pregnant "virgin," which just goes to show how far a "nice" girl will go in making out. — COLLEGE PHYSICIAN

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? A fun idea? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Tips On Saving Refrigerator Energy Given

Tips to save energy in use of the refrigerator are offered by the State Department of Consumer Affairs.

Keep the refrigerator full to use fully the space that is refrigerated, advises John Kehoe, director. But allow enough space for air circulation, so the air flow is not interrupted forcing the refrigerator fan to overwork.

Avoid constant door opening by removing or storing several items at once. Planning ahead what you want to take out before opening the refrigerator door will save energy.

Maintain a temperature of 37 to 40 degrees in the refrigerator to keep a uniform, steady operation. To test the temperature insert an outdoor thermometer on the middle shelf.

If you go away on vacation, raise the temperature to 40 to 45 degrees. When the refrigerator door is not opened, the box will keep the temperature constant. Leaving a few milk cartons filled with water in the refrigerator while you're away helps to keep its temperature constant and uses less energy.

Avoid putting several warm dishes into the refrigerator at once. One doesn't change the temperature much, but several will. Cool the foods first.

Check the refrigerator door seals by placing a paper towel half in and half outside the door, shut the door and pull the paper out. If there is resistance, the seal is tight. If not, consider replacing the seal.

Frost thicker than a quarter inch acts as an insulator, forcing the refrigerator motor to work harder. Defrost frequently for a more even cold temperature.

DENISE FERRIS
January bride

Engagement Of Denise Ferris Told

Mr. and Mrs. John Ferris announce the engagement of their daughter, Denise Ferris, to Brad Friedlander, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Friedlander. All are residents of Novato.

Denise is the sister of Gary, Darryl and Wesley Ferris, all of Novato, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Ayres of Grass Valley and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ferris of Mooreland, Okla. She will be graduated in January from Novato High School. The future bride is employed at One Hour Martinizing in Novato.

Brad is the brother of Gary, Glenn and Barbara Friedlander, all of Novato. A. S. Friedlander of Quebec, Canada is his grandfather. He was graduated from Novato High School and College of Marin.

Bride's Brother

The bride's brother, Tom Crawford, was incorrectly listed as the brother of the bridegroom in the wedding story of Janice Crawford and Charles Rolf in Monday's Independent-Journal.

Marin Women Make Study Of Divorce And Children

The violence was no respecter of social class or education.

"To hold that kind of marriage together 'for the sake of the children' is potentially devastating to their emotional development," she said.

After divorce conflicts about money and children can continue, joined by visitation hassles. One parent may lock up the child as a possession not to be shared, such as when a wife makes plans for a child for a time she knows his father had planned to visit.

"We try to resolve visitation hassles because they always involve the kids. If the court rules, there will be a rigid visiting schedule. The child must visit when he might rather go to a slumber party. It is better for parents to work out a flexible schedule.

"Understand that children have needs apart from the parents' needs. Make it possible for the child to function at school and among peers so his development is not interfered with," she advised.

While Dr. Kelly does not advocate a rigid schedule, she believes the child should know when he will see his father so he can structure his life. Taking a child out for a hamburger on a week night is a very nice way to see him, she said.

SHE ADDED that a child comes under too much pressure when, on returning from a visit with his father, his mother asks spying questions or makes "catty" remarks about the father's girlfriend. She will make her child feel badly about his attachment to his father and alienate him. Both sexes are guilty of this, she said.

According to Judith Wallerstein most of Marin fathers stay in contact with their children and continue a family structure after divorce, unlike reports she has had from the East that many fathers move away.

In Marin County the divorce rate is higher than one in four marriages, one of the highest in the United States, which has the world's highest divorce rate. In 1970, per 1,000 men, women and children, there were 3.5 divorces in the U.S., 4.2 in California and 5.7 in Marin. The rate has gone up since, according to Dr. Kelly.

"We are neither pro nor anti divorce. Divorce is here to stay. We have a lot of very bad marriages in our society; people who should not have married and have begun to realize it. We want to make the divorce experience as untraumatic as possible for their children," the researcher said.

Their research project was unique because the information comes from normal population instead of psychiatrists' patients, the researchers believe.

During the project the researchers gave free counseling to the couples and children, and the counseling service continues to be available to them.

Funding came from the Zellerbach Family Fund, and Marin Community Mental Health Center provided facilities and staff, including child psychologist Dr. Angela Homme and psychiatric social workers Doris Juvenal, Susannah Roy and Janet West.

Students To Sell Holiday Greens, Holly Saturday

Children of the Park School in Mill Valley will sell Christmas greens and holly from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at the school.

They hope to raise funds to assist with improvements on the school playground. They have been working to cut greens at their own homes and those of neighbors and friends, and will spend some time Friday bundling the greens and attaching hand made cards.

During the sale on Saturday, the school children will sing carols to guitar accompaniment.

The activity is endorsed by the Park School Parent-Teacher Association. Mrs. Alan Scott is chairman, and Mrs. Gerald Freedman, assistant.

Holiday Movie Will Be Shown

A holiday movie, "Why The Chimes Rang," produced by parents and children of the Sausalito Presbyterian Church, will have its first showing at 4:30 p.m. Sunday at the church on Bulkley Avenue, Sausalito.

A family Christmas party, including refreshments and tree trimming, will follow the film. The public is invited to attend.

The actors are all Marin children under 14 years of age. Mrs. Douglas Fancher and Mrs. Eugene Nelson directed the film, with Mrs. Nelson and Douglas Fancher doing the camera work. Paula Fancher also wrote the script, adapting a short story by Robert Alden.

How To Save Appliance Service Calls

Save yourself unnecessary service calls on laundry appliances by first making some checks yourself, suggests Robert Payne, general service manager for a national appliance manufacturer.

Payne suggests using the checklist in the instruction booklets of major appliances. Often the washer or dryer lid is not completely closed and machine does not operate. The timer dial should be pulled out, pushed or advanced as per booklet instruction.

Perhaps the appliance is not plugged into a live outlet. Check by plugging a radio or lamp into the socket to check it. Cause of a dead outlet, Payne said, could be a line power failure, a burned out fuse or a tripped circuit breaker.

If an automatic washer stops in mid-cycle, it could be that an unbalanced load has tripped the unbalance switch during a spin. The load should be redistributed and the controls reset, if so, he said.

Shopping Tips For Diamonds

By United Press International

Some fashion tips from Tiffany for the Santa's helper contemplating a gift of a diamond.

There are 58 tiny facets on the diamond. Each should be thought of as mirrors. The cutter must place each of these facets in exact geometric relation to one another in order to achieve maximum fire and brilliance.

Few diamonds are properly or perfectly cut. The vast majority are what is called "spread." This means that the cutter has compromised the ideal proportions and has cut the stone to weigh more than it should.

The word carat is derived from the Carob tree, the seeds of which were so uniform in weight that they became the standard for measuring the weight of gems in ancient India.

One one-hundredth of a carat is referred to as a point. Tiffany's smallest diamond ring, 15 points, would be 0.15 of a carat.

The size of a diamond alone is almost meaningless unless you take into account the other qualities: cut, color, clarity.

A diamond is said to be flawless if no inclusions can be seen when the diamond is magnified 10 times by the usual jeweler's loupe.

Diamonds occur, by rare accident of nature, in pink, green, red, blue. More frequently they appear in yellow and brown. But the traditional engagement diamond is a clear, dew-drop white. Although these appear colorless to the untrained eye, the majority contain varying tints. The more colorless the diamond, the greater the rarity and value.

Although the ancient Egyptians wore a bridal ring on the third finger, left hand, it was not until the 15th century that the diamond was first recorded as a bridal jewel.

Bleak Days Are Seen For Family

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Item: father of five skips and starts a new nest with his mistress and their child 3,000 miles away. Without benefit of divorce, without any new marriage license.

Item: Mother of nine leaves home, taking two young children under five. To bill and coo in a new nest with her lover. No divorce, no new marriage.

Add to these items: People breaking up marriages and families legally, through divorce. Approximately four of every 10 couples married in 1973 will not live happily ever after. They will divorce after, on the average, seven years of conjugal bliss and bitterness.

Marriage dissolution could be the number one subject on the family front in 1974 and perhaps the number one subject of the decade.

That point was made by numerous authorities launching new U.S. Senate subcommittee hearings on "American Families: Trends and Pressures." The hearings, under the chairmanship of Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., will move to the front burner in 1974.

THE INSTITUTION of legalized marriage, what's more, is being questioned by young persons. Cohabitating without a marriage license is a growing trend on college campuses — so much so that social scientists at Cornell University's College of Human Ecology now put out a Cohabitation Research Newsletter, reporting on studies on that subject at colleges nationwide.

Research in this area cannot be as exacting as research in physics. But it is evident that many students on the trial marriage trail are themselves progeny of the soured marriages of their parents. They have seen the toll of marriage on the rocks, they have tasted its bitter harvest — bickering, hurt and hurt and hate. They are not going to seal a conjugal deal themselves unless they can be reasonably sure it will work out. In the interim there is cohabitation on campus or off. It stems from a search for an emotional mooring and mistrust of marriage.

In the year ahead, inflation and the energy crisis will affect families that don't break up. The Census Bureau estimates there are 46.3 million husband-wife families and 8.1 million of some other type. The latter category includes 6.6 million families headed by a female.

THE CENSUS Bureau defines a family as a group of two or more related persons who live together in a house or apartment. Two out of every three of the husband-wife families have children or a relative living with them.

Inflation continuing will mean families having increasing difficulty even robbing Peter to pay Paul. It will mean further taking in of the belt and it will mean more and more mothers out of the home working to help pay the bills. Most mothers who work are helping pay bills and otherwise provide for their families, including in many cases, dependent parents.

Federal agencies estimate over 40 per cent of all wives are in the labor force. Among those with children under six years of age, 30 per cent are working outside the home — making adequate daycare facilities a number one priority on the family front again in the year 1974 and every year thereafter until enough are established.

The energy crisis, cramping vacation and other pleasure driving, may inject more togetherness on homefronts everywhere — especially on weekends. For families accustomed to being on wheels much of the time, for family members used to going separate and distant ways, the new togetherness may be a plus or a minus. Either it will make the family stronger — discovering one another's company as something pleasant. Or — it will make the family weaker, exposing sources of friction and leading to arguments and, perhaps, eventual breakdown of communication.

THE ENERGY crisis carries the seeds of financial disaster for some families. If a fuel-dependent industry must shut down, paychecks stop. In an energy-dependent society such as America has become, there are solid signs many paychecks will be disrupted in the new year.

Dr. Urie Bronfenbrenner, a professor of human development and family studies, College of Human Ecology, Cornell University, doesn't see much to cheer about on the family front. He told the subcommittee on children and youth:

"The situation is especially critical for the families of black Americans. Of all black children, over half (53 per cent) live in families below the poverty line; the corresponding figure for white is 11 per cent.

"Of all black children, almost half (44 per cent) have mothers who are in the labor force. The corresponding figure for whites is about a quarter — 26 per cent.

"Of all black children, over 30 per cent live in single-parent families; the corresponding figure for whites is seven per cent.

"The census does not provide comparable information for other groups living under duress, such as American Indians, Mexican Americans, whites living in Appalachia and so on. If and when such data become available, they are likely to show similar trends."

ALL ISN'T rosy with intact families, the well-off economically ones — black or white. Dr. Bronfenbrenner, considered by his peers the nation's number one authority on the family, said:

"Among these families, research shows parents are spending less time in activity with their children." A trend is to children's hotels, places where well-off parents may park their children when they want a week in the sun or a month at sea.

The authority sees the family needing all kinds of help — from the neighborhood, from the world of work, and from social and political institutions at the local, state and national level.

"The family," he said, "is the most humane, efficient and economical system for 'making human beings' known to man."

Bennett Loses Round Over Nixon's State Income Tax

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state tax board, in a 2-to-1 politically partisan action, refused yesterday to find that President Nixon owes past California income taxes.

"So now we have a coverup in the state of California, as well," shouted Democratic board member William M. Bennett in a reference to the Watergate scandal.

After the heated, volatile meeting in jampacked, tiny chambers, Bennett of Kentfield told Republican board chairman Houston I. Flournoy: "If we can't settle it here, let's go outside and settle it."

Martin Huff, the board's executive officer, implied to newsmen that his staff was investigating Nixon's tax status. But he declined to report that publicly to the board, a position that angered Bennett.

"We look at every case, believe me, and our record shows that," Huff told persistent reporters after the meeting.

Nixon, a native Californian who maintains a voting residence and seaside villa at San Clemente, has not paid state income taxes since becoming President, the White House disclosed Saturday.

The White House said the decision not to pay California taxes was based on state law which differentiates between a domicile, which is required for voting, and a citizen resident, who is liable for income taxes.

"This is a case of tax evasion involving Richard Milhous Nixon," declared Bennett, an outspoken liberal who has built a reputation as a consumer advocate.

Insisting "the President should be treated like every other taxpayer," Bennett moved that the State Franchise Tax Board file a "notice of assessment."

Such a notice would have been a declaration that Nixon owed past California income taxes. The President would have been entitled to a series of appeals — to the Franchise Tax Board, then to the Board of Equalization which Bennett chairs and ultimately to the courts.

But there was no second to Bennett's motion, and it was ruled dead by Flournoy, state controller who is a candidate for the 1974 GOP gubernatorial nomination.

The third board member is state Finance Director Verne Orr, a political appointee of Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"It's hypocritical and it's favorite treatment," shouted Bennett when the board sided against him as expected.

"If there's a liability, I'm confident the taxes will be paid," responded an angry Flournoy.

"Let the record show two Republican votes for Richard Milhous Nixon," continued Bennett.

"You's out of order," insisted Fournoy.

"If you don't like it, Mr. Chairman, you know what you can do about it," declared Bennett, his face flushed.

"Order that man to make an investigation," demanded Bennett, pointing at Huff.

"You have no knowledge what our staff has done or not done," replied the normally mild mannered Huff.

Orr noted Huff never previously had discussed publicly who he was investigating. He asked Huff whether there was "any particular reason why you should now."

"Yes," insisted a woman from the audience.

Bennett moved that the meeting be adjourned, packed his papers and stalked out.

"First let me lick my wounds," Bennett told newsmen when asked whether he intended to continue his assault on Nixon's tax status.

Bennett's term on the Franchise Tax Board ends at the end of this month. "It's up to them," he said, referring to the two GOP members. "They can ignore it or whatever."

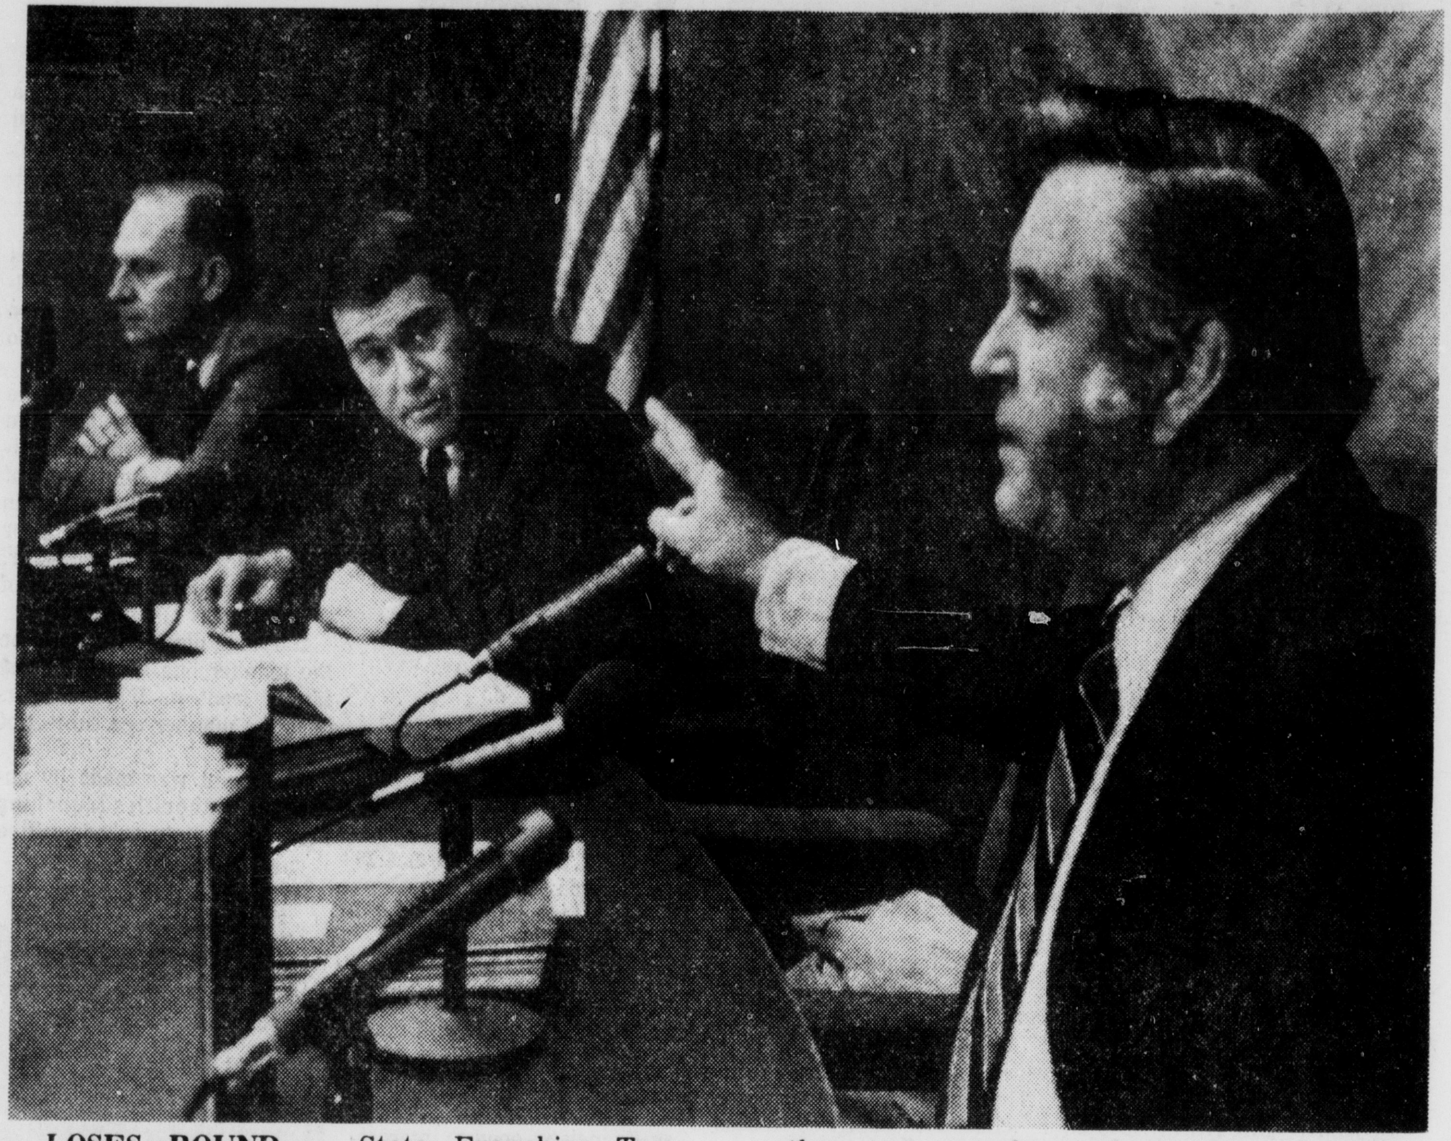
At the start of the discussion, Flournoy read a prepared statement saying:

"The Franchise Tax Board has traditionally operated free of any political interference. As chairman, Idefinitely intend to see that it continues to be the practice.

"It should also be noted that under law and long-standing policy, no unauthorized disclosure will be made as to whether or not a person has filed a tax return, or whether a tax investigation is being conducted on an individual . . .

"The President will be treated in all respects like everyone else. He is subject to the same requirements and liabilities, and is entitled to the same rights of confidentiality and fairness."

Strongly hinting the Nixon case was being probed, Flournoy concluded: "Knowing the efficiency of the staff and operating procedures, I think it should be quite obvious that it has been on top of this entire situation without the need for specific directions from the board."



LOSES ROUND — State Franchise Tax Board member William Bennett (right) of Kentfield, a Democrat, demanded but lost a round yesterday that the board file a "notice of assessment" against President Nixon. The other two members of the board, State Finance Director Vern Orr (left) and State Controller Houston Flournoy (center), refused to go along and the motion died of a second. (UPI Telephoto)

Marin Cagers Whip Laney

OAKLAND — College of Marin took hundreds of steps backward and one giant step forward last night, getting back on defense to shut off Laney College's fast break for a 66-45 non-league basketball victory.

"It was a super team effort," proclaimed coach John Panagakis. "I think they (Laney) only got one fast break bucket on us the entire game. I can't remember Laney being held to 45 points."

Both teams were undefeated entering the game, and Marin extended its 1973 record to 7-0 and was able to "get back" for last year's 85-67 loss. The Eagles are 6-1.

Guard Bill Donnellan scored 21 points to lead Marin, and Wil Garner dropped in 17.

"Donnellan played a fantastic game — he was all over the court," said Panagakis. "So was Leonard Smith," now a forward with Jared McFerrin starting at guard.

"Wil and Harry Norman did a great job on the boards — and they must've blocked 10 shots between them. When they got into foul trouble, John Channell came off the bench, alternating with them, and did a fine job."

Marin held a 23-17 lead at halftime, saw it dwindle to one point then hit "two or three in a row" to pull ahead for good. The Tars maintained a lead of eight or 10 points until about five minutes remained, when "they (Laney) started coming after us, and we got some longpass layups because they overplayed. The game turned physical right at the end, but the kids kept their poise," Panagakis said.

Marin committed only five fouls the first half. "That was a key factor — we kept them off the line."

Marin — Smith 3-2-8, McFerrin 3-2-8, Norman 2-0-4, Garner 8-1-17, Donnellan 8-5-21, Channell 2-4-8. Totals: 26-14-66.

Laney — L. Williams 4-6-14, Robinson 1-0-2, S. Williams 7-0-14, Nikcevich 1-0-2, Myles 2-1-5, Letcher 2-0-4, Kidd, 1-2-4. Totals: 18-9-45.

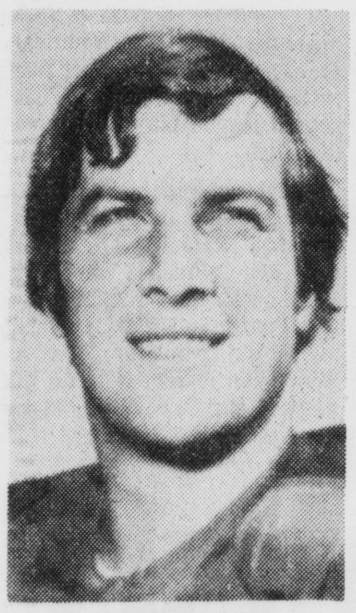
Sniadecki Proud Of The Defense

Jim Sniadecki replaced Frank Nunley as middle linebacker for the 49ers midway through this season and he replaced him again last night. This time it was at the 49er Goal Rushers dinner at New Joe's in Corte Madera.



JIM SNIADECKI

Sniadecki didn't know why Nunley couldn't make it, and was asked to fill in for him only two hours before the start of the meeting via a rush telephone call from Dick Berg, 49er promotions director. Maybe Nunley was busy talking to his lawyer, since he's one of six 49ers involved in a lawsuit against their agent because of real estate losses amounting to $233,000.

There was a turnout of 50 faithful followers, a surprisingly large number considering the plight of the 49ers this year. Sniadecki waded through the questions very well, but as quarterback for the defense, didn't have anything to be ashamed about in the team's 16-10 loss Sunday to the New Orleans Saints.

"My job is defense," said the man who calls the defensive signals for the 49ers, "and believe it or not, we had one of our best defensive games of the season." The offense is another question and it looked just as bad to Sniadecki from the sidelines as it did to the fans at home in front of their television sets.

SNIADECKI WAS somewhat irritated by the tone of the questioning, since by now the questions are starting to hurt, but he kept his cool. Questioners wanted to know what was wrong with the offensive line, why there were not any O. J. Simpsons on the team, and was there disharmony among the players.

At one point he said: "Sometimes you people think you know too much about football. It's a complicated thing. It really boggles my mind."

Sniadecki, at 220 pounds, is one of the smallest middle linebackers in the National Football League. Before he replaced Nunley, most of his work had been at outside linebacker, replacing injured starters. When the 49ers drafted Willie Harper in the second round at the last draft, speculation was that right side linebacker Skip Vanderbundt would be moved to the middle and Harper would take Vanderbundt's spot. Instead, head coach Dick Nolan replaced Nunley with Sniadecki and Harper ended up in the outside linebacker position replacing an injured Vanderbundt.

"Before the Atlanta game, I had little experience in the middle," Jim said. "I didn't envision myself as a middle linebacker." But that's all changed now.

ABOUT THE TEAM, Sniadecki said, "Football is a team effort. If enough of us feel bad about it (a losing season). we'll be back winning next year."

Another question came asking if the players were close to each other. "Maybe this year we are not as close, and you have to be close as a

Court Questions Cedeno About Shooting

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — Houston Astros centerfielder Cesar Cedeno was questioned today in criminal court here on his role in the fatal shooting early Tuesday of a 19-year-old girl in a local motel room.

Judge Socrates Diaz Curiel began questioning the young ballplayer about 9:50 a.m. EST after he was taken to the 4th Circuit Court from police headquarters where he had been held since he turned himself in yesterday morning.

Cedeno, 22, was charged with voluntary manslaughter, the equivalent of second degree murder in the United States.

But District Attorney Maximo Henriquez Saladin, who filed the charge, indicated it was simply a formality.

A police report issued after informal questioning of the baseball star said, "It has not been possible to fix any blame on Cesar Cedeno." The police said, however, the case was submitted to the courts to get a full hearing.

Cedeno, one of the best young players in baseball, was arrested yesterday morning and charged with "voluntary manslaughter." Legal experts in San Juan said it was similar to the charge of second degree murder in the United States.

Police said Cedeno, a native of the Dominican Republic, spent the night at the Ensanche La Fe Prison, two blocks from Quisqueya Stadium, the scene of his early exploits as a baseball player.

The examining magistrate said he would also question an unidentified witness to the shooting today before winding up the official interrogation—the first step in Dominican judicial proceedings.

Legal experts said the magistrate would then hand the case over to a police court judge with the authority to release Cedeno on bail.

An employe at the Keko Motel told police Cedeno and Altagracia checked into a bungalow early Tuesday and asked for two bottles of beer. He reported hearing a shot about 10 minutes later.

He said Cedeno called the motel office to report the shooting and then left in a sports car. The baseball star returned with his father later and handed himself over to police.

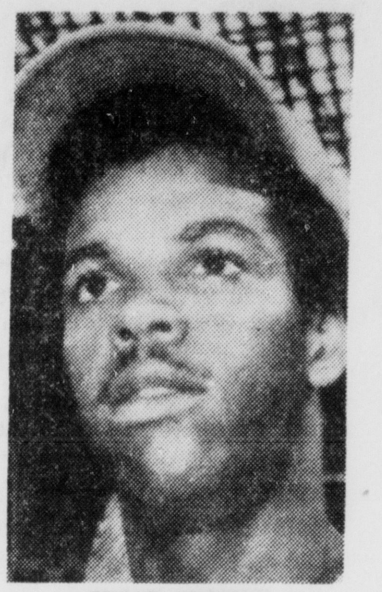
A police colonel said Cedeno told authorities the girl had picked up his .38 caliber pistol to admire it and the weapon went off when Cedeno tried to get it away from her.

John W. Mullen, the Astros' assistant general manager, met with Cedeno at a Santo Domingo police station and quoted the star as saying the gun went off accidentally.

"The word is that this was an accident—that's what Cedeno said," Mullen reported. "He had a gun. He has a permit for it. She asked to see it. He said no. And she tried to wrestle it away from him and it went off."

But Doug Rader, one of his Houston teammates, has this to say about Cedeno's present situation:

"Just because he's a ballplayer doesn't mean he's guilty. If he was Joe Blow he'd get the benefit of the doubt. Why shouldn't he get the same benefit as Cesar Cedeno? Sometimes when something sensational happens to someone in the public eye, people automatically feel he's guilty. I say Cesar Cedeno is a human being. More than that, he's a good person. Like anyone else, he should get the benefit of the doubt until proven guilty."



CESAR CEDENO
Role probed

Warriors Ignore Injuries To Win

OAKLAND (UPI) — The more guys who are hurt, the better the Golden State Warriors seem to play.

With Rick Barry out with an ankle sprain, Cazzie Russell hit a career high 49 points last night to lead Golden State past the Houston Rockets 114-107.

Since Los Angeles lost again, the win shoved the Warriors 1 ½ games ahead in the Pacific Division with a 16-9 record.

Russell hit 22-of-43 from the floor to top his previous high of 46, made earlier this season. It was his fourth 40-point or better performance and came on the heels of a 50-point outburst by Barry in the previous game Saturday night as the Warriors dumped the Lakers. The other forward, Clyde Lee, has been sidelined for several weeks.

"I felt really good shooting the ball," a happy Russell said, "and the guys kept passing to me. I might have felt I had to work a little harder with Rick out but I didn't start out looking for points."

Russell knows that he has to shoot well when he plays for the Warriors since defense is not his specialty.

"Let's face it," he said. "I have to score to help our club. It's no secret that I'm a high percentage shooter so if I don't hit, I'm not helping the club."

Rookie Derrek Dickey played 39 minutes and also was outstanding as he scored 10 points and hauled in 19 rebounds.

Since Nate Thurmond got 16 rebounds, it showed that the Warriors pretty well controlled the boards.

Mike Newlin led the Rockets with 26.

Namath Eyes New League; Trade Denied

NEW YORK (UPI) — Will Joe Namath be playing in the NFL next year and if he is, will he be playing with the New York Jets?

Neither Namath nor the Jets is saying but his contract runs out at the end of this season and his lawyer, Jimmy Walsh, admits he's looking at the new World Football League.

The speculation about the possibility of Namath leaving the Jets popped up yesterday after Namath's lawyer, Jimmy Walsh, said that Namath at age 30 has reached a "minor crossroads."

The spokesman also said the Jets have had no discussions with any team about the possibility of trading Namath.

The key point in the crossroads is the foundation of the World Football League, which presumably is willing to offer Namath something like the $2 million contract that persuaded Bobby Hull to jump from the National Hockey League to the World Hockey Association.

It's not just a coincidence that Gary Davidson, the man who founded the American Basketball Association and the WHA, is also starting up the new World Football League.

Jets' owner Phil Iselin might decide that it would be better to trade Namath than to get in a bidding war with him against Davidson's league

Namath is currently concluding a two-year contract that is estimated at a half million dollars or $250,000 per year. But Namath has been injured so often that he's averaged only seven games a season in the last four seasons.

Walsh admitted that none of the WFL teams has made any "definite offers" for Namath but he said that the league has expressed "a definite interest" in getting Namath's services.

REDWOOD, MARIN 'CATS

2 Teams Travel To Cage Tourneys

While five Marin basketball teams are rekindling old rivalries with their friends and neighbors in the Drake Pirate Classic, Redwood and Marin Catholic high schools will be traveling to out-of-town tournaments beginning tomorrow.

Redwood will face Liberty of Brentwood at 4 p.m. in the Yuba City Tournament, while Marin Catholic will play Analy of Sebastopol at 5 p.m. in the Rose City Tournament in Santa Rosa.

Success at Yuba City is almost force of habit for Redwood, which has won three championships, two second-place trophies and one consolation title in seven years.

To win this year, the Giants probably will have to get past Livermore, the 10th-ranked team in the East Bay, in the second round. The Redwood-Liberty winner will face the Livermore-Marysville winner at 7 p.m. Friday. Also in the tourney are Mira Loma of Sacramento, Washington of Fremont, Vacaville and Yuba City.

Marin Catholic (2-2) faces a tough opening-round test in undefeated Analy of Sebastopol, champion of the Cloverdale Tournament, which boasts a front line measuring 6-foot-6, 6-6 and 6-4.

A victory would put the Wildcats in against the winner of Thursday's game between St. Patrick's of Vallejo and Montgomery of Santa Rosa on Friday at 8 p.m. Montgomery has victories over San Francisco powers St. Ignatius and Lowell.

In the other bracket are perennially tough Hayward, Crusader Classic Champion Riordan of San Francisco, Santa Rosa and Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa.

Back home, the Drake tournament was scheduled to begin today with two games — Novato vs. Ells of Richmond at 5 p.m. and Petaluma vs. San Rafael at 6:30 p.m. Tomorrow's matchups are San Marin vs. Terra Linda, 5 p.m., and Napa vs. Drake, 6:30 p.m.

The eighth Marin County Athletic League team, Tamalpais, was to play a non-tournament game against visiting Lincoln of San Francisco at 3:30 p.m. today.

Webster To Step Down As Giants Grid Coach

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Alex Webster, saying "I feel like Wellington Mara is like a father to me," announced today that he's resigning as coach of the New York Giants after the National Football League season's final game Sunday against the Minnesota Vikings.

Webster, who took over as coach of the team the week before its regular-season opener in 1969, said he told Mara, the Giants owner, that he was quitting before Monday night's nationally-televised 40-6 loss to the Los Angeles Rams.

He said he contacted Mara in Los Angeles for a "long discussion" and, he added, "the way our season has gone, it's time for a change."

The Giants have a 2-10-1 record this season after winning all six of their exhibition games when they were being touted by their fans as a likely playoff contender. They have lost 10 of their last 11 games, beating only the St. Louis Cardinals.

Under Webster, the Giants have a five-year record of 29-39-1.

Seals Still Can't Capture Road Victory

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — The California Golden Seals still have won only once on the road, but they seem to be coming closer to victory.

The New York Islanders rallied for a 6-3 victory over the Seals last night to snap a four-game losing streak but the game was a lot closer than the score indicated.

Hilliard Graves of the Seals was sent off for tripping Ed Westfall at 4:23 of the third period to give New York a man advantage. Then Lorne Henning won a faceoff and passed back to Denis Potvin, whose shot from the point was put in by Billy Harris on the rebound to make it 4-3.

Bob Nystrom then scored into an empty net with 22 seconds to play and 16 seconds later Potvin added his seventh goal after California had returned goaltender Bob Champoux.

Defenseman Bert Marshall's first goal of the season gave the Islanders an early lead at 3:36 of the first period but scores by Ivan Boldirev and Bob Stewart put California on top at the end of the session.

Ralph Stewart was set up outside the crease for his ninth goal early in the second period but Craig Patrick pushed California in front again five minutes later.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Some Tips About Winter Storage

In winter, there are really only two things you can do with a boat. You can get rid of it, or be prepared to give it the best winter storage conditions possible.

Based on the first impulse, many people north of the Gulf Coast, where these circumstances do not apply, actually sell their boats when winter comes. It's always a good time for a buyer to pick up a bargain.

But most of us just do the best we can to beat another winter. There's no question that boat owners are plagued by boat storage problems. No other topic brings as many questions.

Q. Is it okay to leave my fiber glass boat inside our summer cabin ?

A. It's a good place. There's one thing you should watch out for, however. Don't leave the boat lying on its side as it might develop a distortion and perform poorly next year. Set it up on the keel. Provide support for it at stem and stern, and at each side to keep it upright. I use old cushions and cartons, and I've stored a boat this way for about 10 years without trouble.

Q. I can buy a boat that's 40 years old and has been in salt water on the Maine coast all of its life. It looks like a tremendous bargain. How about it?

A. It could be a bargain, but get it out of the water before you buy. Look at the bottom, or, better still, get an expert to look at it. Boats in salt water do not rot very quickly, the salt is a preservative but they do suffer borer damage. If you take the boat into fresh water it could go to pieces quickly unless thorough rot preventive measures are taken.

Q. I left our life saving cushions outside for a month this fall. They were soggy. Will they be all right for next summer if they dry out?

A. They'll be great to support your boat, as suggested earlier, but please don't trust your life to them. Even when new, cushions aren't the best life saving device. Try out one of the dried cushions, and I'll bet it gets soggy again very quickly.

Q. Is it too late to paint a wooden boat before putting it in storage?

A. If it's a small one, and is kept indoors where the temperature can be kept up and the humidity down. To paint a boat that is stored outside in December in southern Wisconsin is asking for trouble. It's usually much too cold for the paint to flow, and too damp for it to stick well. Much farther south or west, you would not have these problems.

Q. How can I make sure that my new fiber glass boat won't fade? It's a gorgeous chartreuse.

A. Just keep it out of the sun. This practice is important with any plastic boat stored outside during the winter. Keep a cover over it. Often the pigments fade unevenly.

Q. My plastic windshield became scratched and cloudy last winter while the boat was in a large storage building. How should I protect the new one?

A. Above all cover the windshield with a plastic cloth or canvas cover to keep dirt, grit and grime off it. Then in the spring be very careful how you wash it. Use lots of detergent and your bare hands to remove any abrasive grit. Windshields scratch very easily.

St. Vincent (4-3) held a 35-28 third quarter lead over the Broncos, but were able to convert just one field goal out of 13 attempts in the final quarter to fall behind.

HOCKEY ROUNDUP

Minnesota Has Productive Duo

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Bill Goldsworthy and Dennis Hextall have become a powerful offensive force for the Minnesota North Stars and last night they started and finished their job on the Los Angeles Kings early.

Bill Goldsworthy scored three goals in the first seven minutes and 25 seconds fof the game, with an assist on each from Hextall to spark Minnesota to a 6-3 victory over Los Angeles.

After Goldsworthy's opening flurry made it 3-0, the teams traded goals to end the first period with Minnesota leading 4-1.

Los Angeles rookie Phil Hoene made it 4-2 in the second period, scoring on a penalty shot, but Danny Grant and Dennis O'Brien scored for Minnesota to put the game out of the Kings' reach. Goldsworthy and Hextall assisted on Grant's goal.

The victory was Minnesota's 21st consecutive game against Los Angeles without a loss, a streak including 17 victories and four ties dating back to March 1970.

In other National Hockey League games, the New York Islanders rallied to beat California 6-3, St. Louis romped over Toronto 7-3 and Vancouver and Montreal tied 2- 2. In the only WHA game, Minnesota dropped Chicago 5-3.

Garry Unger scored a hat trick and Glen Sather had a goal and four assists to power St. Louis to its highest goal production of the season against Toronto.

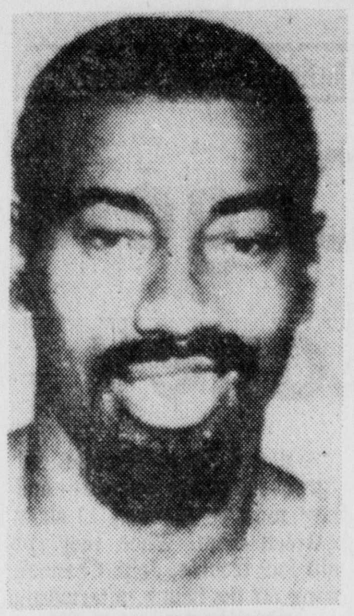
Rookie winger Paulin Bordeleau's first NHL goal with less than three minutes remaining gave Vancouver its tie with Montreal. Bordeleau, a junior draft selection, scored on a brilliant rink-length rush during a Vancouver power play at 17:39. Last year Bordeleau had 54 goals in 56 games as a junior.

Mike Antonovich scored two goals to lead the Minnesota Fighting Saints of the WHA to their victory over the Chicago Cougars, pulling the Saints to within three points of first place Edmonton in the West. It was the Cougars' seventh straight loss.

OFF TO ROCKY START

A Court Rules Wilt Can Only Coach Conquistadors

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wilt Chamberlain, off to a rocky start as the rookie coach of the American Basketball Association San Diego Conquistadors, just lost the best player he might've had—himself.



WILT CHAMBERLAIN
A setback

With the news that arbitrator Peter Seitz had rendered a decision in favor of the Los Angeles Lakers' claim that they had properly exercised their option rights regarding the former National Basketball Association superstar, Chamberlain can now look forward to earning the $600,000 he is being paid this year solely as the world's tallest coach.

If the layoff doesn't take too much off Chamberlain's 37-year old body, he will be back in uniform next season, earning the remainder of his $1.8- million three-year contract as a player-coach.

"We're studying the issue to determine what in fact we could do," said Seymour S. Goldberg, Chamberlain's attorney in Los Angeles. "But as a practical matter the season is running, and it's problematical as to whether we could get a hearing in time for it to be meaningful."

"We got him as a coach for the first year and a player-coach for the next two," said Conquistador General Manager Alex Groza. "Anything above that was a bonus. We were just trying to see if we could get him to play this year."

The Lakers, who knew they had lost Chamberlain's services for good in any event, refused to allow him to play for the rival league. When Chamberlain jumped to San Diego last summer after leading Los Angeles to one league and four Western Conference championships in five years, the Lakers obtained an injunction in Los Angeles County Superior Court prohibiting him from playing for any other team.

The court directed the Lakers and Chamberlain to agree upon an abitrator who would then decide whether the option clause in Chamberlain's contract had been properly executed.

"I awarded the case to Los Angeles," Seitz said here yesterday, "because I decided the Lakers had properly exercised the option right by offering him a contract for one more year comparable to the one he had been receiving."

There was a curious and, as yet, unexplained lag between the time of Seitz' decision (Dec. 3) and its public disclosure yesterday. "I was surprised that I hadn't seen it in any of the papers," Seitz said. "I can't imagine why it wasn't made public."

The Conquistadors certainly could have used Chamberlain as player. The Q's are mired in last place in the ABA West with an 11-18 record and the worst team defense in the league—they've given up an incredible 117.7 points per game.

Several attempts were made by UPI to contact Chamberlain about the arbitrator's decision but Wilt, ever the individualist even as coach, was unreachable at the Le Baron Hotel in San Diego while his players were 2,000 miles away in Indianapolis preparing for tonight's game against the Pacers.

Brodie To Play Briefly Saturday

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — John Brodie will play at quarterback for the first one or two series against Pittsburgh Saturday at Candlestick Park and then be removed in favor of Steve Spurrier, according to San Francisco 49er Coach Dick Nolan.

"I'm going to take John out so he can receive the ovations he deserves," said Nolan, "and then use Spurrier because he needs all the playing time. he can get.

The game will be televised locally after radio executive Paul Cassidy of KSFX-FM purchased the last 103 tickets and promised to give the tickets to boys clubs and charitable organizations.

Nolan said tight end Ted Kwalick's wrist is bruised and not fractured, as earlier feared, so that he can probably play Saturday. So can strong safety Mel Phillips, linebacker Willie Harper and halfback Vic Washington, who are nursing various hurts.

Biletnikoff Blasts Football Officials

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders, who seek their sixth division championship in seven years here Sunday against Denver, like to use the bomb. But their star receiver, Fred Biletnikoff, says game officials frequently make it a dud.

As an example, Biletnikoff pointed out Sunday's game against the Kansas City Chiefs. He said he was tripped and lying flat on his face in the end zone when Ken Stabler passed to him, but no penalty was called.

"I can name you six or seven things those officals did me out of this year," the 30-year-old wide receiver complained yesterday.

But even with the ones that got away, Biletnikoff has been able to lead the Raiders in catches so far this season with 42 for 602 yards. He has caught 40 or more passes for seven straight years.

Biletnikoff goes into Sunday's game ranked 22nd on the National Football League's 11-time list of receivers with 402 receptions, 54 of them for touchdowns.

If his catches Sunday add at least 35 yards to his 6,454-yard total, Biletnikoff will pass former Cleveland Browns end Dante Lavelli to become 21st on the all-time list for total yardage.

Suburban Five Wins As Stone Scores 19

Tim Stone scored 19 points last night as Suburban Auto squeaked by First American Title, 59-56, in San Rafael Recreation Department adult basketball league play at San Rafael High.

Gary Sheffield had 16 points for the losers. In other games, the San Rafael Ward Saints rode Ron Collins' 13 points to a 50-37 victory over McPhail's, and Fourth and D Copy Center topped the Little Store, 61-44, as Bob Banovac scored 16 for the winners and Dave Morey 18 for the losers.

Auto Club Plans To Go Ahead With Racing Sked

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The U.S. Auto Club still plans to go ahead with its 1974 racing schedule — with one eye on the fuel crisis and the other on attendance figures.

The USAC earlier had expected no real fuel problem because its racers, for the most part, use methanol, a special alcohol-type fuel with a natural gas base instead of gasoline.

But now USAC officials say methanol supply problems are cropping up and the 1974 schedule, though still on, is "very much up in the air."

"We plan to proceed with the January schedule as planned," USAC News Director Jeb Cadou said in an interview, "and we have made no decision yet to cancel any race on the 1974 schedule."

The January slate is light — two midget races, Jan. 6 and Jan. 20, at Allen County Memorial Coliseum in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Action picks up in February with some races in California, and with practice opening Feb. 25 for the California 500 at Ontario.

Leonard Manley, sales promotion manager for the Valvoline Oil Co., which has supplied about 90 per cent of USAC's methanol, was quoted by The Indianapolis News as saying methanol is now in critical short supply.

The News said Valvoline, a division of Ashland Oil Inc. of Ashland,ky., would trim methanol supplies by 40 per cent for 1974, which would mean a curtailed racing schedule of possibly only the 500-mile races at Ontario, Indianapolis and Pocono, Pa., and a couple of others.

Manley would not comment on the 40 per cent figure.

"I've heard the 40 per cent figure kicked around," Cadou confirmed, "but USAC has no official comment on it. At this point it's just speculation."

Methanol itself, Ashland officials say, is not scarce. It's just that the company has diverted production away from methanol to meet other petroleum needs.

Of the five USAC divisions, only the stock cars currently use gasoline. Dirt cars and some midgets could possibly be retuned to run on regular gasoline. Cadou said. But the sprints and Indianapolis-type cars are committed to methanol unless costly changes are made.

If other racing groups such as NASCAR are facing fuel cutbacks, they have so far kept mum about it. Officials from NASCAR and the National Hot Rod Association say there are no supply problems yet, but everyone is cautious.

Of equally great concern to race sanctioning bodies is attendance next season. The racers may find fuel for their cars, but will spectators find gasoline for theirs?

Traveling great distances to auto racing events is not uncommon, especially to stock car events in the South. But gas rationing could finish off that practice quickly, racing officials fear.

McAdoo, Maravich Duel

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Bob McAdoo and Pete Maravich wouldn't budge a point Tuesday night as they battled for the National Baksetball Association scoring lead.

McAdoo, who leads The Pistol by the slimmest of margins, 28.8 to 28.7, scored 36 points in Buffalo's 132-127 victory over Atlanta. Maravich kept pace as he also tallied 36 for the losing Hawks.

Little Ernie DiGregorio was the deciding factor in the game with seven points in a five-minute extra session after the game ended 117-all in regulation time.

Lou Hudson, the game's high scorer with 40 points, hit 16 for Atlanta in the last period in rallying the Hawks from a nine-point deficit to send the game into overtime.

In other NBA action, Cleveland surprised Los Angeles 101-100 in overtime, New York downed Phoenix 105-97, Milwaukee bombed Seattle 130-91, Chicago nipped Kansas CityOmaha 105-104, Golden State defeated Houston 114-107 and Capital topped Portland 87-82.

Fred Foster's 12-foot jumper with 1:02 remaining in overtime pinned Los Angeles with its fourth consecutive defeat and equaled Coach Bill Sharman's longest losing streak with the Lakers. Jerry West scored 32 points for Los Angeles, which led by 13 points at halftime. Austin Carr led Cleveland with 24.

Dave DeBusschere scored 28 points and Walt Frazier added 22 for New York as the Knicks held off a fourth quarter Phoenix rally that cut an 18- point deficit to five midway in the period. Dick Van Arsdale's 23 points led the Suns.

Milwaukee won its 10th straight game with six Bucks, led by Lucius Allen's 28 points, scoring in double figures. Seattle, led by Fred Brown's 23 points, lost its 23rd game in 33 starts this season.

Chicago captured its fifth in a row behind Bob Love's 23 points against KC-Omaha. The Kings were topped by Jimmy Walker's 27 points.

club. Yes, we should be closer, but I don't want to comment any further."

This seems to happen when a team is losing. The players find themselves grumbling at one another and walking their separate ways. It happens in all sports, not just football. For every losing team there is talk of dissension. The A's are the only team that is surrounded by stories of dissension even when they are winning world championships.

SNIADECKI WAS ASKED, and gave, his opinion on Nolan's announcement yesterday that John Brodie, playing in his last football game as a professional, would only play the first two series the 49ers had the ball.

Jim backed his boss all the way. He's no dummy. "We are building for the future. The coach has to play the quarterback who is going to be the quarterback of the future," in this case either Steve Spurrier or Joe Reed.

Nolan is doing the practical thing. For the sake of the fan, it would be a much better show if Brodie was given the chance to play the entire game in his farewell to football. But for that to happen, emotions would have to play a big part in the decision. The 49ers do much of their planning by computer. And computers don't have emotions.

Galivan's Grid Crown Stripped

SAN MATEO (AP) — The California Junior College Association has taken the small college division football title away from Gavilan College and awarded it to Mira Costa on grounds Gavilan used three ineligible players this season when it beat Mira Costa 16-0 in a playoff final.

The Coast Conference, where Gavilan was champion, was placed on probation until it gives assurance all its schools will comply with the state code on transfer rules, the JC Athletic Committee said Tuesday.

Gavilan's athletic director, Paul Latzke, said a court injunction would be sought to keep the state committee from denying Gavilan the championship it won Dec. 1.

White Sox' Santo Is Happy Man

CHICAGO (UPI) — The first entry in Ron Santo's social calendar as a new member of the Chicago White Sox is to pay a call on Bill Melton.

"That's the first thing I want to do," Santo said yesterday when White Sox introduced him as their latest addition after a trade with the Cubs, who got four players in return.

Melton is as highly prized a third baseman with the White Sox management and fans as Santo used to be with the Cubs. Melton, 28, missed a lot of last season with a back problem, but he belted 33 home runs in 1970 for a team record and hit 33 again in 1971 for an American League season high.

"I know how Melton would feel if the positions were reversed," Santo said. "I know Bill and the first thing I want to do is to talk to him about this deal."

"When I heard the White Sox wanted me, it made me feel happy. Then when I knew they really were interested in men I was elated and excited."

Going to the Cubs in the deal are pitchers Steven Stone, and Ken Frailing and catcher Steve Swisher and a player to be named later.

BAD TIMES FOR CEDENO

Star Didn't Want Publicity

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The easiest possible way ever to get Cesar Cedeno to frown was to sit down and talk with him, talk with him earnestly I mean, about some of the extravagant publicity he was receving.

At 18. they were comparing him with Willie Mays; at 20, they were comparing him with Roberto Clemente; at 22, there simply wasn't anybody left to compare him with anymore.

I remember how not too long before he died, Roberto Clemente was talking about some of the younger players coming into the game and how different they were now than when he came up, and when I asked Clemente if there was anyone in particular who reminded him of himself, say 15-20 years ago, he didn't think very long before saying "Cedeno."

Cesar Cedeno enjoyed hearing something like that, particularly coming from Roberto Clemente, another Latin whom he admired so much.

But the sensitive, slender Houston outfielder didn't go for publicity in general that much. He didn't enjoy it, perhaps because it became burdensome to handle.

"I don't want so much publicity," he'd say. "So much so soon."

Now he's got too much.

Unfortunately, all the wrong kind.

Police say the fatal shooting of a 19-year-old girl with whom Cedeno had checked into a motel in San Domingo early yesterday morning apparently was accidental. Nevertheless, the Astros' young superstar has been charged with what amounts to "voluntary manslaughter" and according to Latin American legal experts on criminal law, that charge is the approximate equivalent of second degree murder in the U.S.

By baseball law, Cesar Cedeno's career is in the balance. Should he be found guilty, he'd be all finished in baseball.

Insofar as Cedeno's baseball ability is concerned, he could easily be called the No. 1 player in the game today without much argument.

He batted .320 this year for the second straight season, hit 25 homers as compared with 22 last year and stole 56 bases, one more than the year before. No player in all baseball history can be recalled who was able to able to steal 50 or more bases and hit 20 or more homers two years in a row.

"He's the most dominating young player in the game today," says Sparky Anderson, the Cincinnati manager, who has a couple of older dominators of his own in Pete Rose and Johnny Bench.

"I like Cesar, not only as a ballplayer, but as a basically good individual," Anderson goes on. "On the last trip in September, I called him over and said to him, 'what's this? I pick up the paper and see you mouthing off about Durocher. You're a star in this game. You're too big for this sort of thing, and it's wrong for you to do it.'

"Cedeno said, 'he's wrong. He's always yelling at me.'" I told him I didn't care. I didn't want to get into that and I didn't ever want to pick up the paper again and see Cesar Cedeno connected with anything about anyone else that wasn't in a good constructive vein.

"He promised," says Sparky Anderson. "He said, 'I no say no more.'"

That was the last time the Reds' manager saw Cesar Cedeno.

The last time I saw him was after the Astros' final game of the season.

Miranda Is Outpointed By Seales

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sugar Ray Seales, 150, Tacoma, the only U.S. Olympic Games boxing gold medalist of 1972, remained unbeaten as a pro last night as he pounded out a unanimous 10-round decision over Jose Miranda, 148, Mexico City at Civic Auditorium.

Seales scored his 14th consecutive victory as he repeated an earlier triumph over the outgunned Miranda, who won only one point on the three official scorecards. There were no knockdowns.

Lunny, 136, was unable to put Cassius, 137, away despite his superiority in every round as Cassius offered little resistance.

Unbeaten San Francisco heavyweight Larry Frazier, 222, made Mike Weaver, 194, Los Angeles his sixth consecutive knockout victim in the second round of a scheduled six-rounder.

Although the presence of the three unbeaten favorites drew a good house of 2,731 who paid $15,408 for the Civic Auditorium show, it was the opening bout that turned out to be the best one.

Tommy Howard, 145, Seattle, won a split decision over Johnny Melendez, 147, San Francisco, in an eight-rounder that had the fans on their feet roaring. Money was tossed into the ring after the bout.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Careful Study Should Be Given Investments, Short Term Losses

If you have investments with short term losses, it may be a good idea to take them in 1973. If you have long term losses, be careful that you don't take more losses than are necessary to offset capital gains because you can only claim long term losses to the extent of capital gains plus $2 of long term loss to offset $1 of ordinary income up to a maximum of $1,000 of ordinary income offset by $2,000 of long term losses.

Excess losses can be carried over to subsequent years and remain long term or short term. Short term losses are used first, then long term.

If you have large capital gains, actually compute your tax and see which year will come out best. Don't forget, income averaging applies to capital gains and the maximum tax on capital gains over $50,000 is now 35 per cent.

There are nine types of income subject to the new 10 per cent preference taxes.

They are: (1) depletion; (2) accelerated depreciation on real estate and amortization of on-the-job training and child care facilities; (3) restricted qualifid stock options; (4) net long term gains; (5) amortization of certified pollution control facilities; (6) amortization of railroad rolling stock; (7) bad debts — financial institutions; (8) accelerated depreciation on personal property subject to net lease; and (9) some foreign source tax preference income, but only to the extent that it reduces domestic income.

However, tax preference items have to total more than $30,000 before they are subject to tax because you have a $30,000 exclusion plus excluding your regular tax liability.

Warning Issued On Fast Buck Operators

Fast Buck operators posing as inspectors for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) are preying on businessmen in the Bay Area, the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco warned this week.

Don Schwartz, executive vice president of the San Francisco BBB, said the most prevalent and hardest to stop is the high pressure selling of unnecessary products or signs to businessmen trying to comply with safety regulations.

"Business owners or managers can avoid falling prey to this kind of scheme by checking carefully the credentials of anyone representing himself as an 'inspector'," said Schwartz. "If in doubt, call your Better Business Bureau. No money should be given to the inspector in payment for fines or violations.

"Before buying equipment or signs, ask yourself: Does it really improve safety conditions? Is it workable? Does it have real value or does it only create a false sense of safety? And, as with any product, is it the best overall value for my money?"

Stanford Graduates Like Their Job

STANFORD (UPI) — A study of seven classes of graduates from Stanford University's master of business administration program shows job satisfaction and success are remarkably high.

Two-thirds of those surveyed expressed a high degree of satisfaction with their jobs, while three-fourths rated their job success as high. Starting salaries ranged from $600 a month in 1961 to $1,000 in 1967.

Demand Is Expected To Grow For Paper Goods

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — If you are a businessman with a room full of files or a homemaker with a house to keep in order you might find it hard to believe but, yes, there is a paper shortage.

This one isn't so much the result of inadequate production although there is that aspect to the shortage — but of the semingly insatiable appetite of the economic system for newsprint and printing paper and paperboard and paperbags and tissue.

Last year that hunger resulted in between 63 million and 64 million tons being consumed. This year's consumption has been at the rate of between 67 million and 68 million tons, or about 640 pounds per person.

Looking into the immediate future, analysts foresee little or no letup in demand. In fact, some industry officials believe that by 1975 the country will need eight million tons a year more but that capacity will grow by only half that.

One of the ironies of the problems is that this demand grows in spite of dedicated efforts to reduce man's reliance on paper. In some industries the battle may be considered critical.

The banking system, for example, feels as if it sits beneath a constant shower of confetti in the form of 23 billion checks a year that descend upon its clearing facilities. Bankers everywhere agree that it can't keep up.

Now being developed are systems to record transactions through the use of electronic system that add to or deduct from your account without the medium of the check.

In the securities industry, to cite another example, the inadequacies of paper stock certificates, beautiful as they are, was made obvious by the big increase in transactions during the 1960s.

Unable to transfer certificates quickly, some brokers merely let them pile up in back offices, almost bringing down the entire industry. The confusion hardly can be exaggerated.

But try as he does, man has been unable to dig out from under the pile.

The electronic computer was supposed to help, but few businessmen or academecians or customers are willing to take the computer's word that it has all the information tucked away in its memory. No, they want a printout.

Technology, rather than easing the situation, seems in fact to be creating more problems, as can be attested to by anyone who has ever watched a highspeed electronic copier at work.

Every now and then Uncle Sam makes an effort to reduce paper demands such as by attempting to simplify the income tax form. But then there develops this business of wage and price controls — and consumption rises.

Unforeseen developments, such as Watergate, add to the appetite for news, and that means more newsprint is used. It now amounts to 11 million tons a year, only 3.5 million of which comes from domestic supplies.

Magazines, business forms, annual reports and all the other items that make up the printing paper category add up to another 13 million tons.

Paperboard, such as for corrugated boxes, and construction paper, such as tarpaper, add another 16 million to 17 million tons to the total.

The mere increase in population adds enormously to demand, as witness the five million tons of tissue, much of it light as a feather, that is consumed each year.

When the economy expands, as almost every American hopes it will, up goes paper consumption, automatically and seemingly inevitably, almost as if it were all flypaper attached to the coattails of mankind.

Just to carry the groceries home from the market, for example, requires five million tons of paperbags a year.

Stocks Drop Sharply Second Straight Day

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, showing concern over the nation's economy, plunged today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

There was little news in the background to influence the market's action. There had been a couple of rallies in recent sessions in a technical reaction to heavy losses in the past two months. Many analysts said the overall decline still had not found bottom.

Prices also were lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

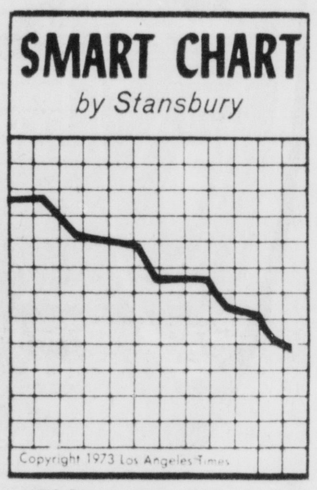
Oils were lower. Some analysts said the Middle East problem has depressed some oil prices. Losers included Ohio Standard, Getty Oil and Exxon.

Chemicals lost ground. DuPont, Eastman Kodak and Monsanto were down.

Some of the glamors took a pounding. Among those on the decline were Polaroid, Xerox and Corning Glass.

Alberto-Culver was one of the most active issues, primarily because of a block of 234,900 shares at 6 ⅞, off ⅛. Publicker Industries had a block of 116,100 at 2 ½, of ¾.

Gold mining issues did well in light of rising prices abroad. Dome Mines, Campbell Red Lake, Homestake Mining and Asa Ltd. advanced.



"This year, Chief, in our annual report, we can blame the fuel shortage instead of the Post Office."

To Double Output

TOLEDO, OHIO (UPI) — Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp. recently announced plans to double the company's 40-million-pound capacity for producing polyester resins.

SALT OF THE EARTH Inc., featuring folk artifacts from the Americas, will open this week at The Port, 393 Miller Avenue in Mill Valley.

The new store is owned by David Valensky of Corte Madera, and Barbara Karten and Jerold Meltzer of Santa Rosa.

Salt Of The Earth features Huichole art (yarn and embroidery art by a group of Aztec-descended Indians in Mexico); American Indian artifacts such as etched boxes, trays and chests; glass and brass boxes; hand woven blankets; hand-embroidered bags, and various textile and basket products.

Miss Karten graduated from University of California in Berkeley in 1970 as an architect, then went to Columbia University and worked toward a master's degree in historic preservation and restoration. Her interest in anthropology led her to collect artifacts from North, Central and South America.

Valensky, a musician, and Meltzer, who formerly managed music groups, have been trading in American Indian artifacts for about four years.

SHIRLEY'S ANTIQUES And Other Things, another antique and gift shop, opened today in San Rafael at 544 Third Street, next to The Cellars restaurant, across the street from United Market's nursery.

The store is owned and operated by Shirley Narin, wife of Stanley Narin of Harbor Estates. Mrs. Narin was a buyer for Sak's Fifth Avenue in Beverly Hills for about five years and began collecting antiques about two years ago. Shirley's Antiques carries not only antiques and furniture but also small accessories and gift items. The store is open Tuesday through Saturday.

NOR-CAL SIGNS of 1064-E Machin Avenue in Novato will hold a closing-out sale this coming Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Items available include office equipment, desks, work benches, hand tools and paints.

Dirf Benford of Novato, who has owned Nor-Cal Signs since August 1971, said he is closing the shop because of drop in business, and will go to work for the U.S. Post Office in Petaluma.

MILL VALLEY CHEVRON is the new name of Lou's Chevron Service at 5 Ashford Avenue in Mill Valley.

A new owner, Stephen Gifford of Novato, took over the service station this month from Louis J. Pizzio of Mill Valley, who is moving to Sacramento. Gifford managed a service station in San Anselmo for three years before taking over Lou's Chevron.

The new Mill Valley Chevron will offer full service, including minor repairs, brakes and tune-ups. It will be licensed for smog device installation and inspection and headlight adjustments. Gifford's station is open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

San Rafael Planners Cool To Office Idea

A proposal by Marin Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere for an office building at 1292 Lincoln Avenue received an icy reception from the San Rafael Planning Commission last night.

A representative of the project withdrew a use permit application needed to proceed with development plans when it became apparent the commission would deny the request, according to Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner.

Hotchner said commissioners made no ruling on the merits of the proposal, but said the project could not be considered until the city general plan is completed.

The city planning department had recommended that the proposal be denied.

Roumiguiere had proposed that three single-family homes be razed to make way for a two-story office building and 40 parking spaces.

The San Rafael Planning Commission also:

CHAIRMAN — Put over until Jan. 22 election of commission chairman.

SMITH RANCH — Told representatives of Smith Ranch airport to apply for a new use permit by February.

GUIDELINES — Told staff to study guidelines for studios and one-bedroom apartments.

SIGNS —Approved a variance for revised signing at King Henry VIII at Third and A Streets, and denied a variance request for outsized signing at Cummings and Co., 723 Third Street.

USE PERMITS —Approved permits for a two-lot subdivision at 13 Hazelwood; swimming instruction at 46 Brentwood Drive and a mobile home sales office at 548 DuBois Street.

MULTIPLE USE — Put over to Jan. 8 consideration of a permit for multiple residential uses at 513-517 B Street.

DESIGN REVIEW — Denied design review of a proposal by owner Robert Walling to add eight units to a three-unit apartment at 1476 Lincoln Avenue, and approved design review of a nine unit apartment at 5 Octavia Street.

RECYCLING — Approved design review for remodeling an auto recycling center at 77 Hoag Avenue.

PARKING LOT — Approved plans to improve a parking lot at 1295 Irwin Street by redesigning traffic circulation.

ABSENT — Commissioner John A. Starkweather was absent.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Jan. 8.

Car Pool Telethon Under Way

About 150 commuters telephoned the Marin unit of the Sierra Club last night in the start of its telethon to form car pools.

Gilbert Deane of San Rafael, president of the unit, said he did not know "whether that's good or bad, but was somewhat disappointed."

The telethon to register commuters will continue today and tomorrow from 5 to 11 p.m. Commuters may call either 461-3000 or 456-7830, Deane said. A permanent telephone number will be announced Friday.

Registration forms also are available at all Marin branches of the Crocker Bank, Petrini's in Greenbrae, Frank Howard Allen real estate offices, Ross Valley Savings and Loan offices, all open markets in the Safeway, United, Cala, Mayfair and Roger Wilco chains, Long's in Novato and Viking Ventures bicycle shop in Tiburon.

Golden Gate Bridge toll officers also will hand commuters the registration forms, but no one at the bridge office knew when the distribution will occur.

Six teams of club members wearing sandwich boards urging commuters to register in the car pools appeared again this morning along heavily traveled roadways.

Neil Brixon Won't Seek Reelection

Neil R. Brixon, senior member of the Larkspur City Council, announced today he will not be a candidate for reelection next March.

"After 14 years, it's time to retire to a less active life," said Brixon. "The city is in good hands now. I feel I've accomplished most of the goals I set out to accomplish, particularly in the management of the city."

Brixon's term is one of two expiring on the Larkspur council, the other being that of Alfred J. Malvino, who is mayor this year. Malvino has not yet said whether he will seek another term.

Under a new state law, which moves the municipal elections to the first Tuesday in March, filing deadline for incumbents is Dec. 27. Nonincumbents get three additional days to file, until Dec. 30.

Boom Predicted For Parts Firms

CHICAGO (UPI) — Frederick J. Mancheski, chairman of the Motor and Equipment Manufacturers Asociation (MEMA), yesterday said automotive parts makers can expect a boom instead of a slowdown in 1974, despite the energy crisis.

Mancheski said the auto parts industry "will run counter to the economy and post an 8-10 per cent gain in 1974."

The memberships will entitle the music students to attend dress rehearsals of the orchestra, the finals of the Symphony Foundation's national competition, and a special concert for members in the spring.

State To Fight Cut By Airline

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Maryland Aviation Administrator Robert Aaronson says the state will contest Pan American Airlines' plan to suspend service to Baltimore.

Aaronson said yesterday he will meet with Pan American officials to discuss alternatives to dropping service to the city. If that fails, he said he would ask the Civil Aeronautics Board to refuse the airline permission for the one-year suspension of the international flights.

The airline said its decision was based on the need to conserve fuel.

To Name Panel

Members of a new Citizens Advisory Council for the Kentfield School District will be named at a special meeting of district trustees Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the district office. Trustees will also review the district's policy handbook.

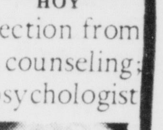
ESP in Concert, Psychics to Meet Here



HOY

LEICHTMAN

The date of December 16 has been set for the all-day conclave of famous ESP/psychic phenomena experts, called PSYCHIC 74. The event is expected to be one of the most unusual of its kind because it features no less than six noted psychics.
Scheduled to appear are: DR. DAVID HOY, who will demonstrate the same psychic abilities which caused Sonny & Cher to make him their personal psychic consultant; KAY BECK, who has made psychic healing a science, and has won affection from many by reason of her unique approach to counseling; SEBASTIAN X. KING, Ph.D., author, psychologist and 'happener'; and DAVID JOHNSON, a medium and Psychic Noble who has brought a special meaning to the word 'reading' and has expanded the numerological index from 9 to 365!
Also featured on PSYCHIC 74 will be: DR. RICHARD IRELAND, clairvoyant, entertainer, and consultant to many Hollywood stars, including the indominable Mae West. Dr. Ireland, who performs regularly in Las Vegas, is "the most outstanding clairvoyant in the world today (Las Vegas Sun)." The celebrated author of The Phoenix Oracle will be speaking about the psychic universe, and giving demonstrations to the audience.
ROBERT R. LEICHTMAN, M.D., will also appear on the program. Dr. Leichtman brings with him the experience of having been a practicing physician for a number of years. He is still often employed as a medical consultant, and uses his psychic gift to aid his colleagues in their diagnoses.
All participants have varying approaches to the realm of ESP and related disciplines, but they all agree on one point: psychic ability is not just for a chosen few, it is a talent which can be perfected just like any other. The audience will have the unusual opportunity to participate in a question and answer period, as well as in-depth discussion sessions.
Other out of the ordinary happenings for an event such as PSYCHIC 74 will be to impart the manner in which individuals may develop their own 'ESPotential' to the fullest; guidelines for using this power for personal needs and for those of others; techniques for detecting 'psychaholics'; pitfalls to be avoided—and numerous other information which is available no where else.
Many of the psychics will give out their New Year predictions, much of which will be startling information. However the overall message of PSYCHIC 74 is that psychic phenomena is real, and that it is there in each human being waiting to be used. Area residents will have a unique opportunity to participate in the ESP seminar/demonstration between the hours of 2 PM and 10 PM.
All tickets, reasonably priced at $5, are on sale at Macy's and major agencies, or by mail from Downtown Center Box Office. For information call 775-2021.

Truckers' Case Is Worth Hearing

(EDITOR'S NOTE: — Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., member of a Senate subcommittee which has been hearing complaints of truckers about the energy crisis, rode a big rig from Delaware to Ohio to observe for himself. Here is his report.)

By SEN. JOSEPH R. BIDEN JR.
U.P. INTERNATIONAL

I rode all night in a 47,000 pound cargo truck carrying hollow-shell pipe from Bear, Del., to Hamilton, Ohio. The distance was a chilly 536 miles. It snowed the last 150 miles of the trip covering five states, but this was nothing compared to the snow-job truck drivers I met believe the government is handing them.

They may be right; they may be wrong. I made the trip because I wanted a first-hand account from the truckers, who say they carry 50 per cent of all the goods shipped within the United States. They make a case worth listening to.

Along the way, I talked to more than 300 drivers, most of them self-employed "independents," as the mammoth truck I was riding in stopped for fuel at five stations during the 15-hour trip. At a major fuel and rest stop along Route I-70 at the Shiloh truck stop in Ohio, I talked to a spontaneous meeting of 200 drivers. They're both angry and frustrated, as is Spencer Malcom of Bear, the independent whose "rig" I rode in.

The trip was also a fascinating glimpse at an aspect of life-on-the-road little known to most Americans, including myself until I made the trip. The truckers drivers are burly, plain-speaking laboring men who seek fair shares in the America they fought in our wars to protect.

At the Shiloh stop, I found the beginnings of a massive block-in—whereby a cordon of trucks would block access to diesel-fuel stations that truck drivers (not civilian auto drivers) use.

It took some negotiations to get in: The truckers didn't want me if I wouldn't stay and listen, and I didn't want in if they wouldn't let my truck out so I could complete my trip.

The result taught us both something. I talked to the truckers in a large room. They were orderly but blunt in their criticisms.

JOSEPH R. BIDEN JR.
Senator rides a rig

They made these points:

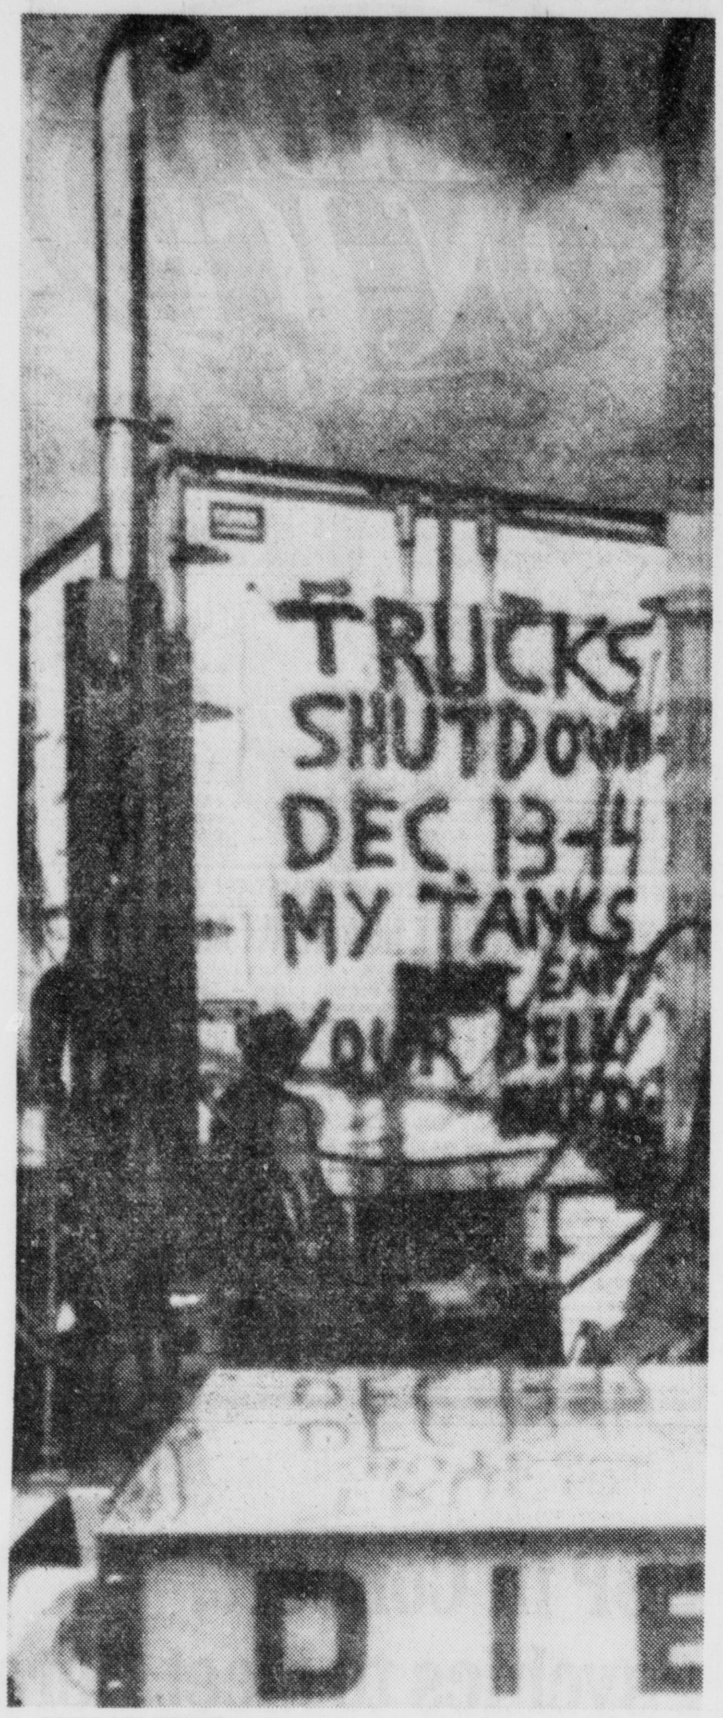
1. Some drivers were hauling full tanks of motor fuel. They reported seeing fuel ships in Delaware Bay and along other coastal areas waiting to unload. Their question: Was there really a fuel crisis?

2. The proposed speed-limits are unfair. Big rigs can't get into high gear at 50 m.p.h. and waste fuel at that speed. One trucker claimed he gets 3.2 miles a gallon at 50 m.p.h. and 4.6 miles at 60 m.p.h. A big truck's gears, he said, operate so that driving at 50 m.p.h. is like driving in a passenger car in second gear.

3. They don't want an increase in freight rates, although there is talk within the Nixon administration of permitting an increase to cover increased costs. Truckers say that ultimately such increases, while immediately useful, would result in increased food prices that their wives will have to pay. And, two truckers said, the consumer would blame food-costs increases on them.

4. There is a wide variation in prices at stations where they buy their fuel. Malcom, with whom I rode, stopped for fuel five times and, in all, we checked fuel prices at a total of nine or ten stations. Prices ranged from 39.9 cents a gallon to 54.1 cents a gallon for diesel fuel. Rig tanks hold between 200 to 300 gallons. Truck-stop managers told me, however, that they have not increased their margin of profit, but their inceased prices only reflect increased costs to them.

But dominating the entire discussion was a feeling, which I also have from talking to my constituents in Delaware, that the Federal Government isn't listening. It doesn't matter who's in the White House, a Republican or a Democrat. The truckers just feel "left out." This, also, has damaging implications in the long-run for our democratic political institutions.



FUEL PROTEST — Truckers who blockaded a truck stop near Old Worthington, Ohio, for five days are now using it as the command post in their call for a nationwide trucking shutdown on all trucking tomorrow and Friday. A similar blockade at a truck stop in Cordele, Ga., was called off this morning. Meanwhile, Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del. rode with one trucker and talked to hundreds. His trip convinced him the truckers make a case worth listening to.

New Fuel Proposals To Cut Into Gasoline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration today proposed new fuel allocations regulations that would result in less gasoline and higher prices for the consumer.

The proposed regulations, announced by new energy chief William E. Simon, call for an increase in production of distillates such as home heating oil, petrochemicals and residual fuel oil that is used by power plants.

The new mandatory program, supplementing incentive program announced last week, would cut back gasoline output by an estimated 15 per cent and raise heating oil 8 or 9 cents a gallon and gasoline 6 or 7 cents a gallon.

The proposed rules are scheduled to take effect Dec. 27. They were prepared for publication in the Federal Register. The proposals are not final but probably will take this general form when put into effect after allowing time for public comment.

Under the proposals, a priority of users will be established. Emergency services such as fire and police departments, public transportation, agriculture and fuel production will get 100 per cent of their requirements. Other users will get about 90 per cent. All specifics of the proposal were not immediately disclosed, but the Washington Star-News said these were among its elements:

A cutback in gasoline output by 15 per cent at the refinery level, plus an additional 10 per cent at the gasoline pump.

Electric utilites will have to bear the shortages in heavy heating oils, possibly necessitating power cutbacks, especially in the Northeast.

Big domestic air carriers would be allotted 95 per cent of their 1972 use until Jan. 7 and 85 per cent after that. Small regional airlines would get 95 per cent until Jan. 7 and 90 per cent afterwards and international carriers would receive 100 per cent until Jan. 7 and 85 per cent after.

An equitable sharing of all available fuel with requirements that prices charged be uniform for all users.

The regulations provide for no gasoline rationing but since the rules cover distribution from producer to wholesaler to gasoline station, the gas available to the consumer will be affected.

Simon stressed the allocations "were not rationing but a system to assure equitable distribution at the wholesale level."

"If in such a monumental undertaking there could be a key word, that word would be flexibility," Simon said in a statement.

He said the program was designed to "keep food on the table, people at work and maintain the health of the nation."

There were renewed allegations that the energy crisis was brought about by the large oil companies.

Visitor To Ride School Buses

REDDING (UPI) — Shasta County school children can expect a "visitor" on their school buses for awhile.

The California Highway Patrol says yesterday it will begin putting a traffic officer equipped with a walkie-talkie on some of the buses in a crackdown effort to catch motorists who don't stop when the bus lights are flashing.

A normal patrol car will pick up signals from officers on buses when a violation occurs, and hunt down the offending motorist, a patrol spokesman said.

Opening lead — ◇ Q

WITH KING

West opened the queen of diamonds, and South won with the king. Declarer knew that he would have to give up three heart tricks sonner or later, and he therefore concentrated on avoiding the loss of any other trick.

The first step, clearly, was to draw trumps. Should he win the first trump trick in his own hand with the king or queen, or should he lead a low trump to dummy's ace? The fate of the contract hung on his answer to this question.

COUNTS CAREFULLY

South counted his trumps carefully, noting that he was missing only four, headed by jack-ten. Any line of play would work if the trumps were divided, but he might be in trouble if one opponent had all four trumps.

What could be done if West had all four trumps? Not a thing. West would surely manage to get a trump trick.

What could be done if the four trumps were on the other side of the table? This was a different story, provided that South found out in time.

BAD NEWS

South therefore led a low trump to dummy's ace. West discarded a diamond, and the bad news was out in the open. East had all of the trumps.

Fortunately, South had found out in time. He returned a low trump from dummy. East put up the ten, and South won with the queen. Declarer could return to dummy with the king of clubs to lead another trump through East. No matter what East played, South could win a finesse with the king-nine.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids one spade.

The next player bids two diamonds.

You hold:
♠- A 6 2
♥- 9 6 4
♦- 7 3 2
♣- K 6 5 4

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

This may be your only cheap chance to show modest values together with trump support for partner's suit.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 12, the 346th day of 1973 with 19 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

John Jay, first chief justice of the United States, was born Dec. 12, 1745.

Also on this day in history:

In 1901, a wireless message was transmitted across the Atlantic Ocean for the first time.

A thought for the day: British statesman Sir Winston Churchill said, "Politics are almost as exciting as war, and quite as dangerous. In war, you can only be killed once, but in politics many times."

THIS HOME NEEDS
A FAMILY TO SPEND CHRISTMAS WITH
The owners of this well-maintained family home in Mariner Highlands are being transferred East & reluctantly have had to put this on the market. They tell us they'll miss the life style it gives them: nestled into the hill, a block (by path) to Granada School, the tree-lined street with underground utilities, formal living room & paneled family living are (where the fireplace is), 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, built-ins in the kid's room - a relaxed easy sort of life. It's been good for them. If this style seems like it might fit you, be sure to see it. $48,950 (and worth it).

Oakland Firm Books Flights To The Moon

OAKLAND (UPI) — Want to visit a profoundly silent, smog-free resort with a fantastic view of the heavens? And earth?

Vacation moon flights may be only a few rocket developments away and it's not too late — or too early — to join the cosmic crowd.

Just call your local travel agent.

"We have over 10,000 reservations in our charter moon flight series," said Robert J. Ziener, lunar project director for Trans International Airlines TIA. "Most of these are people really serious about wanting to go."

Ziener said TIA, one of the world's largest charter airlines, believes a crash program for developing nuclear energy is the giant step needed for making lunar launches commerically commonplace.

President Nixon's recent "energy crisis" speech indicated a speeding up of nuclear power development, Zeiner said.

"This will be the harbinger of nuclear fuel to power moon flights. It's the first step in making such flights possible."

Already holding round-trip tickets to such exotic places as the Sea of Tranquility and Newton's Crater are NASA scientists, congressmen, movie stars and "lots of news media people," Zeiner said.

The computerized reservation stubs quote no price, which is expected to be very high. And it states: "Flight departure times to be announced."

Ziener said TIA has approached space travel seriously and scientifically because it believes airlines must pioneer space travel to avoid going the way of the railroads.

"We not only think moon travel is a distinct possibility, but the only reason we got into it in the first place is because we believe it's inevitable," Ziener said.

Other airlines also have approached the idea, notably Pan American Airways which booked 30,000 moonflight passengers, but TIA put out the only batch of "moon firsts," including an illustrated travel brochure, a stewardess modeling outer space attire, lunar posters and a recording of a simulated moon journey.

ACLU Director Sees Impeachment

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Charles Morgan Jr., director of the national office of the American Civil Liberties Union is predicting yesterday President Nixon will be impeached.

Speaking at the downtown YWCA, Morgan said it is inevitable that the House of Representatives will vote to bring Nixon to trial in a constitutional manner on specific charges but he did not say when.

Escaped Con Fools Officials At Two Schools

BALTIMORE (UPI) — An escaped convict, who talked himself into a job as a substitute teacher, has been returned to jail, leaving school officials unable to explain how he got the job.

Curtis J. Lewis was arrested Friday after teaching an afternoon music class at Gwynns Falls Junior High School. He had taught English and metal shop classes at another school for two days last November, but was removed from the substitute list there as "unacceptable," the principal said.

Lewis escaped from the Maryland House of Corrections at Jessup in October 1972, while serving time for auto theft. He was approved as a substitute teacher less than a month after his escape.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Christmas Tree Can Be Fire Hazard; Be Sure Yours Isn't

Make this a safe Christmas. Most of us are lucky, considering the fire hazards that we create year after year. This is the season for parties, festivities, gift wrappings, decorations, and loads of special fun. And to this scene, we usually add one of the most highly flammable objects in the world — the Christmas tree. It burns like fury unless dipped in or sprayed with a flame-proofing or flame-retardant compound.

Most Christmas trees are cut well in advance and may be dry by the time they reach the retail outlet. When a tree is too dry, it sheds needles easily; its branches are brittle; and it burns faster.

AUTHORITIES TELL me that the best way to test a tree for freshness is to bounce the butt hard on the ground. If needles shower down, it is too dry. The needles should offer some resistance when pulled out. A stump that is sticky with resin may be messy, but it means that the tree is fresh, moist, and less likely to burn.

The next step is to keep the tree outside (or in the garage) in a bucket of water or in the snow until you are ready to put it up. Before it is set up, saw off one inch from the trunk and keep the tree in water as long as it remains in the house. Don't put it near heat or the stairs.

No one uses open-flame candles but electric lighting gadgets can cause trouble, expecially when the tree is dry. Check cords and sockets for fire and shock hazards.

CHRISTMAS WRAPPINGS grow like Topsy unless disposed of each day. Never burn them in the fireplace. For decorating the house, noncombustible materials, such as metal, glass, and asbestos are preferred.

Keep plenty of ashtrays handy, but no matches. Be emphatic about the "no smoking" rule when near the tree. And if it is your turn to play Santa Claus for the children, don't smoke. Those whiskers ignite easily and burn quickly unless flameproofed.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

LUMPY JAW

A ready writes: How does actinomycosis start? Does it affect the glands around the neck? Can it be cured?

REPLY

This fungal infection begins usually as a painful swelling of the jaw that comes to a head and ruptures through several small openings. The disease often extends into the lung and intestine. Involvement of the glands is not a characteristic feature of the disease. Cure or marked improvement follows the use of penicillin or the tetracycline drugs.

WATERY EYES

L. T. writes: What causes the eyes to water a lot?

REPLY

Eyes water excessively because they are irritated, the tear glands are too active, or the drainage system is inadequate. May I suggest an examination?

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Big Stars No Longer Sneer At Job Offers

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Many big movie stars—perhaps most —used to sneer at television when considering projects and outlets for their talents.

They were foolish and couldn't see the future. They deluded themselves with a snobbism towards video. They regarded television as a possible retirement home when their stars began to fad.

Now, however, several seasons of network gambling with movie stars have exposed the fact that, in most cases, they mean little or nothing in attracting video audiences. The snobbism is a thing of the past.

Only a handful of movie names, such as Steve McQueen, Marlon Brando and Paul Newman, can afford at this point to bypass television when contemplating their film ventures.

A handful of major movie names—George C. Scott and Charlton Heston among them—have been wise enough to see the delusion in the snobbism, and have successfully mixed in video roles with their motion picture parts.

What they knew, as intelligent performers, is that the sole factor of genuine importance is the quality of a production and their parts in it. The status nonsense associated with old-style movie star buildups is, for all practical purposes, dead.

The studios that once built up the stars now look forward to selling motion pictures to television, which is on a firmer day-to-day financial footing than the movie industry.

Many egos have been deflated in the last few years as movie stars of the past—and present — saw unimpressive video ratings result from their home screen projects.

Now, having sneered at television for a long time, some motion picture headliners wish they could cash in on its potentially great economic rewards.

But there are indications that the networks have definitely wised up to the realities regarding movie star appeal in home screen shows.

And those ridiculous prices that have been paid to some film names who have turned to video are surely a thing of the past in most cases.

Television has learned that, in general, its biggest stars are the ones it has built up itself. Carroll O'Connor and Redd Foxx are bigger stars on the home tube than Rock Hudson and Jimmy Stewart.

Mullin Is Guilty In Death Of Catholic Priest

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Convicted mass slayer Herbert W. Mullin, 26, was found guilty yesterday on charges of second degree murder in the Nov. 2, 1972, death of a Roman Catholic priest.

Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge William A. Ingram announced his decision after Mullin, a former mental patient, withdrew his insanity plea in the death of the Rev. Henri Tomei, 62, in St. Mary's Church in nearby Los Gatos.

Ingram set Dec. 21 for sentencing.

In Santa Cruz County Mullin was convicted of killing 10 persons. He was sentenced there to life imprisonment.

Public Defender C. Randal Schneider said his client decided to change his plea because he wanted to settle the case immediately.

TV Special Produced By Ignacio Man

"The Borrowers," a Hallmark Hall of Fame television special to be broadcast at 8:30 p.m. Friday on NBC was produced by Warren L. Lockhart of 93 Calypso Shores, Ignacio.

Lockhart is a business associate of Charles M. Schulz, originator of the Peanuts comic strip. "The Borrowers" is the first Schulz show which does not use Peanuts characters, according to NBC officials.

In Lockhart's program, based on a book by Mary Norton, bedridden Aunt Sophy lives in a house occupied by the tiny Clock family, which "borrows" such items as scissors, thimbles and spools.

An NBC spokesman said the program took 18 months to complete because of the technical difficulties in "shrinking" the Clock family.

Tijuana Taxi Drivers Can't Pay Increases

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI) — Drivers of the famed low-rate Tijuana taxis are threatening to strike because they can't pass on to customers the cost of an overnight jump in gasoline from 32 to 64 cents.

Drivers in the 800-member Cab Driver's Union attempted to pass the increase to customers and 200 of them were cited by the government for overcharging.

"If the governor does not authorize new tariff rates in view of the gas price increases, we will strike," Salvador Aguirre Sanchez, spokesman for the drivers said yesterday.

"We are not trying to take advantage of the public. We only want some measure which is just and will protect our workers."

Handless Artist Earns Master's

DETROIT (UPI) — Paul Kohler, who lost both hands in a machine shop accident, paints with brushes taped to his forearms. Yesterday he was awarded a master's degree in art from Wayne State University.

"Right after the accident happened I didn't know what I was going to do with my life," he said. "But within an hour I knew I was going to be an artist. I remembered they had these hooks and I knew I would make it work."

Kohler, 26, said he painted his first picture within weeks of the accident five years ago. It sold for $200 at the Macomb County Community College student art fair

Commercials Make Mason Reese A Star

By JO ANN LEVINE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

MASON REESE
Protected by family

They suspect that the wisdom of this red-haired 7-year-old reaches further than the authoritative counsel he gives to mothers about a certain chicken spread, and "thick and frosty" chocolate shakes.

These are the main reasons Mason Mitchell Reese now is a star — a star at a vulnerable time in his career, a time when many who are trying to consume what they see as "Mason Reese, the property" are grabbing at him for commercials, television shows, movies, records, books, beanies, tee shirts, and buttons.

It is up to his family to protect Mason, and Mason's family is more sophisticated than most. His father, William Reese, is a partner in a New York marketing communications company. His mother, Sonia, a former actress, and mother of Lanny, 19, Mark, 18, and Suky, 16, is wise to the world of children.

They have said "yes" to a few more commercials, "yes" to a 65-page hard-cover book with 25 to 30 pictures of Mason (to be published in the spring by Dodd-Mead Company, and tentatively entitled "Mason's Moments") and "yes" to another appearance on the Mike Douglas Show.

They have said "no" to television shows out of the New York area — shows such as Dinah Shore's, Johnny Carson's, and Merv Griffin's. They have given a vehement "no" to T-shirts, beanies, and buttons with Mason's picture on them.

Mason has come near to being mobbed in several places. Said his sister, Suky, "In one place, a lady took him by the shoulders and shook him and said, 'You are so cute, so cute' until I thought his eyes were going to rock out of his head."

Mason has begun to do features on WNBC news, where he has thoroughly disliked being put on the back of a circus elephant and thoroughly enjoyed sampling every Baskin Robbins flavor before telling his viewers that "orange coconut was best."

To help weed out offers being made to Mason, his parents have just signed him with an agency.

"I don't know how much Mason is making," said Suky. "I only know he won't have any trouble going to the college of his choice."

"We try to teach him what the word 'grace' means, and this is difficult, because sometimes people won't let him be gracious, his father said. He gave an example of the woman who wanted Mason's autograph, and when she got that, wanted a kiss.

"The second thing we teach him," Reese said, "is 'stay close to daddy.' Then, if he can't handle it, he can tuck his head in my shoulder while we walk away."

Roth's Advice To Democrats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate William Matson Roth of Ross says Democrats must also pursue public financing of candidates and other election reforms if they are to escape a Watergate backlash.

Roth told the Los Angeles Democratic Central Committee yesterday that a poll he had taken recently shows that "a majority of voters are suspicious of office-holders from both parties and are in a mood to replace them with challengers who are not identified with the old politics.

"The best chance Democratic incumbents have to escape the Watergate deluge is to take the lead in working for legislation to restore integrity to the electoral process," said Roth, a regent of the University of California.

Village Sales Said Brisk

Christmas sales are reported brisk throughout the Town & Country Village this season with some new trends in clothes purchases.

Little Daisy manager Patti Marsh said that there will be more women wearing black satin pants and slinky halter tops dripping ropes of pearls.

"With hemlines falling to floor lengths, boots become unfashionable and overly warm for the women," said Ed Nahigan of the Village Shoe Den. "We are beginning to see greater sales of new shoe fashions, laced or strapped, in the double sole and clog styles."

Many village women's shops such as Gigi, Inc. recommend the layered look to the fashion minded woman. "Not only can anyone achieve and wear this style but it is highly practical as the clothing can be re-coordinated throughout a woman's entire wardrobe," said Betty Heyman, co-owner at Gigi's.

Reminders about the Christmas crush are reflected by Bob Lee of Hickory Farms of Ohio. "I am mailing twice as much this year as last. Our customers are planning earlier and anticipating the Chirstmas jam early due to local news reports from County post offices."

Mutts of Marin also indicated that the pet shop is already extremely busy with appointments.

"More pet owners want their animals presentable for the holidays this year. Cats and dogs well groomed and clean while sleeping beside the hearthside this Christmas add to the warm friendliness of holiday cheer," said owner Anne Keleman.

A Festive Spirit At Village Shops

The pleasure of shopping under covered walkways which protect from rain or inclement weather is one of the natural benefits of the Town & Country Village. But there's something even more pleasing at Christmastime — the Strawberry center becomes transformed into a storyland of Yuletide tales.

They are told through the colorful picturebook windows of the many shops in the Village at Christmastime. It becomes a gaily decorated trip through a myriad of gift ideas.

A visit to Strawberry for a holiday shopping chore can be made every evening beginning tomorrow through Christmas. Many shops will be open on Sunday.

STUFF THEIR STOCKINGS WITH BOOKS

The world of books is an exciting and popular one. A gift may be chosen for any family member depending upon his or her interest or hobby. Dianne Nordhoff, co-owner at Capricorn Books, suggested illustrated cookbooks as gifts. These could be incorporated into a library collection and also serve a useful purpose in the kitchen.

Traditions Behind The Yule Cards

On the origins of Christmas cards Bob Farell, owner of RoJean's Card and Party Shop in Town and Country Village, says the early cavemen exchanged greetings with rocks, leaves, flowers and stones and that the first greeting card was presented on New Years in 1450, 400 years passed before the Christmas card was introduced.

Sir Henry Cole, first director of the Victoria and Albert Museum in London, conceived the first Christmas Card in 1843. John Horsley designed the first card. The postal charge for mailing was one penny.

The first card was divided into three panels. The center panel pictured a jovial family gathering. The side panels depicted "feeding the hungry" and "clothing the poor". The message was "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

Louis Prang, a German immigrant, introduced the Christmas card to America in 1850. He featured the Killarney Rose and nativity scenes.

LIGHT UP YOUR CHRISTMAS

Betty Heyman of Gigi's Inc. and Mahmood Degan of Lamp Array, of the Strawberry Town & Country Village, discuss the unusual idea of giving a lamp for Christmas. Mahmood recommends the soft glow of lamp light to accent the beauty of your home and to give a feeling of added warmth during the dark winter months.

THE LAYERED LOOK

Often style goes out the window in favor of warm, heavier clothing during the winter season, but not so at the Daisybug in Strawberry's Town & Country Village. Sandy Marcelli of San Rafael, has chosen the layered look of blouse, sweater vest and pantsuit. The pantsuit is a green, maroon and navy plaid with matching maroon vest by Outlander, a total look of style, yet winter warm.

BUSY TIME OF YEAR

Soon we'll find women all over America busy in their kitchens preparing gifts of food for friends and family. Chris Gartman, co-owner of the Original Hick'ry Pit at Strawberry's Town & Country Village, is no exception. Each holiday, he dons his chef's cap and helps with the responsibilities of filling all the pie orders.

Some Gift Ideas For The Kitchen

The kitchen hosts a wealth of ideas for Christmas gift giving. It is the one room of the house which everyone enjoys. Family and friends feel welcome there and spend a good part of the time eating and talking around the kitchen table.

Therefore, it is more than natural to help make this room more comfortable and pleasant an experience for everyone, and this is why a kitchen gift is very popular.

Gift ideas, of course, include all the necessary utensils for making cooking and serving more fun and easy for the cook.

The Caravansary owner, Hildy Sarkissian in Strawberry Town & Country Village, suggests that these might include a casserole dish from France, bright copper cookware for also displaying in a kitchen cookware collection, a Norelco coffeemaker set which includes a grinder for wonderfully fresh brewed coffee, or cooking made simple with cook-in-clay Romertorf.

"In addition to the utensils," exclaims Dianne Nordhoff of Capricorn Books, "new, exotic cookbooks are ideal gifts for the gourmet."

Imports International manager, Kay Taylor, enthusiastically supported the idea of something for the kitchen since both men and women are taking an active part as cook.

Ideal Stationers was asked for a suggestion and they recommended calendars which add an interesting touch to the kitchen walls, and can be found in a variety of themes.

In keeping with the current trend to bring the outdoors in, hanging plants do well in the kitchen due to the warm moist air. The Village Florist has a variety of hanging plants and holders to choose from.

New Owner For Shop In Village

Nancy Person has announced the purchase of the Village Sweet Shoppe in Strawberry's Town & Country Village.

A resident of Greenbrae, Mrs. Person was born in San Francisco where she attended Lowell High School and graduated from San Francisco State College, majoring in recreation. She continued her graduate work at the University of California at Berkeley and UCLA, specializing in sociology and gerontology.

On completion of her academic work she was employed by the San Rafael Recreation Department as "licensed supervisor of recreation and specializing in senior citizen projects and meal programs."

Mrs. Person is the recording secretary of the Business and Professional Women of Marin, a member of Soroptimist of Marin and the California Park and Recreation Society.

A New Look At Polynesian House

Owner Dick Marcus has announced the remodelling of his Polynesian House in Strawberry's Town & Country Village.

Recently, Marcus closed his Miracle Mile store after nine years when the premises were sold. According to Marcus his entire Marin inventory is now consolidated at the Village offering Marin County residents a better selection than ever.

The Polynesian House is a wonderland for the modern homemaker. With the energy crisis there is re-newed emphasis on comfortable casual living at home.

"Every item we carry, whether it be clothing, footwear or furniture, it reflects casual living," said Marcus.

He said this Christmas season indicates that there is a strong demand for long dresses also with swimsuits for Christmas vacation cruises and on the other hand, pantsuits.

Dick and Molly Marcus, residents of Marin, opened the Village location in 1965. Dick buys the furniture and Molly the apparel. They now have stores in Sacramento, Citrus Heights, Napa, Merced and Santa Rosa. New Polynesian shops are scheduled for Modesto and Stockton in 1974.

The largest recorded number of human beings gathered in one place at one time is five million at the Hindu feast of Kumbh-Mela on Jan. 21, 1966.

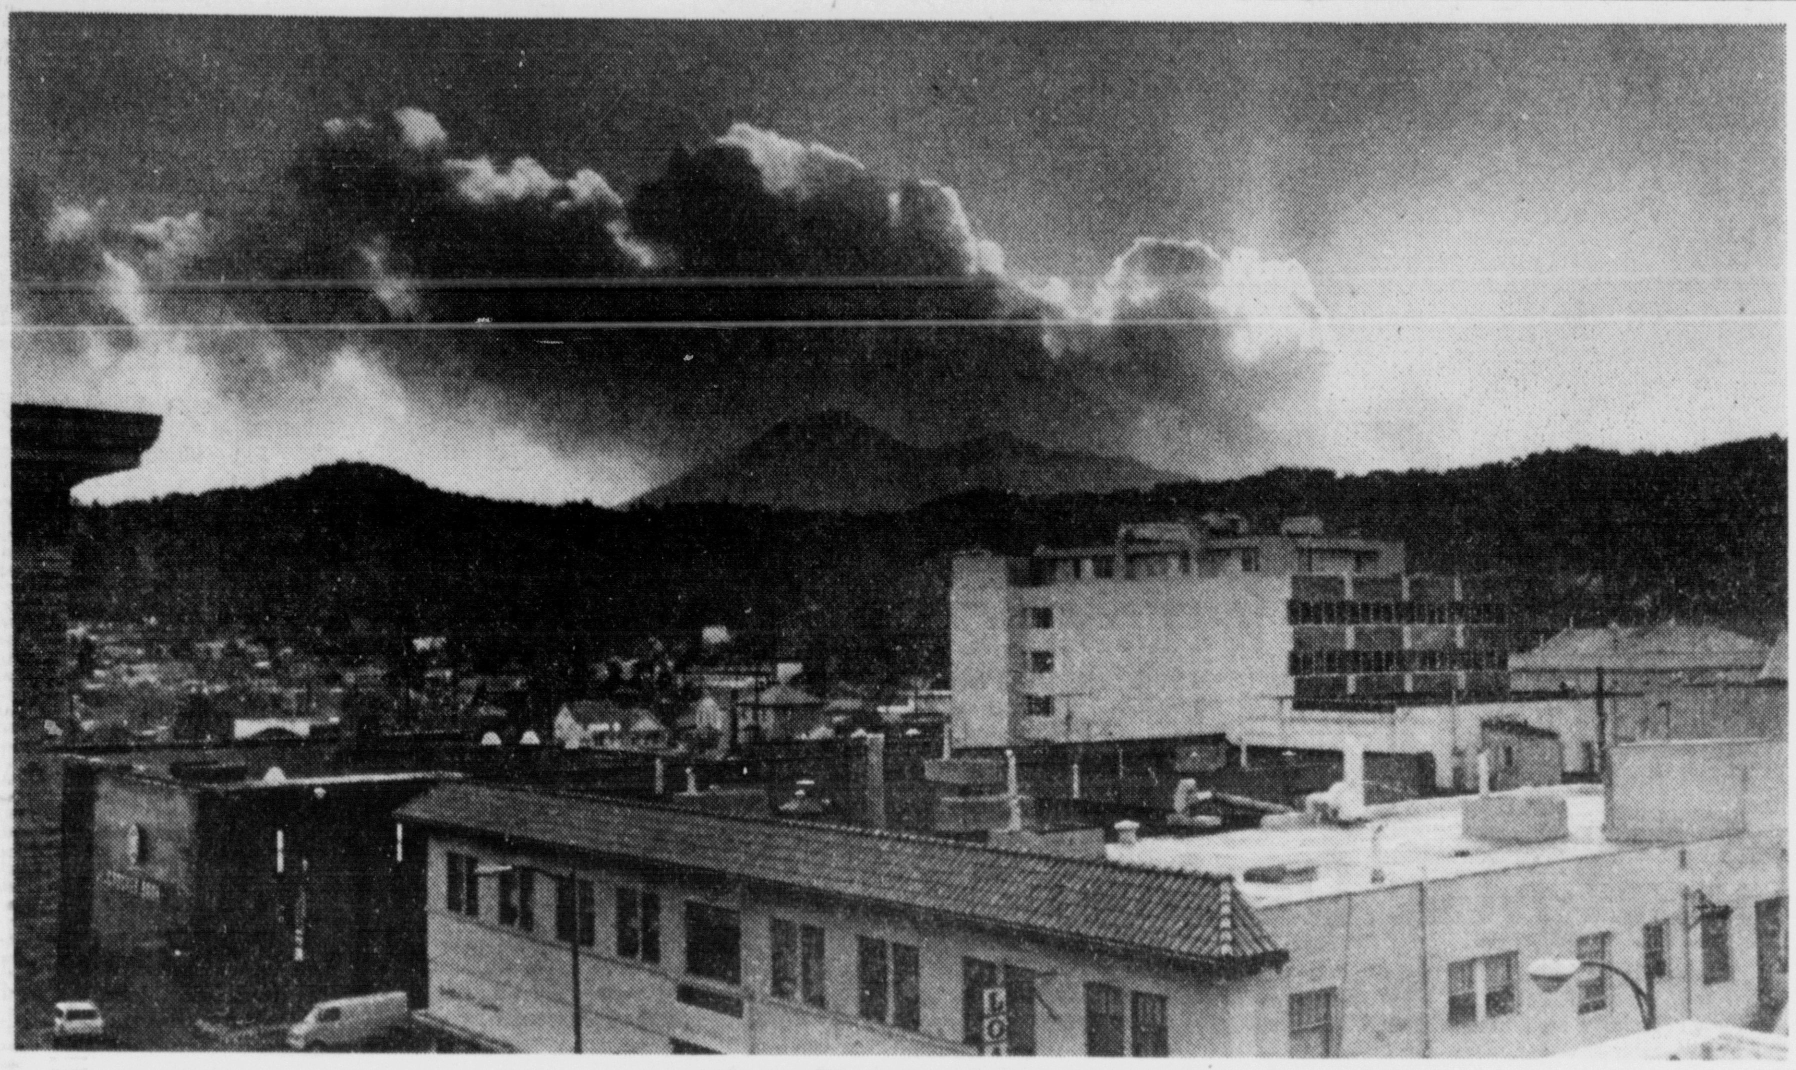
FORECAST
Bay Area: Chance of rain 70 per cent tonight and tomorrow with southerly winds 15 to 30 miles an hour.
(Other weather, page 36.)



A MOMENT OF CALM

For a brief time yesterday, the skies over San Rafael turned from gray to blue and fleecy, white clouds replaced dark storm clouds. As the sun moved lower in the sky, the city saw a lovely sunset, clouds shot with gold, salmon and orange lights. Independent-Journal photographer Jim Kean captured the moment from the top of the Independent-Journal building. The atmospheric clarity didn't last, however, and the weatherman predicted a new storm with today's showers followed by a 70 per cent chance of rain tomorrow.

Novato's Policy On Open Area

By FRANK FARRARA

The Novato City Council last night adopted a policy designed to prevent development of thousands of acres, including Mount Burdell, a dominant natural feature overlooking the Novato Valley. (Another Novato City Council story, page 6.)

After a two-and-a-half hour hearing, sprinkled with protests by representatives of landowners, the council split 3-2 on the policy covering about 8,000 acres, 1,386 within city limits, the rest on city borders.

Mayor Fred F. Ruegg, who opposed recommendations to buy open space, and Councilman Dorothy P. Young, who said "she couldn't go along with some of the things" in the policy, cast the dissenting votes.

The policy, covering an area from Highway 101 to west of San Marin and from the northern city limits to the Marin County line at San Antonio Creek, conceives of Mount Burdell and surrounding properties as mainly a major open space system.

Planning Director Brian W. Mattson described the policy as a guideline for future development, a basis for acquisition of open space and preservation of the historic Rancho Olompali.

The policy recommends that all of the 700-acre Olompali parcel, owned by the University of San Francisco, and a portion of the Garlick property, along Novato Boulevard, west of the city, be acquired for open space.

The policy calls for preserving the top of Mount Burdell, most of the ridges, knolls and forested areas, but allowing development on the south and southeast faces of the mountain up to 600 feet.

Richard Hill, vice president of the University of San Francisco, suggested the city attempt to acquire open space by a "trade off" on land; getting open space at key spots by permitting development elsewhere on a parcel.

Ruegg said "there are better ways" than having the community buy open space, and "I don't think the community can afford it." He said it would seem wiser to acquire the land by a "fair trade off."

Planning Commissioner Gail Wilhelm said the county has open space funds, that federal or state funds might be forthcoming or the city could hold a bond election for purchase money.

One of the critical areas discussed was a 77-acre "upper bowl" area at the end of San Andreas Drive, owned by Humble Oil Company (Exxon).

Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing the oil firm, said that of the firm's holdings of about 1,000 acres only 100 to 120 acres are suitable for development,

Study Criticizes First Draft Of San Rafael Plan

Staff Analysis Claims Document Lacks Data, Basic Cost Estimates

By NELS JOHNSON

Criticism of San Rafael's emerging general plan mounted yesterday as the city administration released a staff analysis calling for substantial revision of an initial draft of the document.

The four-page analysis, a compendium of critiques by city department heads, declares that the initial report by consultants Duncan and Jones lacks substantiating data and basic cost estimates of proposals submitted.

The analysis calls for outright deletion of some proposals from the 307-page initial general plan report, revision of others and investigation of yet other proposals not covered in the document.

The analysis is the result of a recent all-morning staff meeting at which city officials expressed a "very strong overall reaction to the degree of generality of the plan and the lack of backup information," according to City Mgr. William J. Bielser.

The staff analysis will be revised and submitted to city consultants for incorporation into a second draft of the plan to be distributed on Jan. 21, Bielser said.

The staff document rejects a proposal for people movers, or automated transit vehicles downtown, and declares the proposal should be deleted from further consideration.

The document also asks for cost estimates of proposals to revise the east-west traffic corridor through downtown San Rafael, extend First Street and create a major new interchange near Second Street and Highway 101.

The analysis also blasts a

Six Struck Markets In Marin Open Again

Cala Foods reopened its six Marin markets today after the butchers' union and Food Employers Council reached an agreement yesterday to partially reopen 50 Northern California markets that had been closed in a labor dispute.

Although meat departments at the stores will remain closed, the union will remove pickets at the markets so that members of other unions can return to their jobs.

The strike and picketing will, however, remain in full force against Safeway, Lucky and other major food chains.

In Marin, pickets will leave Cala stores, United and Big G supermarkets. Big G has kept its local store open during the labor fight. United shut down its two stores for one day last week, then reopened them.

Pickets will remain at Alpha Beta and Albertson's markets in the county and at Safeway and Lucky stores, original targets of the butcher's strike which began Dec. 3.

The other markets locked out members of the butchers' union in retaliation for the strike against the two giant food chains. Some remained open using temporary help and supervisory personnel, while others were forced to shut down when members of other unions walked out.

No word on progress of the talks between butchers and the Food Employers Council was available today. The union has opposed automation in meat handling and demanded higher pay.

Meanwhile, negotiations continued in an effort to end a five-day strike by hospital workers against 11 hospitals and 14 clinics operated by the Kaiser Foundation.

Kaiser's San Rafael hospital and others around the Bay Area were using supervisory and non-striking personnel to operate the facilities and provide essential medical services.

The union seeks an 8.2 per cent increase in wages and fringe benefits, while Kaiser has offered 6.5 per cent.

Carpenter Pickets Halt One Job, Not A Second

By BILL ROBERTS

Striking carpenters this morning shut down one Marin construction job where carpenters had returned to work yesterday but failed to stop work at a second.

Led by two members of the San Francisco local, members of Carpenters Local 35 of Marin talked 10 carpenters into leaving the job at the Courthouse Square office-parking complex in San Rafael.

But 14 carpenters at the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center addition refused to leave their jobs.

Literature encouraging a full strike against all Marin construction jobs was distributed this morning by the San Francisco men at the local union hall. About 25 members of the Marin union joined them in going to the two jobs in an attempt to stop work.

"Marin County is kind of weak," said one of the San Francisco men. "We came up to give it a shot in the arm. If it doesn't work we'll come back and give it another shot in the

Council Would Save Old Hotel

The Sausalito City Council last night began a last-ditch effort to save the mudslide-threatened Casa Madrona Hotel by creating a committee to explore alternatives to its condemnation. (Another Sausalito City Council story, page 8.)

But if none is found by Jan. 15, the council is to begin formal proceedings causing the hotel's abandonment unless owners repair it.

Owner of the old building is the estate of the late Floyd D. Allensby, who originally leased it to the Deschamps family. The Deschamps have operated it for 15 years as a 12-room hotel and a restaurant, Le Vivoir.

According to John Colteaux, attorney for the family, Crocker National Bank, executor of the estate, has refused to repair damage caused by a mudslide during last year's rainy season. He said the building itself stands on firm footing, although two porches were undermined by the slide. Since then, Colteaux said, the Deschamps have confined their restaurant to the building itself, no longer serving patrons on the porches.

The Deschamps' lawyer said he believes "the estate would like to tear this building down so they could build something else there and turn a better profit." No estate representative was on hand last night.

The committee charged with finding a way to save the building consists of City Mgr. Thomas P. McKenzie, Mayor Robin Sweeny and representatives of the city Landmarks Committee and the Sausalito Foundation.

Building Ban Set On San Pedro Ridge

By ERIK M. INGRAM

In a move to preserve open space lands pending acquisition, Marin County supervisors yesterday imposed a temporary building moratorium on portions of the picturesque San Pedro Ridge in Santa Venetia. (Other supervisors stories, page 9.)

The construction ban, which covers more than 400 acres of densely forested slope, was approved unanimously and, in effect, kills a controversial townhouse project proposed for the 256-acre Fierman property.

It was that project, called the San Pedro Reserve, which rallied strong community support for passage last month of a $500,000 open space bond issue by Santa Venetia voters.

The board's moratorium brought protest from backers of the townhouse project, which envisioned 456 dwellings on about seven acres of the Fierman property.

Property owner Jack Fierman of Philadelphia told the board he considered its action unfair. He said two years and $250,000 had been pumped into planning his townhouse project.

His architect, Eugene Wedell of Sausalito, predicted the moratorium, to last five months

Jaworski Is Handed Dean Tape

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Judge John J. Sirica turned over to Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski today the tape of a conversation last March between President Nixon and John W. Dean III and Nixon's notes on another talk he had with his former White House counsel.

The tape was of a March 21 discussion in which Dean claimed he told Nixon that the Watergate cover-up was becoming "a cancer on the presidency."

The notes given Jaworski were of an April 15 meeting between Nixon and Dean, for which the White House has said no tape recording exists.

The President has contended that it was not until Dean told him on March 21 that he realized that some of his top aides, including Dean himself, had been involved in covering up the scope of the Watergate scandal.

After receiving the tapes and notes from Sirica, Jaworski told reporters outside the federal courthouse: "I think we're getting the type of cooperation at

Teacher's Students Roamed, Court Told

By GEORGE NEVIN

A former Tamalpais High School principal testified today that suspended teacher Kenneth A. Anderson sometimes permitted students to wander about campus.

Raymond J. Bell also recalled two or three occasions when he met with Anderson about complaints that the teacher was not emphasizing traditional English skills in his classes.

A civil suit by which the Tamalpais High School District is attempting to fire Anderson, 32, entered its third day in Marin Superior Court before Judge E. Warren McGuire.

Bell also said he received a complaint of a Viet Cong flag and a defaced American flag on Anderson's classroom wall but when he asked the teacher to remove them Anderson refused, saying his students had the right to express themselves.

In yesterday's testimony, other allegations of misconduct were described by three educators.

The testimony sought to

Panel Plans A Complete Study Into Nixon Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress' Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation decided today to examine every aspect of President Nixon's federal income taxes from 1969 through 1972 and not confine it to the two questions Nixon proposed.

In making public his tax records last weekend, Nixon asked the House-Senate panel to examine his deductions for the gift of vice presidential papers to the nation and whether he should have paid a capital gains tax on the sale of some of his San Clemente, Calif. property.

During a two-hour closed meeting today, the committee decided to "look at every aspect of his return for those years," according to Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, the committee chairman.

Mills made public Nixon's Dec 8 letter requesting the investigation. It appeared to ask the panel to limit itself to the "two tax-related items" (which) may continue to be a subject of continuing public questioning."

The letter added, "In the event that the committee determines that the items were incorrectly reported, I will pay whatever tax may be due."

Some experts have calculated the President and Mrs. Nixon would owe about $300,000 in back taxes and penalties if the two questioned items are disallowed.

One is a $235,000 tax saving resulting from the donation of papers for which Nixon took a $576,000 deduction. Mills said the committee would seek to find out if the donation was made before or after the July 25, 1969, deadline set when such deductions by public figures were disallowed in tax reform legislation that year.

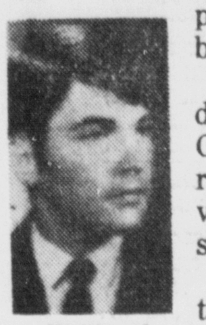
WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Lone Survivor Of Crash Dies

BOSTON (UPI) — Leopold Chouinard, who became engaged to wed the night before becoming the sole survivor of a Delta DC9 passenger plane crash, has lost his 19-week battle for life.



Chouinard

Chouinard, 20, Marshfield, Vt., died last night at Massachusetts General Hospital of complications resulting from "extensive and severe burns," according to a hospital spokesman.

The Air Force sergeant suffered third degree burns on 80 per cent of his body when a Delta jetliner crashed July 31 in dense fog on an approach to Logan International Airport. Killed in the crash were 88 persons.

Shortly after he arrived at the hospital doctors amputated his legs because of extensive burns.

Bomb Expert Turns To Prayer

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UPI) — A Baptist minister who also works as a state explosive expert turned to prayer when police asked him to disarm a bomb made by a mental patient.

Davis

"This was the first bomb I actually disarmed, fully took apart," the Rev. William E. Davis, 48, pastor of the First Baptist Church in nearby Bridgeville and an inspector with the Pennsylvania Division of Explosives, said yesterday.

Defectors Fight

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A 200-man battalion of insurgent defectors fought their pro-Communist former comrades today as reinforced government troops sought to dislodge rebels from a highway only 12 miles northwest of Phnom Penh.

The defectors, now fighting for the Phnom Penh government, traded shouts with Cambodian liberationists who occupied a mile stretch of Highway 5 early yesterday after crossing the nearby Tonle Sap River in motorized sampans.

New Emergency

LONDON (UPI) — The government today proclaimed a state of emergency for a second one-month period to give it powers to deal with Britain's mounting economic and industrial crisis.

A government spokesman said the state of emergency decision today came after a slowdown by 34,000 railroad workers hit train services throughout the country and brought London commuter services almost to a standstill.

Soviet Budget

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet government announced today a record budget for 1974 and promised its citizens more consumer goods, housing and food on the table next year.

Finance Minister Vasily Garbuzov told parliament the budget would reach $259.9 billion, up more than 6 per cent from 1973.

He said defense spending would total $23.5 billion, down slightly from this year. But Western military experts regard the announced defense figure as meaningless. They say the real figure may be triple that amount, with defense funds concealed in heavy industry and other sectors of the budget.

Perez Leading

CARACAS (UPI) — — The opposition Democratic Action party, its presidential candidate claiming victory, appeared headed today for control of Congress as well.

In ballot-counting since Sunday's elections, Carlos Andres Perez, 51, has been receiving a steady 48 per cent compared to 37 for his leading opponent, Lorenzo Fernandez of the ruling Social Christian party.

The national election board said it expects to finish counting the more than four million votes cast and announce the official results tomorrow.

Voters marked their ballots twice, once for the president and once for the party to rule in Congress.

Open Relations

PRAGUE (UPI) — West Germany and Czechoslovakia put their "woeful past" behind today and began a new era in relations aimed at solving the problems of the present.

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt went into meetings with top Czech officials today after the two nations yesterday established diplomatic relations and signed a six-point non-aggression treaty.

Brandt scheduled talks with Communist leader Gustav Husak and Premiere Lubomir Strougal to discuss "substantive issues" such as European security and the status of West Berlin, German officials said.

Irish Attacks

BELFAST (UPI) — Roman Catholic Irish Republican Army gunmen killed and wounded policemen and soldiers in a night-long offensive against security forces throughout Northern Ireland, the army said today.

Booby-trapped cars killed one policeman and blew the leg off another in the attacks, which began late last night and continued until dawn today. Another policeman was wounded in a rocket and machinegun attack and five soldiers were hurt in two landmine explosions.

Skylab Wait

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab astronauts stayed up three hours past their bedtime for a blast that never came.

The astronauts were told to stay awake a little longer to take pictures of a Minute Man rocket scheduled to blastoff today from the Vandenburg, launching pad. Scientists and space engineers were particularly interested in pictures taken as the rocket charged through the Earth's atmosphere.

But moments before the scheduled launch, the mission was canceled.

Carrier Fire

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Fire broke out aboard the carrier USS Kitty Hawk at sea yesterday, killing six crewmen and injuring 38, the Navy said.

The ship was about 700 miles east of the Philippines, steaming for Vietnam, when fire broke out in the main machinery room, according to a spokesman for the Pacific Fleet.

The blaze occurred almost eight years to the day after a similar fire and in the same place. On Dec. 6, 1965, a fire in the main machinery room killed two crewmen and injured 29.

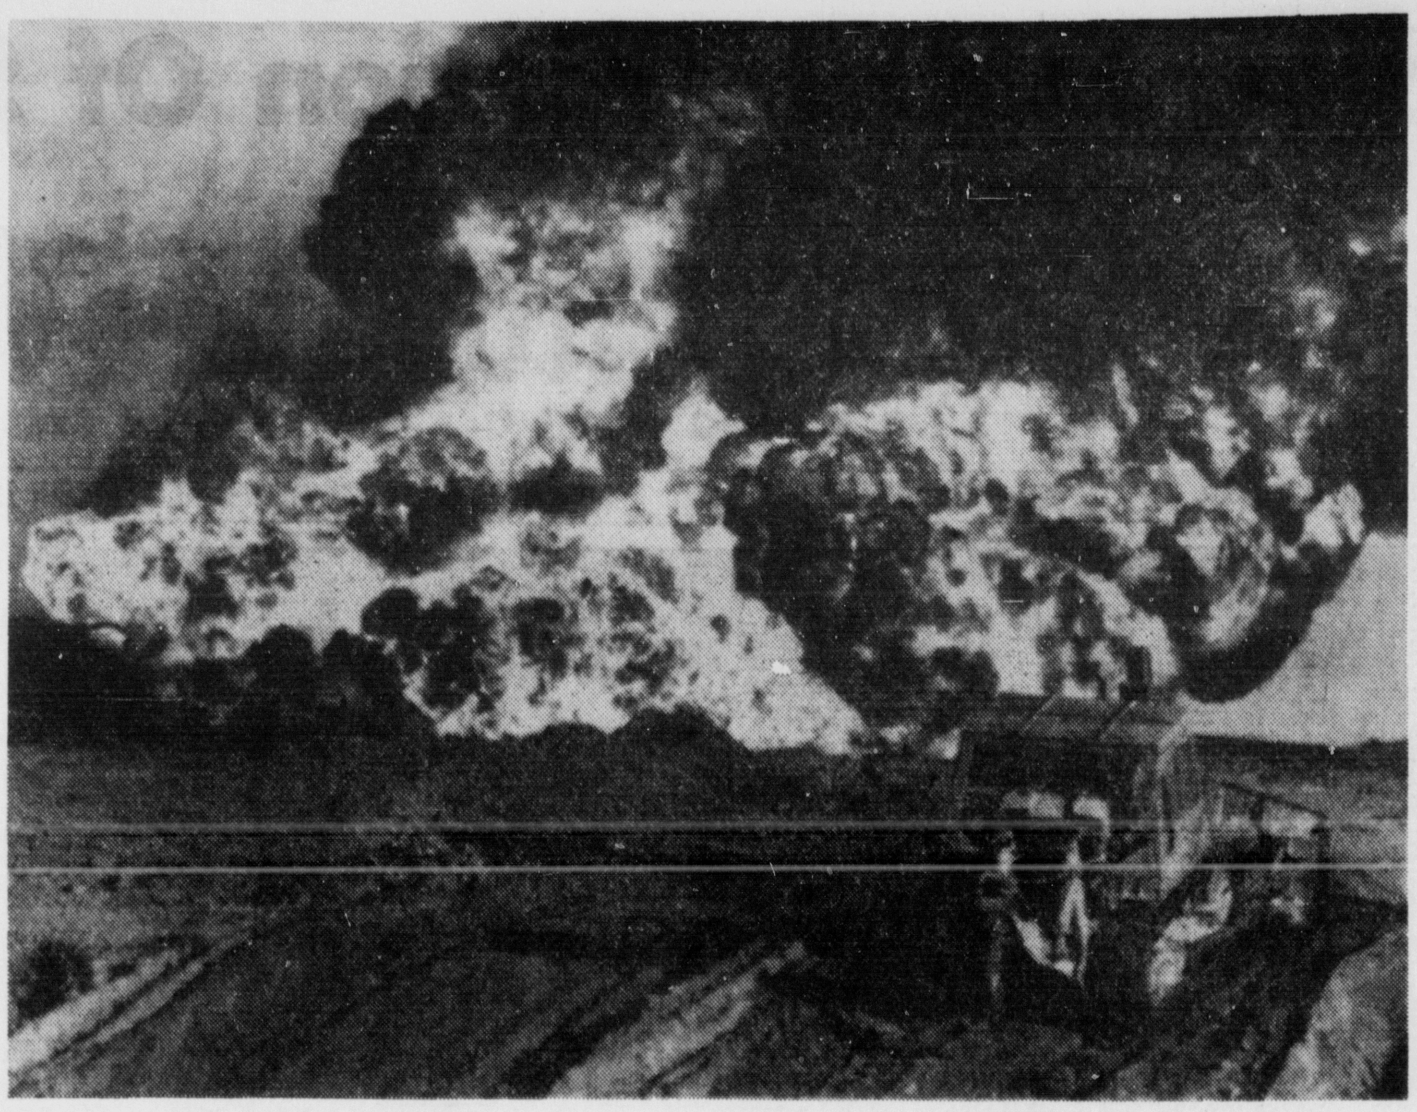
Cause of the fire was not known.

Twin Satellites

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — An Air Force Titan 3C rocket scheduled for launch tonight will carry into orbit twin communications satellites designed to act as space "switchboards" for transmitting top secret information around the world.

The original launch for yesterday was postponed 24 hours when a faulty instrument was discovered in the third stage of the rocket, which will position the "triple seven" satellites on opposite sides of the world, where they will remain in stationary orbit.

Each 1,200-pound satellite is capable of handling 1,300 telephone calls or television and other messages from its position 22,300 miles above earth.



OIL WELL FIRE RAGES

Workers used tractors to dig a reservoir around an oil well near Casper, Wyo., yesterday as efforts continued to quell the blaze, which broke out Nov. 30. The Red Adair Co. of Houston, Tex., is in charge of firefighting operations. Some 200 barrels of oil are wasted each day the fire continues.

Israel May Decide Friday On Geneva

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The well-informed Tel Aviv newspaper Ma'ariv said today the Israeli cabinet would meet Friday to make a final decision on whether to attend the opening ceremony of the Geneva Middle East peace conference on Tuesday.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Monday that Israel would not attend the opening ceremonies if Syria persisted in holding back a list of Israeli prisoners of war. Yesterday, he said Israel would boycott the entire peace conference if there was no list. Ma'ariv said the cabinet meeting was called "in light of world reaction" to the decision.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Health Minister Victor Shemtov followed the Dayan statement with election campaign speeches in which they said Israel would not sit with the Syrians without the list. Syria is believed to hold more than 100 Israel POWs and has refused to give a list to the Red Cross.

A British Foreign Office spokesman said Kissinger told Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home today he was confident the Geneva conference would open as scheduled despite what he called "procedural matters."

Cairo reports said Kissinger had hoped to confer with Palestinian leader Yassir Arafat, but the Beirut newspaper Al Liwa said Arafat had refused to see him. It was still uncertain whether the Palestinians would be represented at Geneva; Israel has been violently opposed to meeting them.

UPI Correspondent Raymond Wilkinson reported from Cairo that Kissinger will have two lengthy meetings with President Anwar Sadat during his 24-hour visit to Cairo starting tomorrow. Cairo diplomatic sources said Sadat and Syrian President Hafez Assad had worked out a common strategy for the Geneva meeting during two days of talks in Cairo.

The sources said one of the main topics discussed was the POW issue. Syria has refused to discuss the subject with Israel and diplomatic sources have said Damascus would use the issue as a bargaining point in Geneva.

Consumers Seek New Food Labels

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A coalition of consumer groups joined with 31 members of Congress today to ask the Food and Drug Administration to require a new kind of warning on food labels.

It would read: "Warning: Unlabeled ingredients contained in this product."

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., who is coordinating the FDA petition with Consumers Union and the other groups, said such a warning is needed because food manufacturers are now required to list only certain ingredients and fail to disclose other "often dangerous," or controversial, contents.

The warning, he said, would put the consumer on notice that he doesn't know everything he's getting.

One of the consumer groups involved in the petition is LABEL Inc., which began as a project for a group of law students who brought suit to try to force the FDA to require all food manufacturers to list all ingredients on all labels. LABEL lost the case when, after a number of appeals, the Supreme Court refused to hear the case.

Art Koch, who headed LABEL, said the ruling resulted in a legal situation where the FDA could not now require complete ingredient labeling even if it wanted to. The FDA had argued in court that it didn't have the power to do so.

Both Rosenthal and the administration have introduced separate legislation that would require more complete ingredient listin

SAN RAFAEL MARIJUANA HAUL

San Rafael Juvenile Officer Scott E. Nelson examines 67 kilos of marijuana discovered Saturday in a vacant apartment at 175 Clinton Court in San Rafael. The pot, estimated to be worth as much as $37,000 in street sales, was uncovered by a landlord of the building who became concerned when a new tenant failed to forward his rent. Police, who kept a lid on the find while staking out the building, said the tenant has disappeared. Police said they are seeking a man called William B. Hanna, described as having a moustache and in his late 20s.

Perry Will Not Seek Reelection

San Anselmo City Councilman Warren R. Perry announced last night that he won't run for reelection in March.

Perry, a partner in a San Rafael law firm, was elected to the San Anselmo council in 1970 after seven years on the city planning commission. He served as mayor last year.

"Four and one-half years of law school at night, seven years on the planning commission and my council service have given me enough night meetings," Perry said. "I'm not going to run again. I've enjoyed being a councilman."

He said he wanted to announce his decision early, so other San Anselmo cnadidates could plan their campaigns. Filings will close Dec. 27.

Perry served as acting mayor at last night's council meeting, with both Mayor Lewis M. Stewart and Vice Mayor Martin G. Blinder absent. The relatively short meeting was marked by unanimous votes on every action the three attending councilmen took.

The San Anselmo City Council Also:

ELECTION — Formally set March 5 for the election of three councilmen.

SCHENK PROPERTY — Endorsed Marin County planning staff recommendations that the controversial 15-acre parcel in the county area next to Sorich Park be rezoned to allow only 11 dwellings, or three-fourths of a unit per acre. County staff recommendations for other parcels surrounding the city-owned park also were endorsed.

SIDEWALKS — Postponed to Jan. 8 a public hearing on the protest of Charles L. and James E. Townsend against being billed $606 for installing a sidewalk on their property on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. Ordered a $489 sidewalk installation on Mario Arbini's property on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, after Arbini said he would not protest.

YOUTH CENTER — Formally received a $600 grant from the Marin County Youth Commission to augment $1,000 the city has earmarked for operating the San Anselmo Youth Center one night a week and during school term vacations.

LAND SWAP — Approved transferring Van Norden Logan's property in San Anselmo, off Woodhaven Drive, to the Town of Ross, in which the bulk of Logan's lot lies. Logan sought the switch so he could build on the parcel.

PARKING LOT — Approved final plans and ordered bids called for an estimated $60,000 worth of grading and landscaping for phases One and Two of Creek Park.

SITE PLANNERS — Agreed to appoint a committee consisting of one councilman, one planning commissioner and one member of the board of design review to screen architects to make a selection for planning the city's public facilities site locations.

ENERGY — Accepted without discussion, a staff report on measures to cut energy consumption. "I don't think the city's acts will be highly significant" to solving the nationwide crisis, Perry remarked, "but they will be symbolic."

LIBRARY — Postponed to Jan. 8, appointing a replacement for library board member Mrs. Robert Gicker, who resigned.

CRIME — Adopted a resolution that the city will participate in the countywide Central Investigation Unit.

UTILITIES — Put off to Jan. 8, discussion on councilman Kenneth L. Anderson's proposed ordinances regulating utility connections and undergrounding.

CHILD CENTER — Approved waiving city fee for the nonprofit Fairfax-San Anselmo Children's Center in Isabel Cook School.

WALKATHON — Approved plans for a United Cerebral Palsy Association-sponsored walkathon in San Anselmo next May.

ADJOURNED — To 8 p.m. Tuesday, for a hearing on the city's proposed open space element of the San Anselmo General Plan.

Hub Officials Revive Ancient Custom To Express Park Thanks

City Administrator Alfred C. Kaeppel handed acting Mayor Warren R. Perry an antique pewter bowl filled with soil from the parksite, in which grew a fern freshly dug from the hillside. City Atty. Hadden W. Roth explained that "in feudal England, to transfer property it was necessary for one to hand a piece of the actual soil, to the new owner."

"Christmas has come early for San Anselmo," Kaeppel said.

"It's the nicest thing anyone's done for the city in the 10 years I've been associated with city government," said councilman Kenneth L. Anderson.

"One of the particularly valuable things about this property is that it can be seen throughout the city — and enjoyed even by those who can't go to the actual park itself," Perry said.

The parksite is on Oak Hill, north of Sir Francis Drake High School. It is bounded by Oakland, Alderney and Tomahawk streets.

The park's donor, Faude, is a longtime San Anselmo resident and owner of an art and antiques gallery in Sausalito.

The land is appraised by county officials as worth $40,000 on the open market. Faude asked only that it be preserved in the most natural state possible, that the park be named for himself, and that the city pay the $1,370.02 property tax bill on the land for this year.

Kaeppel said the improvements would be limited to "a rustic entrance and perhaps a couple of picnic tables."

Big Suit Over Frame Charges

MARTINEZ (UPI) — A onetime Richmond vice squad officer has filed a $1,250,000 suit against that city, saying another detective had tried to frame him as a drug pusher.

In his suit, Robert Ambrose, 28, accused detective Walter Marshall and other officers of trying to frame him "in an attempt to divert attention from illegal activities."

Ambrose resigned from the force Aug. 1.

Bandits Pull Not Push On A Door

ROME (UPI) — Bandits trying to break into an office for a payroll robbery fired a submachinegun burst at the lock but still did not manage to knock down the door. Finally, they gave up and fled.

Police said they had been pulling at the door instead of pushing.

Comet Can Now Be Photographed

Color and black-and-white photographs can be made of the comet Kohoutek from now to mid-January, according to National Aeronautical and Space Administration and the Astronomical Society of the Pacific.

Cameras should be mounted on a tripod. A fast film should be used and the camera's lens should be opened as wide as possible. A 30-second exposure is recommended, because a longer exposure produces a distortion of the comet head, according to the agencies.

Pictures should be taken from a place which is above the glare of city lights and the haze layer, they said. The comet is now visible in the southeast for about an hour before sunrise.

Jail Time Given On Bad Checks

A San Mateo man, who said he began writing bad checks when his drapery business started to collapse, has been given a six-month jail term for passing $1,400 in bogus checks around Marin.

Jack William MacDonald, 26, told the Marin Probation Department he wrote between $10,000 and $20,000 in bad checks in five Bay Area counties.

Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best sentenced MacDonald Monday to the jail time, ordered him placed on two years' probation and fined him $500.

MacDonald, who pleaded guilty to three counts of writing bad checks in Marin, also admitted the same offense in San Mateo County and must spend six months in jail there as well.

Cyclone Deaths

DACCA, Bangladesh (UPI) — The official death toll from a cyclone that hit southern Bangladesh Sunday stood at 89 today, but independent news reports said several thousand persons may have died in the storm.

School Elections Will Remain Same

Marin school districts will not have to change their trustee elections from odd to even numbered years as a result of emergency legislation passed last week in Sacramento.

The bill, signed by acting Gov. Ed Reinecke, voids earlier legislation requiring that school and municipal elections be combined.

The earlier measure also changed municipal elections from April to March of even numbered years and next year's local municipal elections will be March 5.

Byron W. Mauzy, Marin deputy superintendent of schools, said the change of trustee elections from odd to even numbered years was probably unintentional, part of an effort by the Legislature to combine several election dates.

He said combining municipal and school elections would have forced some trustees to seek reelection next year, even though they were originally elected to serve until 1975.

controversial proposal for balanced socio-economic housing mixes in city hamlets (neighborhoods), saying a potpourri of housing types and densities in each neighborhood is not desirable.

"Changes in housing densities from single to multiple should not take place for sociological purposes in residential neighborhoods," according to the document. (The general plan report recommends that moderate income duplex and triplex units be erected in upper income single family residential areas to provide for wide population mixes.)

In addition, the staff recommends that local neighborhoods be given veto power over decisions by public bodies that affect these neighborhoods.

The analysis rips into the initial plan for not providing for "decent local traffic circulation," proposing an open space element that is imprecise and lacks criteria to select open space acquisition areas, and for lacking basic cost estimates.

"It is fruitless to spend time analyzing whether proposals are worthwhile or not unless we have some idea of what ball park figure we are in in relationship to the cost of doing the thing one way as against doing it another way," according to the analysis.

The staff analysis also declares that:

A land use policy map provided in the plan is so broad that it is essentially useless.

Local hamlet neighborhood boundaries have been erroneously drawn and are "not the meaningful ones as locally construed."

Transportation and traffic recommendations for the Northgate area lack clarity.

The plan lacks any provision for emergency connector roads as alternatives to Highway 101, and lacks a satisfactory bicycle and pedestrian system.

The plan lacks adequate background information needed by staff to evaluate proposals aimed at reducing seismic risk in the city, including a proposal that high intensity land uses adjacent to the San Rafael Canal be banned.

The plan lacks a noise element.

The analysis indicates support for high density development of downtown San Rafael, and for residential development above ground-floor commercial establishments in the central business district.

The staff also recommends that consultants consider the possibility of a ferry terminal at McNears Point.

"I sincerely hope that you give substantial weight and consideration to the general criticism contained herein and, in consequence, make substantial additions and deletions to the preliminary plan report," Bielser tells consultants in a letter that prefaces the analysis.

The staff complaints are the latest in a growing wave of criticism that has enveloped the initial general plan report since it was issued last month.

The report has drawn mixed reactions from concerned residents, been called an "impossible dream" by Mayor C. Paul Bettini, and a "ridiculous" document by former planning commission chairman Jorgen V. Lunding.

Teen Mothers Lose Welfare

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The state Court of Appeal ruled yesterday that minors who are unwed mothers and live with their own mothers are not entitled to independent welfare.

The ruling was in the case of two teen-aged girls, each with one child, who lived with their mothers, who get Aid to Families With Dependent Children.

In November 1971, grants to the young mothers were cut off and they and their children were included as additions to their mother's grants.

That action was under a state Social Welfare Department regulation.

Light Quake

SANTA ROSA (UPI) — A light earthquake rolled through Sonoma County yesterday but its intensity of 2.2 on the Richter Scale was too low for an epicenter reading.

New Recreation Supervisor Picked In Mill Valley

Don L. Dimitratos, director of parks and recreation, told the parks and recreation commission Monday that he had received the city manager's approval to hire Hunter to replace John Garber who left in October.

Hunter, 24, was reared in Mill Valley, attended Tamalpais High School and earned a recreation degree at San Jose State University in 1971.

Before coming to Mill Valley, he worked one year in Ferguson, Mo., as a recreation supervisor in teen and athletic programs.

Dimitratos estimated Hunter's annual salary would be about $10,800.

and 20 days, "will not be the end of the issue." He said, "I'm firmly convinced that the value of the land will be found — whether in negotiations or in the courts —to be in excess of the amount available (from the bond issue)."

The project, featuring two "cluster villages" with underground parking, water recycling, local transit and nature study center, was to have been considered yesterday had the moratorium not been imposed.

Spearheading the move for the moratorium was Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere who told his colleagues "it's only fair to the public that voted" to impose the building ban and let them negotiate for the property. Should the bond issue not be enough, he said, he will urge use of county open space funds to offset the difference.

County Planning Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo, a supporter of the townhouse project which was rejected twice on tie votes by her commission, told the board it was losing "a very remarkable opportunity" to provide moderate income housing and open space at no cost to taxpayers.

Robert Jones of the Las Gallinas Valley Master Plan Committee answered Fierman's complaints of investing substantial time and money in the project by saying "Fierman took a roll of the dice and may lose."

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, who in the past has cautioned against use of building moratoriums, said the Santa Venetia request "is a classic example" of how it should be used.

He told supervisors he could recommend imposing moratoriums only where lands, for which public funds have been earmarked, are threatened with development.

He said negotiations should be completed, or condemnation started, within six months to avoid an inverse condemnation suit from property owners.

As a matter of procedure, the San Pedro Reserve townhouse project hearing was put over to May, at which time it will be heard if the land deal falls through.

arm."

Carpenters and iron workers walked away from their jobs at the Courthouse Square project but the move was not unanticipated by the contractor. "I kind of suspected this so I didn't fire up full bore today," said Gary Ordway, project manager.

Union members talked with carpenters working at the Kaiser project for about 30 minutes but none of the men left their jobs.

"Most of the guys that are working in there are company scum. They are sleeping with the contractor," said one of the San Francisco men.

Union members pledged to return with 100 to 200 men tomorrow to prevent the carpenters from returning to work at Kaiser.

"Tomorrow there will be some guys down here and I don't mean a few, more like 100," said a member of the Marin union.

The 25 men who were moving from project to project stopped to discuss their next move for about 10 minutes and conflict among the members was apparent.

"You're all worried about the little jobs. Xxxx the little jobs," shouted one man.

They finally decided to move to other Marin projects in an attempt to get all carpenters off the job.

They spoke of going to the "Jasper project" but by midmorning no strikers had appeared at Indian Valley Colleges in Novato where the Jasper Construction Co. is working.

The San Francisco union members left after the attempt to close the Kaiser project and pledged to return tomorrow if the Marin local needs more help.

William T. Wilson, financial secretary for Local 35, declined comment on the strikers' actions and said nothing has changed for the union since carpenters were advised they could return to work Monday.

Carpenters also remained off the job today at the Firemen's Fund Insurance Building in San Rafael and Highway 101 project in Novato in the continuing wage dispute. Union members were to receive a 65-cent pay increase in June but it was limited to 15 cents by the federal government's price control administration which started the carpenters' protest.

passes," said Public Works Director Norman Wohlschlaeger, because heavy rains due in January could worsen the problem. McKenzie called the condition of the porches and lot "a hazardous situation" because of the site's poor drainage.

"The owners have plans drawn up for draining the excess water," Wohlschlaeger said, "but they'd have to go to Court to get the money to do it and they're not sure they want to. It's a stalemate."

Virtually everyone who spoke to the Casa Madrona issue last night supported efforts to save it.

After setting up the committee, the council agreed to consider at its meeting next Tuesday an ordinance forcing property owners to clean up "public nuisances" on their land. According to the city manager, the chief target would be owners who allow sliding mud and debris to pile up on public roads and walks. The city would be empowered to do the work itself in stubborn cases, with the cost attached to the property, Mayor Sweeny said the council plans to have the ordinance in effect by the Casa Madrona action date.

TRIAL

prove the high school district's contention that Anderson engaged in questionable teaching methods and in improper acts with a girl student.

Patrick Gaynor, a Tam High English teacher, told Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire that he and his family accompanied Anderson and a 15-year-old girl student to Yosemite Valley in November 1971.

(The girl was Beth Okamura, who later married the 32-year-old Anderson, said the teacher's attorney, Carl B. Shapiro).

The Gaynors stayed in a room at Yosemite Lodge while Anderson and Miss Okamura spent two nights in a cabin, Gaynor testified.

Under cross-examination by Shapiro, Gaynor acknowledged the two-room cabin contained ample space for one of the two to have slept on the floor.

He said he saw Anderson and Miss Okamura holding hands several times at sporting events, hikes and school-related dinners.

Attempting to prove the district's contention that Anderson used poor teaching methods, Attorney William O. Weissich produced a journal written by Bruce P. Lohmann, another former student of Anderson's. (The district has accused Anderson of encouraging Lohmann to bomb three buildings and set two fires in Southern Marin in the spring of 1971.)

Gaynor said he could see how the journal — a stream-of-consciousness account of Lohmann's thoughts — could have been given an "A" grade by Anderson.

The teacher said the notebook followed the format suggested in a textbook used in English classes at the high school and as such might deserve a high grade.

Next to testify was James Hanratty, associate principal at the school, who said he warned Anderson about letting students smoke in class, a violation of state law.

As far as he knew, Anderson made good on his promise to halt the smoking, Hanratty said.

The administrator also testified that he noticed a painted slogan, "Smoke Dope," on the wall of Anderson's classroom in May, 1971.

the present time I'd hoped we'd get."

Sirica turned over the Watergate material at a closed 45-minute session between himself, Jaworski and White House lawyers Leonard Garment and J. Fred Buzhardt.

After the meeting, Sirica issued a statement saying that he had given to Jaworski:

One reel of two conversations Nixon had with Dean March 21.

One page of notes that H. R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff, had with Nixon in the executive Office Building on March 22.

Four pages of notes Nixon made about a late evening, April 15 talk with Dean in the Oval Office, during which, according to Dean, Nixon said he should not have discussed an offer of executive clemency to the original Watergate defendants.

The White House turned over to Jaworski during last weekend several other tapes. Jaworski said today nine tapes were given to him "but I can't tell you what they are."

Jaworski said he has requested six additional tapes which the White House has not yet agreed to turn over.

OBITUARIES

Artist Ralph Stackpole Dies In France At 88

Internationally famed sculptor and painter Ralph Stackpole, who dreamed of creating a 200-foot-high version of his "Pacifica" statue on Alcatraz Island, has died at his studio home in France, Bay Area friends learned yesterday.

No details of the 88-year-old artist's death had been learned, other than that he was to be buried today.

Stackpole is survived by two sons, Francis, a postal executive, of Mill Valley, and John of Oakland, a photojournalist, and six grandchildren.

The artist last visited the Bay Area in 1964. He then told an Independent-Journal reporter that he had once lived in Fairfax, during his years of creating such monumental works as the sculptures that adorn the San Francisco Stock Exchange, the murals in Coit Tower, and the 80-foot high Pacifica that was the theme work of the World's Fair on Treasure Island before World War II.

The Pacifica statue, constructed in stucco, was demolished when the Navy took over the island. Stackpole kept his working models and talked for years of recreating it in larger scale as a sort of Statue of Liberty looking westward to all the peoples of the Pacific Basin.

The artist was born in Williams, Ore., and came to San Francisco in 1900 to study art. After the 1906 earthquake and fire dispossessed the young artist, he received a $200 grant from a New York City fund established to aid Bay Area artists. He took the money to Paris to continue his art studies. By 1914, he again was living in the Bay Area, and in 1923 succeeded the late Beniamino Bufano on the faculty of the California School of Fine Arts.

Among the many honors Stackpole received was appointment in 1941 by the late President Roosevelt to the National Fine Arts Commission; Stackpole served simultaneously on the San Francisco Arts Commission.

He resigned those posts in 1949 to move with his wife Ginette to a farmhouse-studio in Chauriat Puy-de-Dome near Auvergne, France. There he happily described himself as living in the "heart of the garlic belt of France" while continuing to create abstract sculptures and paintings which were exhibited in Paris.

Development of the bowl isn't authorized under the policy. Donald Dickenson, representing the citizens open space committee, which started the study to preserve Mount Burdell, said, "I feel the upper bowl is important. Any development of it would be an intrusion into the open space."

Bianchi said the oil company has spent more than $100,000 in the area in reliance on a former master plan, prompting councilmen to wonder how much "vested right" in development the firm may have established already.

A. Crawford Cooley, trustee of the Porter Trust, requested that the trust's 2,592 acres be removed from the plan except for the land at the top of the mountain.

Francis E. Allison of San Rafael, owner of one-fourth of the 470-acre Pashburg property, protested the proposed prezoning to agricultural with 60-acre lots. He said he opposed "downgrading in zoning to the detriment of the owner."

The council commended the citizens committee for its work on the policy.

The council unanimously introduced an ordinance to prezone parcels in the unincorporated area covered by the policy to agricultural with 60-acre minimum lot size: University of San Francisco, 700 acres; with 60-acre lots, Alyce Pashburg, 470 acres; Jay Garlick, 856 acres; Mary F. Silveira, 738 acres; Porter Trust, 2,592 acres; Charmaine Burdell Veronda, 695 acres.

Others: McGraw-Hill, 94 acres, to planned industrial; Oliver Kullberg, four acres, to highway commercial district; William Wright, five acres, to limited agriculture, with lot size not specified; Dorothy Hammerman, 15 acres, agricultural with five-acre lots, and Manual Nunes, 375 acres, to single-family planned district.

TEENS SURVIVE AUTO CRASH

San Rafael High School students appear grim as they survey the crumpled wreckage of a car that smashed into a tree near the school gymnasium. The accident sent four colleagues to Marin General Hospital yesterday. Passenger Dennis Gotelli, 17, of 24 Elizabeth Way, was reported in satisfactory condition today with a fractured leg. Driver Melvin Mathies, 16, and two other teen-aged passengers, were released after being treated for cuts and bruises. Police said Mathies was traveling at a high rate of speed when he lost control of the vehicle on Mission Avenue near Alice Street.

San Quentin Six Judge Hints Charges Might Be Dismissed

A visiting judge hearing motions in the San Quentin Six case hinted yesterday he may dismiss murder charges because Mexican-Americans were excluded from the 1971 grand jury.

For three weeks, attorneys for the six convicts have argued charges should be dropped because the grand jury which indicted them was not representative of the community.

Accused are Louis N. Talamantes, Hugo A. Pinell, John Larry Spain, Fleeta Drumgo, David Johnson and Willie Tate.

As arguments were completed yesterday, Judge Vernon Stoll of Nevada County announced:

"The court feels there is sufficient (evidence) before it to indicate that in likelihood an identifiable group, particularly Chicanos, were overlooked . . . by the judges in the composition of the 1971 grand jury."

Deputy Dist. Atty. Vernon F. Smith, prosecuting the case, had asked Stoll to tell which way he was leaning so the prosecution could introduce new evidence if an unfavorable ruling was in the winds.

But after Stoll made his announcement, Smith told the surprised courtroom he had no further evidence to present on the question.

Stoll asked both sides to summarize the weeks of testimony and arguments into legal briefs and submit them by Dec. 28. He promised a decision either the first or second week in January.

Defense attorneys hailed Stoll's announcement as a "hopeful sign."

The case — in which the inmates are charged with murder and conspiracy in an alleged escape attempt at the prison in which three guards and three inmates died in August, 1971 — recessed until Monday.

On that day, defense attorneys will argue the case should be dismissed on the grounds there is insufficient evidence.

Novato Council Favorable To Neighborhood Center

Councilmen were considering rezoning the 15-acre site when Boyd Lang, representing Standard Growth Properties, said a "supermarket, super drug and eight or nine small stores were planned" on about half the site.

Although there was no plan before them for review, Mayor Fred F. Ruegg and Councilman F. Wayne Sartain supported the idea of a shopping center.

Councilman George C. Quesada said he was concerned, after hearing of the proposed stores, that the center might dilute the city's downtown plan.

Standard Growth was seeking a zoning change from planned community to 7.5 acres of commercial zoning and 7.5 acres of planned residential zoning, which would permit apartments.

Robert Burke, president of the San Marin Improvement Association, opposed residential development, which would lie between the proposed shopping center and the San Marin Club, and councilmen indicated they wouldn't favor residential development.

The council suggested that Standard Growth seek a variance, instead of a zoning change, to permit commercial development, and referred the matter back to the planning commission.

The Novato City Council Also:

TACO BELL — Voted 3-2, with Councilman Dorothy P. Young and Ruegg dissenting, to make the final determination on architectural plans for a Taco Bell restaurant at the southwest corner of Grant and Machin Avenues. The action, in effect, called for review of the planning commission's decision Monday night to uphold an appeal by Ben. R. Ostlind of plan review committee rejection of architectural plans for the mission style building.

ZONING APPEALS — Introduced an ordinance amendment to establish the city council as the body to hear appeals of decisions by the city zoning administrator.

BEL MARIN COMMERCE PARK — Introduced an ordinance approving a master plan by Ronald Antonioli for a 10-lot industrial park on 8.5 acres along Bel Marin Keys Boulevard, north of Los Robles Mobile Home Park.

REZONING — Introduced an ordinance to rezone 4.4 acres at the end of Zandra Place and Sherwood Place, owned by North Marin Title Co., from residential to residential single-family dwellings to bring it into conformity with the Novato General Plan.

UNDERGROUNDING — Adopted a resolution revising the boundaries of Underground Utility District No. 5 to include most of the area along Scott Street, between DeLong and Grant Avenues.

TENNIS CHALLENGE — Received a report from Ruegg that he has sent letters out challenging every city councilman in Marin to compete in a tennis tournament at the Olive Ridge Tennis Club in Novato next month.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned until 9 p.m., tomorrow at the Novato Community House for a joint meeting with the Novato Planning Commission on the city's growth control policy.

Wife Won't Get Share Of House

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — After his wife left him, Jim Hutchinge bulldozed his $37,500 home into rubble to prevent her from gaining half ownership in a divorce suit, police said today.

Hutchings said his wife had taken their two children and the household furnishings and moved out of their suburban home a few weeks ago.

Hutchings, 33, is a building demolition contractor.

DEATH CAR — Officer Tim Miller of the California Highway Patrol (above) inspects the wreckage of a car involved in an accident yesterday in which a Santa Rosa man died. The auto struck the center guard rail on Highway 101, then flipped over, causing the damage shown at right. The highway patrol is seeking a pickup truck which may have triggered the crash.

Santa Rosa Man Killed In Crash, Pickup Sought

A Santa Rosa man died yesterday after his auto smashed into a guard rail on Highway 101 and the California Highway Patrol is seeking a pickup truck which may have caused the accident.

Ernest Daulton Howard, 57, died in surgery at Marin General Hospital shortly after the 12:25 p.m. crash.

The highway patrol said Howard, a retired farm worker, was driving south on the freeway near Terra Linda when his car went into a skid, and crashed head-on into the center divider. The vehicle flipped over and Howard was thrown from the car, officers said.

A witness told officers a dark grey pickup truck had cut in front of Howard's car, causing it to swerve into the guard rail, then skid into the rail a second time.

The California Highway Patrol is seeking witnesses to the fatal crash. Officers also would like to find the truck, described as an older vehicle, painted in dark gray primer paint. Officers say the truck may be raked, with its rear end higher than its front.

Howard was a native of Oklahoma.

Survivors include his wife, Mary J. Howard.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at the Harry M. William Mortuary in San Rafael.

Howard was the 34th traffic death to date this year, as compared to 42 highway deaths for the same period last year.

Three More Will Seek Council Seats In Mill Valley Election

Three more Mill Valley residents, including the incumbent mayor, have announced that they will run for election next spring to two open city council seats.

Mayor Jean S. Barnard, planning commission chairman Ivan S. Poutiatine, and attorney Gregory C. Dyer said they will compete for positions now occupied by Mayor Barnard and Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker.

Boessenecker announced last week that he will run again.

Mayor Barnard was elected to the council in 1970 and has served as mayor since April, 1972. Shortly after being appointed mayor, she was the center of political controversy when the council reduced the mayoral term from two years to one, thus cutting her term in half But when her time as mayor ran out last spring, the council reelected her

Besides her council experience, Mrs Barnard served on the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission for five years, two of them as chairman. She belongs to the Sierra Club, Marin Conservation League and the League of Women Voters of Southern Marin. A Mill Valley resident for almost 30 years, she lives at 1 El Capitan She is a Vassar graduate

Mrs Barnard pointed to the building of a new public safety headquarters, work on a new general plan, upgrading of the sewer system and selection of a new city manager as accomplishments while she was on the council.

Architect Poutiatine, 42, was appointed to the planning commission in 1969. Before joining that group, he served two years on the city's architectural advisory committee, including six months as its chairman.

He is head of the steering committee of the citizens advisory committee on the Mill Valley General Plan and a member of the North Ridge Open Space Committee. He is a principal in Agora, a San Francisco architectural planning firm.

He and his family have lived in Mill Valley since 1965 and reside at 400 Tamalpais Avenue.

Dyer 26, has practiced law in Mill Valley for two years with offices on Miller Avenue and lives in the Cascade Canyon area of the city.

He has worked on the city's business assistance committee and served as the attorney for the Alto-Sutton Manor District Association in its successful fight against the Cal-Fong development in the Alto Bowl.

He has applied unsuccessfully for positions on the city's parks and recreation and planning commission.

Dyer said, "It is important that some members of the council work in town as well as live here."

He is a graduate of Stanford University. A member of the Sierra Club, he also has been active in the Boy Scouts, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club and the Marin County Bar Association.

Plans For Park In Canal Area Revised As State Disapproves

The City of San Rafael has revised plans for a canal area park in the wake of state disapproval of the project.

Parks and Recreation Director Andrew J. Snyder Jr. said today the city has redesigned fill plans for the 1.8-acre parcel at Canal Street and Kerner Boulevard to preserve a marsh area adjacent to the San Rafael Canal.

The state Department of Fish and Game had urged the Army Corps of Engineers to reject a city request for a fill permit for 7,000 cubic yards of fill on the site, because it might damage the marsh.

The corps is expected to rule on the new fill plan in about a month, according to corps spokesman E. R. Schleiger.

Snyder said the new plan preserves a 50-foot strip of land immediately adjacent to canal banks.

In analyzing the park fill plan, the state found that the canal marsh provides "important fish and wildlife benefits that should be preserved," and is inhabited by three species of rare or endangered wildlife.

In addition, state inspectors found that "the quality of the water in San Rafael Canal does not meet the state's standards for water contact sports. Until such time as the water quality improves, persons should be discouraged from such activities as swimming, surfboarding, skin diving and water skiing."

Two Bank Of America Units Hit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bandits in two unrelated holdups robbed Bank of America offices of more than $22,000, police say.

The robberies occurred within minutes of each other yesterday. Three masked gunmen made off with $19,000 from the Glen Park branch at 12:25 p.m., police said.

Officers said bank security guard Richard Hargens pursued the three as they fled in a car driven by an accomplice. Two shots were fired in the chase, but no one was hit.

Police said the car was found abandoned a short distance away.

About 15 minutes after the holdup, a young woman pulled a gun on a teller at the West Geary branch of Bank of America and fled with just under $3,000, officer John Komisky said.

Komisky said the woman was caught by bank security guard Andy Stopplewerth and the money recovered.

Oh, Deer! This Was Some Foxhunt

WARRENTOWN, Va. (AP) — The foxhounds chased deer instead of foxes, the deer ran down route 802 instead of through the woods, and at high noon the whole baying, galloping mass, followed by mounted hunters, thundered through Warrenton.

It all began Monday as a foxhunt in this hunt country 45 miles southwest of Washington, D.C.

Two deer vaulted through a window at the law office of Robert D. T. Lawrence, traumatizing two legal secretaries and an IBM repairman. Another doe tried the plate glass window of a downtown notion shop, but the thick glass held.

The deer in the law office exited through a rear window and was last seen hoofing it out of town in a northeasterly direction. The doe that smacked into the notion shop window headed southeast.

After viewing the scene from his law office across Culpepper Street, John Alexander said:

"District court was in session, and I believe every lawyer in town was out watching . . .

"And of course foxhounds all over the place. Just all over the place!"

The hounds, tail-wagging and baying, milled around downtown among the noon shoppers for awhile until they were corralled by the chagrined hunters.

"They don't track too well around cars and people and such," said Warrenton Police Chief H.B. Jones.

The hunters stopped outside of town.

"They're just mortified," said one fox hunt authority.

A Tax Hike Looms For Customers

Taxpayers in the Novato Sanitary District can expect a tax hike of about 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation during the 1974-75 fiscal year, according to Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph.

District directors decided Monday night against imposing a service charge to gain revenue next fiscal year, but will continue to pursue the idea of such a charge possibly in 1975-76, Joseph said.

Thus it is likely the maintenance and operation tax of 33 cents per $100 assessed valuation will be increased next fiscal period, Joseph said.

The district is short $76,000 this year and is tapping its capital improvement fund to cover the deficit, he said.

Directors canceled the next regular meeting on Dec. 24 because of Christmas and scheduled its meetings next month on Jan. 10 and 28 at 6 p.m. at the district office, 500 Davidson Street, Novato.

Sausalito Council Favors Children's Theater Idea

The Sausalito City Council last night tentatively approved a plan by the parks and recreation commission to start a children's theater program.

Mayor Robin Sweeny said she was informed a theater instructor would cost about $6 hourly. "Somehow that figure seems a little excessive to me," she said. Councilman Stephen A. Fraser took issue with Mrs. Sweeny's remark.

The council unanimously approved the fund transfer, reserving the right to give the theater program a final review after the recreation commission acts on it.

McKenzie said the money will also pay part of the salary for a Martin Luther King School recreation supervisor.

The Sausalito City Council Also:

REVIEW — Agreed to make city development projects available for county review when necessary provided that no delays are caused.

STREETS — Approved on first reading an ordinance preventing parking at Sausalito Boulevard and Spencer Avenue, and approved stop signs there.

APPOINTMENT — Reappointed George Carney to a two-year term on the Marin County Mosquito Abatement District.

OPTION — Put in writing its agreement reached verbally this fall with the school district for the purchase of the Central School building, with the city paying utility and insurance costs and $14,145 for a six-month option, prorated at time of purchase.

REFUSE — Allowed the Bay Cities Refuse Co. to make its free January refuse pickup the last Monday in January rather than during the entire week as in the past.

HOUSE — Concurred with City Mgr. McKenzie's purchase of a house at 45 Lincoln Drive from Albert St. Cyr, former city manager. The city is part-owner of the residence.

RECORDS — Concurred with the city manager's decision to pay $3,500 to the Remington Rand Corp. to index city ordinances and resolutions and to set up a history file of all deeds and agreements.

PARKING — Set for consideration Thursday a request by businessmen for 2-hour free parking Monday through Friday to encourage Christmas shopping.

College Offers Comets Course

A special short course on comets, designed for the public, will be offered at Sonoma State College in January.

Taught by Dr. Joseph Tenn, assistant professor of physics and astronomy, the course will include telescopic observations of the Comet Kohoutek. The class will meet for four consecutive evenings starting Jan. 7 in Darwin Hall.

Reservations must be made in advance at the college's office of continuing education.

Ban Is Lifted On Offshore Drilling

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Environmentalists today denounced the state's approval of renewed offshore oil drilling, declaring it could cause massive oil spills and blacken the scenic California coastline.

"It's a tragic decision that could ruin one of America's most beautiful shorelines," said Al Weingand, chairman of Santa Barbara's Get Oil Out (GOO).

The ban on offshore drilling, imposed nearly five years ago after the disastrous Santa Barbara oil spill, was lifted yesterday by the state Lands Commission to help ease the energy crisis.

The all-Republican commission voted 3-to-0 to permit resumption of drilling from existing platforms in the Santa Barbara Channel and the Huntington Beach area if oil companies adopt new safeguards designed to prevent spills.

Democratic Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. charged the commission had been "brainwashed" by oil companies into believing the "environment must be sacrificed to avert an energy crisis."

Republican Sen. Robert Lagomarsino of Ojai said production from the new drilling "will be very small compared to the risk involved."

Controller Houston I. Flournoy, commission chairman, said he was "very confident" the new drilling would not result in a major spill, and viewed the action as striking "a livable balance between resource needs and ecological health."

The ban on drilling in state waters was imposed by the commission in 1969 after the well blowout in federal waters which resulted in 800,000 gallons of crude oil fouling the Pacific Ocean, Some 1,300 cores have been drilled on state tidelands without incident.

"Under the new drilling and operating procedures, there is little chance of a spill," said E.N. Gladish, the commission's executive secretary. "We cannot, however, and no one can, guarantee that there will not be a spill."

He said the new drilling could begin production in about a year

Synanon Action Seen Next Week

An emergency ordinance to clamp a lid on Synanon's growing population in West Marin will be considered next Tuesday by the Marin County Board of Supervisors. (Another supervisors story, page 1.)

The threat of tougher regulations on the drug rehabilitation foundation came as supervisors reacted yesterday to a report from county planners that Synanon's population now stands at about 550.

Under existing county ordinances, there is no restriction on the number of persons who can live on the foundation's two ranches as long as residents are engaged in agriculture.

Additionally, the county has only limited jurisdiction over new dwellings (if occupied by agricultural workers) on the foundation's two ranches, located east of Marshall.

(Existing A-60 zoning restricts the number of dwellings to one for every 60 acres for nonagricultural families but does not limit agricultural family dwellings.)

Some county officials maintain Synanon is using this as a loophole to increase the number of persons in its communal rehabilitation program, which otherwise would fall under stricter county zoning regulations.

One of those is Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere who said he supported efforts to close the loophole and urged adoption of a 120-day emergency ordinance to halt new construction and allow time for further study.

As part of the emergency ordinance to be considered next week, supervisors will review a proposed amendment to the zoning code to apply the same density limits to agricultural families as to nonagricultural.

Where dormitories or communal living quarters are proposed, such as at Synanon, "accommodation of three persons shall be considered the equivalent of one dwelling unit" under the zoning, the proposed amendment reads.

It would apply not only to Synanon, but to all lands under agricultural zoning, said Planning Director Werner von Gundell.

Under the proposed amendment, the number could be exceeded by going through the use permit procedure, which gives the county tight controls.

Von Gundell said the proposed amendment was reviewed and referred to the county agricultural advisory committee and two members — including chairman Robert Parks of Tomales — reported it "would not harm present agricultural operations."

Oil Tax Hike

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada intends to raise the tax on all oil it exports from the present $1.90 per barrel to $2.20. The increase is scheduled for January, and Canada's energy minister, Donal MacDonald, said yesterday the export tax could go as high as $4 in February.

Board Opposes A Cut In Hours At Library

Marin County Supervisors yesterday approved turning off lights and turning down furnaces in response to the energy crisis — but refused to cut down on county library hours as suggested, and couldn't decide whether to ban office coffee pots.

The decisions and indecisions came during an hour-long review of a 10-page conservation survey prepared by Mario Balestrieri, deputy director of public works.

Ray W. Foreaker Jr., Balestrieri's boss, said he calculated that outlawing individual coffee pots and hotplates, portable heaters and desk lamps in the county offices, and eliminating electric pencil sharpeners and fans would save enough power to supply four homes.

But Supervisor Michael Wornum objected that the office coffee pots helped morale and cut down on trips to the civic center cafeteria. Francis J. O'Connell, county employee spokesmen, and Mill Valley Mayor Jean S. Barnard protested any desk lamps ban, arguing that heating used much more energy than lighting.

The supervisors deferred decision on the "extraneous appliances" pending further study by the county administrator.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere voted against the delay.

The supervisors unanimously asked Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to turn off parking lot lights at the Veterans Memorial Building when the lot isn't in use. Foreaker explained that the utility firm must obtain permission from the state Public Utilities Commission to shorten the lighting hours, under the existing rate rules.

Board members couldn't decide whether to limit the number of evening meetings in the civic center so janitorial work can be finished and utilities turned down earlier. Roumiguiere successfully requested that the night meeting issue be given more study.

The energy crisis survey mentioned that the escalator, one elevator and two of the three civic center boilers have been shut down, air conditioning curtailed, and county vehicles slowed to 55 miles per hour except in emergencies. It also suggested reducing street sweeping operations, using debris boxes instead of dump trucks, and other steps to offset a predicted 15 per cent cut in fuel allocations to the county.

Counterculture Book Published

The People's Yellow Pages, a directory of the counterculture's businesses and services around the Bay Area, has been published in a third edition.

The book's format follows that of a commercial telephone book. Listings are alphabetized (abortion and aikido through yoga and zen).

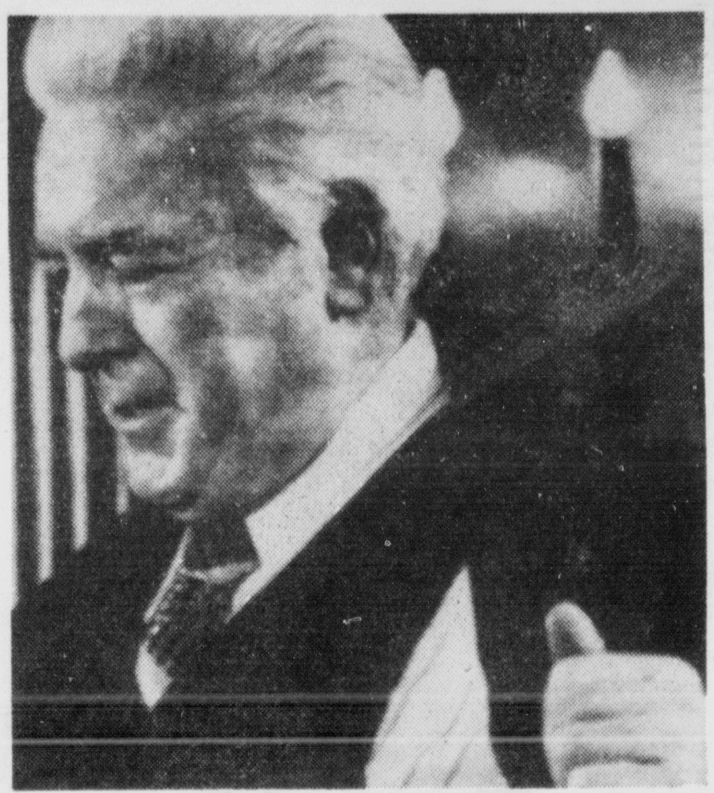
The directory, for sale at many book stores, was first published in 1971.



NO GUN IN MY VEST

Labor Secretary Peter Brennan opens his suit coat in response to being asked by a reporter at a Labor Department ceremony yesterday if he still carried a gun as he did when he was a construction labor leader in New York City. Brennan was informally dubbed "Pistol Pete" after aides disclosed earlier this year that he had carried a pearl handled revolver at times even after becoming labor secretary. (UPI Telephoto)

Tam Valley Auto Wrecker Given Year To Relocate

MacAndy Auto Wrecking in Tamalpais Valley, considered an eyesore by some residents, was given one year yesterday by Marin County supervisors to relocate elsewhere.

The action came on a 3-to-2 vote with supervisors Robert A. Roumiguiere and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. urging more time be given the 20-year-old business at Dolan's Corner.

A spokesman for the firm argued it was unfair to force the firm to close down or move (by not renewing a use permit) because it had been in the area longer than most complaining residents.

Residents, supported by Supervisor Michael Wornum, countered that the wrecking yard is no longer a proper land use since the surrounding area has developed into a residential community and will be the main entrance to the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

In setting the one-year deadline, supervisors tossed out a planning commission decision to grant only 90 days to move the old junkers.

Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

JUNIPER RUST — Requested officials of the state Department of Food and Agriculture to meet and answer questions why the state should not reimburse property owners for Tam juniper plants removed in its eradication program of hawthorn-juniper rust disease.

McINNIS PARK — Authorized the parks and recreation department to proceed with contracting for schematic drawings and detailed planning of the swim and tennis complex at the John F. McInnis Park. Architectural fees are expected to be about $80,000. Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste dissented.

MEETING — Will meet Monday at 8 p.m. with the Novato City Council to discuss the proposed growth control ordinance. The meeting will be held at Novato City Hall.

LOAN — Approved a $3,000 loan to the Greenbrae County Service Area to finance appraisals and related matters connected with the service area's planned acquisition of open space lands behind Marin Catholic High School.

SONOMA — Approved 3-to-2, with Roumiguiere and Wornum dissenting, dispatch of a letter to Sonoma County supervisors complaining an attorney had exceeded the bounds of propriety and good judgment in handling Sonoma's side of the intercounty dispute over location of the Renaissance Pleasure Faire. Sonoma's Deputy County Counsel Prentice Fish had ired Marc supervisors by asking them for an accounting of any private meetings with fair promoters or gifts from the promoters. There was none such, the Marin officials have said.

COUNTY PLAN — Gave economic consulting firm Baxter, McDonald and Smart of San Francisco a second three-month extension of deadline to April 1 for its report on the economic impact of the new Marin County General Plan, after the firm's Angus McDonald said it would add no cost to the $80,00 study and pleaded the need for time to complete a doctoral dissertation, illness of a key employee and that one portion of the study has proven "surprisingly difficult and time consuming."

CORRECTIONS — Directed the county administrator to draft a statement of policy and responsibilities for the recently created 13-member corrections commission, whose members have been divided as to whether they are limited to advising the new department of corrections or may look into correctional issues in all departments, such as the probation department.

BELVEDERE — Unanimously approved a request from Supervisor Michael Wornum that the county planning department be allowed to contract to provide a general plan for the City of Belvedere. The city will pay all the expected $6,000 cost; no county staff would be needed, Planning Director Werner von Gundell reported.

JOBS — Voted 4-to-1 with A. Roumiguiere opposing, to continue 17 Emergency Employment Act jobs through June 30, 1974, because federal funds originally granted for the on-the-job training program won't be used up by the original Feb. 1 deadline.

AIRPORT — Approved increasing the contract for engineers Wilsey and Ham of Foster City to $31,300 maximum to plan additional improvements to the Marin County Airport, Gnoss Field. More federal funds are available, Public Works Director Ray W Foreaker Jr reported.

FIRE STATION — Hired contractor Joseph Redmond of San Rafael, lowest of four bidders, for $150,348 to build a new county fire department administration building and dormitory in Woodacre.

Dancers, musicians and singers entertain children at the Novato High School Cafeteria. Approximately 130 children attended last night and were given gifts and food by Santa Claus, according to Joseph D. Gargiulo, chairman of the Novato Community Christmas Party. Entertainers came from all over Marin County to help with the charitable event.

Senate Votes For New System To Operate Bankrupt Railroads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted yesterday to create a giant new railroad system for the East and Midwest from the best lines of seven bankrupt railroads.

The House has passed similar legislation, and final congressional approval is expected before Congress adjourns for the year. A compromise version of the bill will now be worked out by a House-Senate conference committee.

The legislation likely would lead to mass abandonments of thousands of miles of low-density rail lines in 17 states unless local communities or states agreed to underwrite 25 per cent of their losses with the federal government paying the remaining 75 per cent.

However, the Senate approved an amendment that would place a moratorium on further rail abandonments anywhere in the country for two years unless there was no opposition from shippers or the communities or states served by the line.

The new railroad would be primarily a freight system, but under terms of the Senate bill, the Transportation Department was ordered to produce recommendations for an expanded national passenger rail system under Amtrak.

The legislation contains $2 billion in loan guarantees for purchase of freight cars by all the nation's railroads, along with $10 million to set up a national computerized system to keep track of the cars.

In creating the new system, two new government corporations would be established: the Government National Railway Association, (Ginnie Rae) which would help plan the new system and have loan guarantee authority to provide funds for the system and for other failing railroads and the United Rail Corporation, which would actually run the new system.

The seven bankrupt lines are the Penn Central, the Lehigh Valley, the Erie-Lackawanna, the Reading, the Jersey Central, the Boston & Maine and the Ann Arbor.

Kissinger Will Stop In Algiers

LONDON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today extended his Middle East tour to include Algeria and made substantial progress towards mending frayed Anglo-American relations, U.S. and British officials said.

A spokesman for Kissinger said he will meet with Algerian President Houari Boumedienne and Foreign Minister Abdel Aziz Boutelike during a brief stopover in Algiers Thursday en route to Cairo, which was to have been the first stop of his Middle East tour.

The spokesman would say only that Kissinger would discuss "questions of mutual interest" in Algiers, a reference that could only mean the Middle East crisis and ways of achieving lasting peace in the area.

The announcement of the Algiers stopover came before Kissinger emerged from a one hour and 40 minute conference with British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home at the Foreign Office.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the talks were "free from recrimination, were positive and constructive and the Anglo-American relationship emerged strengthened."

"The talks took the form of a friendly and forwardlooking exchange of views," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said Kissinger and Douglas-Home agreed on "further consultation measures" to avoid future misunderstandings between United States and Britain. He did not elaborate.

British officials said progress has also been made in the drafting of a "Transatlantic Declaration" which aims at setting out the broad principles of future cooperation between the United States and its European allies.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Renee Sheer reported yesterday someone stole her truck, her purse, $330 in the purse, and her 4,600 pairs of pantyhose.

Miss Sheer, a truck driver, said she had parked the truck and was preparing to fill a store's display racks with the $4,800 worth of pantyhose when she looked out of the store and saw the truck being driven away by two men.

Hub Market Robbed Of $100

A San Anselmo market was robbed of $100 at gunpoint yesterday, police said today.

Police said a man who waved a blue steel revolver forced a clerk at Short Stop Market, 4 Bolinas Avenue, to empty two cash drawers at 7:20 p.m. yesterday.

The man, described as wearing rose-colored glasses and a raincoat, thanked a clerk who handed over the cash and then fled on foot.

Demos Set A Midterm Convention

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats will hold their 1974 midterm national convention, the first of its kind for a major U.S. political party, at Kansas City, Mo., next Dec. 6-8, it was announced today.

The site selection was announced by the Planning Advisory Committee of the Democratic National Committee after several months of considering bids from nine cities.

The meeting, which the Democrats are calling a conference, will draw 2,035 delegates from every state and territory. Its main purpose will be to act on a new Democratic party charter, but presidential politics probably will dominate the meeting a month after the 1974 state and congressional elections.

The conference itself is somewhat controversial. The original draft of the Democratic Charter submitted to the 1972 national convention provided for a regular mid-term meeting to discuss and act on party positions on national issues.

That provision, along with establishment of a more formal national party structure, caused enough controversy at Miami Beach to put the entire charter question over for consideration.

WOODSY GIFT — This grassy knoll with its meandering flagstone path may soon belong to the City of Mill Valley. It has been offered by representatives of the late John R. Geary, who created a valuable collection of flora native to California on the third of an acre near the Dipsea Trail.

Mill Valley Is Offered A Gift Of Edgewood Botanic Garden

The Edgewood Botanic Garden, a collection of dozens of plants native to Marin and California lying near the Dpisea Trail in Mill Valley, has been offered to the city as a gift.

Acquisition of the property was discussed at a parks and recreation commission meeting Monday, according to Don L. Dimitratos, parks and recreation director, who said the commission recommended that the city council accept the property from the Edgewood Botanic Garden Trust Fund.

Dimitratos said trust fund representatives explained that the fund is running out of money to maintain the garden, begun in 1961 by the late John R. Geary, a Mill Valley psychiatrist and nature enthusiast.

The garden covers about one-third of an acre and lies between Cypress and Edgewood avenues. It has long been a stopping spot for hikers on the nearby Dipsea and Pipeline trails.

The county assessor has estimated the value of the land at $37,000, and plants and improvements in the garden are believed to be worth about $29,000, according to Dimitratos.

He said that, if the city accepts the garden, it will have to pay maintenance costs of between $500 and $1,521 a year, depending on how much care is given to the property.

The garden contains many varieties of ceanothus, ferns, manzanita, oak, pine and roses which are native to California or Marin. There is also a collection of rhododendrons and azaleas native to other states.

Local botanists and homeowners groups have asked the city to take over the property.

Death Shock Said Cause Of Robbery

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A man accused of murdering a park ranger at Point Reyes National Seashore last August was a spectator when the killing took place, the man's attorney said yesterday in U.S. District Court here.

The incident so disturbed Alan W. Veale's mind that Veale later robbed a Berkeley bank, attorney Paul Harris claimed. Veale, 24, of San Francisco, is on trial for the $995 holdup of the bank on Sept. 6.

Harris established the Point Reyes Seashore killing as a defense argument, during his opening statement before a seven-man, five-woman jury hearing the robbery case in Judge William T. Sweigert's court.

Sweigert earlier tried to avoid bringing out that Veale also is one of two men indicted in the Aug. 5 slaying of Park Ranger Kenneth C. Patrick, asking newsmen covering the robbery trial to avoid linking the two cases in their stories.

Harris said Veale was picked up by two friends and driven to Point Reyes for some midnight target shooting and poaching of game animals. The attorney said the trio's car was stopped and Patrick shined a flashlight on Veale in the car's back seat and "someone in the front seat shot the ranger."

Seeing the killing, combined with Veale's poverty-strained life in a Berkeley ghetto, so deranged the youth that he turned robber, Harris claimed.

Veronza L. Bowers Jr., 27, of San Francisco, is to stand trial the week of Jan. 7 on the federal grand jury murder indictment. Whether Veale will be tried at the same time or separately has not yet been determined by U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents said Veale implicated Bowers in the Point Reyes episode after Veale was arrested through photos taken by the robbed bank's automatic cameras. The third man in the car hasn't been named or charged.

Tanker Truck Used To Siphon Off Gas

SALINAS (UPI) — Thieves using a tanker truck siphoned off 800 gallons of gasoline from an underground tank at Raleigh Alston's service station.

"No one would give a second thought to seeing a gas tanker at a service station in the middle of the night, would they?" a police officer said yesterday.

New School District Plan Opposed

The Petaluma Board of Education last night refused to endorse a proposal for a new unified school district north of Petaluma, and, in effect, asked that the plan be sent back to the drawing board.

The Cotati-Rohnert Park Elementary School District has proposed that a new district be formed which would include the junior and senior high schools in the area, now in the Petaluma High School District, as well as three small elementary school districts and parts of others.

The new district would provide education for youngsters from kindergarten through high school in the greater Rohnert Park area.

The Petaluma board last night listened to strong opposition from representatives of the small districts, Libert, Dunham and Penngrove, which fear loss of local control and higher tax rates. Other districts affected would be parts of Belleview and Old Adobe.

Representatives of the Cotati-Rohnert Park district again argued for the plan.

The Petaluma Board, however, passed a resolution that the current study being considered by the Sonoma County Committee on School District Organization which is the proposal for the new district be set aside and a new study be made.

The trustees asked also that such a study include the rest of the Petaluma high school district and the elementary districts within its attendance area and, further, that a staff member from the county schools office "with enough time" assist the committee in making it.

The committee is due to discuss the matter again on Jan. 10 and make a decision on whether to hold an election to determine if the district should be created.

Opponents have expressed fears that in such an election, the more populous areas of Rohnert Park and Cotati would outvote the smaller communities.

The Petaluma Board of Education Also:

APPRECIATION — Awarded plaques to the Petaluma agricultural mechanics team for participation in the national agricultural mechanics contest in October.

CANCELLATION — Cancelled the Dec. 25 meeting because it falls on Christmas Day.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of high school teachers Marilyn Goehring, who is moving; James E. Morris, who gave personal reasons, and Paul Nobmann, who is leaving teaching.

HIRED — Approved the hiring of Karen Vinti as a high school teacher at $5,400 for the rest of the school year after Jan. 28.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to Jan. 8 in memory of Nada Stanley, a Grant School teacher who died recently.

Petaluma Sets Deadline For Rating Appeals

The Petaluma City Council last night set Jan. 23 as the date for developers to appeal the ratings given them by the city's residential development evaluation board.

The board has listed priorities for builders next year under the city's growth control ordinance, which limits new housing units to 500 a year.

(The ordinance is due for a test in U.S. District Court in San Francisco next month.)

The council also was told last night that the $2.65 million bond issues for park improvements and a new library on the March 5 ballot would require a tax rate of 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Zenger Award To Katharine Graham

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Katharine Graham, publisher of the Washington Post, has become the first woman to be named recipient of the John Peter Zenger award for distinguished service to freedom of the press, given by the University of Arizona.

"The reputation of the Post was on the line during those long, lonely months when one newspaper carried the brunt of the Watergate investigation," her nomination said.

Two Take Seats On Parks Board

Tina Helgren and Dr. Peter Weber III have been installed as new members of the Rohnert Park Parks and Recreation Commission. They replaced Elmer Hamann and Nancy Mettert, who resigned.

In other action Monday night, the commission recommended that the new youth advisory council, proposed by Mayor Armando Flores, consist of seven young people, rather than five as suggested earlier. The commissioners thought adding an additional seventh or eighth grader and another high school student would give the council more balance, according to James Pekkain, recreation director.

The council has been proposed as an advisory body to the city council, planning commission and parks and recreation commission.

Alto Board Elects

The Alto Sanitary District board last night elected director Franklin J. McClain to serve as president and director Daniel R. McNeill as secretary.

Lesson Not Taught By The Textbooks

A generation of youngsters in the Pajaro Valley of Santa Cruz County are likely to grow up with diminished respect for law and the American legal system, thanks to their teachers and the Pajaro Unified School District board.

On Tuesday, Dec. 4, the 490 teachers in the district went out on strike — a walkout voted by locals of both California Teachers Association and California Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO.

That evening, a Santa Cruz County Superior Court judge issued a temporary restraining order against the strike, ordering the teachers back to work. The teachers, however, ignored the order. For the remainder of the week, they stayed out, and picketed the 21 schools of the district with "Unfair" signs.

The school board kept the schools open with substitute teachers. But attendance was down sharply.

THE TEACHERS thus gave the 12,803 pupils in Pajaro Valley schools a lesson in non-citizenship: Ignore court orders when you don't agree with them.

The school board, although it kept the schools open, continued to negotiate with representatives of the striking teachers — whose strike was illegal to begin with and had been enjoined by the court.

During the week end, board and teachers came to an agreement to end the walkout.

The school board thus completed the youngsters' education in non-citizenship: Defy the court and you can win.

The teachers did not win much. The school board's last pay offer before the walkout was a scale ranging from a minimum of $8,021 to a maximum of $16,225 per year. The two teacher unions settled for a scale of $8,063 to $16,311. Total additional cost of the pay package, according to school district figures, was $50,000 — or not much more than $100 per teacher. That amounts to less than the four days' pay lost by the walkout.

BUT THE PAJARO Valley teachers accomplished several other things by their strike.

They sharply divided the community, according to editor Frank F. Orr of the Watsonville Register-Pajaronian and Sun. Parents "chose up sides," some bombarding school trustees to "hang tough," others urging that the teachers be given what they wanted; some insisting that their children attend school during the walkout, others keeping their youngsters home "in support of the teachers."

And teachers and board taught young Pajaronians a lesson they are likely to remember: Ignore the law and the courts when you think you can benefit from doing so.

We doubt that is part of the education that Pajaro Valley parents intended their children to receive in the public schools.

To Eat Or Not To Eat?

They are the most handsome mushrooms we have ever seen. Really beautiful. Creamy white gills. Perfect form. A fawnish-white cap. Edible?

These mushrooms growing in the manured soil of our rose bed send us on a three-hour reading expedition through our fungi books. We think we nailed them down as succulent members of the Tricholoma genus. Yet, we are haunted by the fact that they are quite similar to the deadly Amanita in some respects.

We were particularly struck by this description of Amanita: "They are the aristocrats of fungi. Their noble bearing, their beauty, their power for good and evil, and above all their perfect structure, have placed them first in their realm."

We think we'll study a lot more before we eat garden volunteer fungi.

State Trying To Reduce Cost Of Welfare Hike

By RUS WALTON

Those legislative birds were back on the roost last week, and they raised the state's welfare payments to the aged, blind and disabled by $122 million a year — plus cost-of-living increases.

No committee hearings. No public debates. Just wham-bam, and there it was. California was already second only to Alaska in such benefit payouts. Now we go even higher.

Of course, part of the action was demanded by Washington — a form of legislative backmail to get back money California taxpayers had sent east. That's the way it goes these days: the feds dictate, the states legislate — and we pay.

DAVID SWOAP JR., California's director of social welfare, says things could have been worse for the taxpayers.

"The least expensive version of the recent court decision — the one that said the administration could not increase those payments through departmental regulations — was $171 million. Maybe even more.

"The least expensive version of Assemblyman John Burton's AB 18 — the bill that was defeated by just two votes back in September — was $140 million.

"We came out of the special session at $122 million. I figure we saved the folks a bit of dough."

Every little bit helps, these days. I thanked Dave Swoap for you.

Swoap says the new legislation will not do much damage to the state's basic welfare reforms that were enacted two years ago. The one big change will come in the relatives' responsibility law. That payment scale was reduced to pre-1971 requirements, meaning individuals with relatives on welfare will now make smaller monthly payments to the county.

SWOAP THINKS he may be able to make up part of the additional $122 million in welfare costs through economies. He's working on what he calls "the second mile" in welfare reform.

Two task forces are at work on this. One group is reviewing AFDC — Aid to Families with Dependent Children. That category of welfare accounts for almost ¾ of all welfare caseloads in the state.

The task force is "combing the corners" of AFDC to see what was not included in the reforms of two years ago that should have been. And it is looking for reforms that were included but have not yet been implemented.

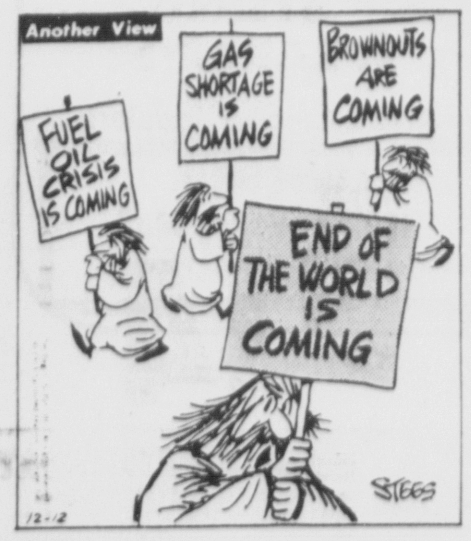
A SECOND TASK FORCE is checking into the food stamp program. Swoap reports three are few controls on that and "massive opportunities for abuse — theft, fraud and counterfeiting."

Five years ago the net cost of the food stamp program in California was $35 million. This year it's $500 million.

College students often "qualify" for food stamps even though their parents are able to support them, says Swoap, due to inadequate checking at the county level.

A lot of the students see the food stamp game as a rip-off game, asserts Swoap. He tells of an article in the McGeorge School of Law campus newspaper. It pointed out loopholes in the food stamp program and advised studnets on how to take advantage of them to get on the food stamp program.

Swoap chuckles: "We closed those loopholes in a hurry."



"Nobody pays any attention to me any more."

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Busing For School Integration Runs Up Against Fuel Shortage

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Classroom integration has run head-on into the energy crisis.

Complete elimination of busing is among measures being considered to reduce schools' fuel requirements, according to the Dec. 3 Legislative Review of the Education Commission of the States.

"The no-busing proposals," said the Review, "are coming from those who don't have sufficient gasoline or diesel fuel in sight to keep their wheels moving very long, as well as from those who see the energy crisis as the answer to the desegregationist's prayer."

THE DAY AFTER the appearance of that report, however, the San Francisco Board of Education was told that eight of that city's high schools, 13 of its junior high schools, and 36 of its elementary schools did not meet the "racial balance" requirements of a federal court order under which the system is operating. Busing to achieve the court-mandated mix already has hiked San Francisco's school costs considerably. But it has not been enough, reported Supt. Steven P. Morena. To bring the "unbalanced" schools into compliance will require still more busing.

No one at the San Francisco board meeting had any idea where the additional motor fuel is to be found.

That same day, the U. S. Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, Ohio, upheld a Memphis, Tenn., school busing plan which had been approved by a lower court but appealed by the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, which did not think it went far enough. It involved busing 38,000 Memphis pupils — 83 per cent of the entire school enrollment.

AT THE SAME TIME that more and more busing for "racial balance" is being mandated, schools are planning such measures as extended Christmas vacations, "cold days" closings, and shortening of school terms because of insufficient gasoline and fuel oil, according to the Education Commission of the States.

The Maryland Legislature has given Gov. Marvin Mandel authority to close all schools in the state if necessary because of fuel shortage. Similar authority is being proposed in some other states.

In Colorado, some suburban districts expect to have to shut down their schools within two weeks if a cold snap hits.

Massachusetts and Illinois have authorized districts to reduce the school term f necessary because of lack of fuel oil and gasoline.

And all across the country, school Christmas trees will go without lights this year as a symbol of energy saving.

AMONG THE FINDINGS of that federal appeals court in the Memphis case was that the City of Memphis had been guilty of obstructionist tactics by failing to apply for more gasoline for the school district —the gasoline needed for all those extra buses.

A long series of court orders, gradually widening and distorting the original Brown vs. Board of Education decision that a child could not be barred from her neighborhood school because of race, have imposed great added costs on many districts.

The results have included improved schooling for black children in many places. But whether busing children back and forth to provide black-white checkerboard patterns in the classroom has contributed much to this is a matter of wide dispute.

There scarcely can be dispute, however, over the proposition that lengthening vacations and closing schools whenever the weather gets cold would be harmful to the education of all children, black and white.

Some school boards might welcome it, because it would help a little in keeping down costs. But the children (as so often) would be the sufferers.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Opponents' Time Cut In School Debate

Betty Frost's Dec. 5 coverage of the AAUW-sponsored meeting in which the Mill Valley community explored the concept of year-round schools was entirely accurate. However, something of which neither Mrs. Frost nor the audience was aware was that Mr. Jack Osman and I limited ourselves to a total of five minutes of panel time, as had been requested of us by the AAUW.

On the other hand, year-round proponents on the panel imposed no such limitation on themselves, but rather occupied at least a half-hour of the meeting. . .

In the spirit of "equal coverage", may I ask that you print my plea to working mothers in the Mill Valley School District to become fully acquainted with the concept of year-round schools, its advantages and disadvantages. Will year-round schools pose unmanageable child care burdens on the working mother? If so, should the school district accept the responsibility in its year-round school planning to aid in alleviating some of these burdens?

Fighting Ourselves Instead Of Inflation

In a war against ourselves, it is difficult to identify the enemy.

Unquestionably, we are in a war against inflation, but who is our enemy? Failing to recognize this, we can continue fighting forever, without victory.

Generally, in a war, we blame the other side, but who is the other side, when people fight people for advantage?

At this point in time, it would serve little purpose to quibble over which came first, the high cost of living or the higher wages. We have them both, and we know, now, that they are getting us nowhere. We also know that one won't stop rising without the other.

This is a sad situation, because the harm we do, we do to ourselves.

This deserves some profound thinking, by all of us.

Bigger Citizen Committees Advocated

The Citizens Advisory Committee on the San Rafael General Plan has finished most of its work. To those who took part, the value of having a great variety of experience to draw upon was impressive.

The council was wise in establishing a CAC and the public hearings hopefully will see many well informed citizens being an aid rather than a hindrance in the final formation of the plan.

The council should be encouraged to follow Councilman Mulryan's views in getting more people rather than fewer people on these committees which are advisory and hence work best with many and varied backgrounds to draw upon. If the CACs were primarily decision making bodies then perhaps limiting their membership would be wise. But basically the CAC is like a questionnaire sent to the citizenry — and the more questionnaires, the better the feedback.

Hopefully CACs would be a welcome aid to government which desperately needs less centralization and bureaucracy and more of the common sense of citizen input.

Vice Presidency Suddenly Becomes Of Great Importance

When in American history has the vice presidency been so important? In the 1930s a popular musical comedy celebrated that official as Alexander Throttlebottom. The word has entered the language as a symbol of futility. Many vice presidents have heaped scorn on the office in earthy terms.

None of this is the case with Vice President Ford. In Washington there is widespread talk, nowhere more vigorous than in Republican party circles, that the 40th vice president may become the 38th president. It is not morbid talk. It is reaction to the troubles of the Nixon administration. And it may be entirely wrong, entirely wishful.

President Nixon repeatedly has affirmed his intention to see his troubles out. He is supported and encouraged by considerable sentiment throughout the country from ardent Nixon loyalists. They minimize the events of the past year and a half, attribute comparable scandals to earlier politicians, and blame the news media for exaggerating the troubles.

THE NIXON administration has its undeniable strengths. The president and Secretary Kissinger are bold and experienced world diplomats. They have charted a shrewd, delicate balance-of-power policy between the two Communist superstates. They are carrying it out well.

Recently they faced up to a crisis in the Middle East and helped produce more hope for a solution than has existed for a quarter of a century. Taking a long time about it, they got American troops out of Vietnam and American prisoners back. They have fences to repair in Western Europe and Japan. But on the whole they deserve high marks for strong policies in a difficult time.

On the domestic side, the score is not reassuring. The energy crisis, with multiple causes, was not adequately foreseen. There were no effective preventative measures. The public was not alerted and prepared. Remedial measures are only now being hastily scrambled together.

The domestic economy suffers severely from an unconscionable inflation. Business leadership bluntly anticipates recession. The pinch will hit every pocketbook. This is bound to have political consequences.

MEANTIME, Vice President Ford possesses the confidence of Congress. He fully supports the policies of the Nixon administration. His succession would be faithful to the voters' verdict in 1972. At the least, he would be expected to be a good caretaker president, and at best might turn into a Harry Truman. Nobody can say.

Up to now, however, the House of Representatives, shows little willingness to impeach President Nixon, even for the purpose of providing him what he can get in no other way: a genuine day in court.

The House Judiciary Committee does not expect to approach a vote on impeachment until spring. If there are other disturbing revelations touching the presidency, they might precipitate earlier action. And pressure for abdication is undeniably quite strong. It would have to be relentless and overpowering before the president could be expected to yield. But it is frankly admitted that such a time might come.

With this possibility in existence, it may be that the atmosphere will grow less tense. A solution for the crisis is possible. It does not have to be precipitated. The departure of Bryce Harlow and Melvin Laird from the White House will not help, unless men of comparable stature are willing to come aboard. There is vital work to be done in the executive offices, now as ever.

Mr. Laird has recommended, and the president seems to agree, that Vice President Ford should be given responsibilities in coordinating the domestic program which no vice president has ever held before.

Such plans have been suggested before, never fulfilled. If this comes about, the vice presidency becomes important for a reason other than the succession.

No miracles are expected. It will be a rough time for steering the American economy through hazards unequalled since the Great Depression. But the challenge and opportunity might lift the Nixon-Ford administration out of the slough of despond.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — On July 9, 1965, years of bloody effort by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference bore fruit. With belated but strong support from the White House, a federal voting rights bill passed the House of Representatives and was sent to conference for alignment with the Senate version. By common retrospective agreement, it was the most effective piece of civil rights legislation ever enacted.

During the SCLC effort in those years, a young black minister named Andrew Young seemed to be everywhere. As executive director of the organization headed by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., he was one of the leaders of the march from Selma to Montgomery, which lit the country's conscience and pushed the bill through Congress.

A middle-age congressman named Gerald Ford was on the other side. Not in outright opposition to voting rights in the abstract, but as a major advocate of a weaker bill, one that would have watered down the successful measure.

IF THAT BILL had prevailed instead, the Voting Rights Act could not have become so historic an instrument in enfranchising hundreds of thousands of Americans who had never voted before. Very likely, if the Ford version has passed, Andrew Young in 1972 would not have been able to become the first black congressman from the Deep South in modern times.

And, in turn, Young would not have been able to vote for Ford at another historic moment, when Congress confirmed him as vice president last week.

Yes, for him.

AS THE ONLY BLACK congressman to approve the Ford nomination, Young set an example of stature, political common sense, and Christian forgiveness — all of them worth popular emulation in these weeks and months. He did it not only with his vote but with his short accompanying speech.

He might have done as all other black congressmen did, and voted against Ford on his record. That record was laid out for the House by Rep. Donald Fraser of Minnesota, who opposed Ford and said why. He cited Ford's role in the fundamental fields of civil rights, social programs, labor, civil liberties, environment and defense-foreign policy, and leading the list were more than a dozen "anti" stands on civil rights matters, from 1950 up through last month.

Young knew all this, yet when he stood he put it aside and explained that his was an affirmative vote of "faith and hope that he will be a uniting and stabilizing force in a nation beset by division and crisis."

Noting that Mr. Nixon's resignation or impeachment would be a much less anxious development with a Republican successor confirmed by orderly process, he added that anyone picked within that process by this president would have had a similar political philosophy.

AND THEN HE SPOKE out of his own special background, but said what nearly all Americans must have had in mind when Mr. Ford was sworn in.

He looks to Mr. Ford, he said, "to rise to the occasion of assuming this high office, to grow in that position as many have in the past.

"Out of my own southern experience, I have confidence that people can overcome past parochial views and develop a broader perspective which takes into account the interest of all of the people. Decent men, placed in positions of trust, will serve decently. I believe that Mr. Ford is a decent man."

Mr. Nixon has abused his electoral mandate beyond any value, Young said. So "let us hope that Mr. Ford will respect and abide by his own mandate which we, as representatives of the people, are giving him in one fateful and possibly final act of trust."

What he meant by that, in case he understated it, was that the House vote to confirm Ford may have been confirming him at the same time as the next President of the United States. Should Mr. Nixon resign or be removed through impeachment, there would not be another vote on his replacement. That vote was cast last Thursday afternoon.

And on that roll call, the Rev. Andrew Young rose above past differences — and he and 386 of his colleagues put themselves in position to apply the highest standards to this man whose greatest recommendation, in these pathetic times, is the simple fact that he is "decent."

To Simplify Christmas List, First Eliminate 'Bad Guys'

It's the season — there's just not time for everything.

So, the best way to handle the holidays is to put things in priority and use one's limited energy to get the important ones done first.

For example, Christmas cards are loads of fun to receive, even if you've never heard of some of the senders, the same old bores write endless letters about their perfect children, and the people you'd really like to hear from simply sign, "Betty and John."

But to get Christmas cards, it's usually necessary to send a few. The whole task can be reduced to relative simplicity, I discovered last year, if you first make a list of people who are not going to be on the list.

FIRST, THERE ARE Nixon's tax accountants. I think they sound just neat, but I'm too jealous to put them on my Christmas card list. Rather, I think I'll send them a note asking them to write a how-to-do-it pamphlet I can give my own accountant. The latter hasn't caught on at all and obviously needs some lessons.

Turning a little more to the local scene, my gas station isn't going to make the list this year, either. The attendants seem to think that discontinuing the little niceties like washing the windshield, checking the oil and putting air in the tires is miraculously going to solve the energy crisis.

The San Rafael City Council is a scratch, too. Why can't the councilmen simply realize that a certain number of people earn their living working in downtown San Rafael and must park there? The workers do park their cars there, anyway, but must indulge in a parking roulette game, rushing out several times a day to move them a few feet. The end result is not more parking spaces for shoppers — just constant irritation for those who have to play the silly car juggling game.

YOU GET THE IDEA — the possibilities are endless — like the State Theater in Petaluma, which is showing "Deep Throat" for what seems like the 92nd week.

Now that that's out of the way — start on the good guys.

There are the post offices and banks which have adopted the "red carpet" line system — a simple procedure of making the awful decision of what is going to be the slow line.

There are the local craftsmen and artists — the "dirty hippies" of yesteryear, who are now producing some very nice wares, often at reasonable prices. They enliven the season with their fairs and festivals, and if they would discover that bright colors are not sinful, they'd be even more jolly.

And, finally, there's Bob Collins, an almost saintly young man who again this year is pulling together "Tiny Tim's Christmas" — an effort by many people to provide food and toys for the surprising number of poor people who still live in Marin.

He deserves not only a card but also a nice contribution to the program.

Californians Told How To Meet Energy Needs

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Rand Corp. scientists testified yesterday that if Californians joined in simple energy-saving efforts the state could come close to meeting current fuel shortages.

But the leader of the research team said conservation efforts must be put to use quickly in order to be effective.

Commissioned to do a year-long study of California energy needs, Rand representatives presented a joint legislative committee with preliminary results showing startling shortages of fuel but impressive possibilities for savings.

Rand researcher William Ahern told the subcommittee on state energy policy that California could be faced with a reduction from last year's supplies of 10-15 per cent in natural gas, 20-30 per cent in oil and up to 30 per cent in electrical generating. The estimates do not take into account California's normal growth.

But according to Richard D. Doctor, head of the Rand project, potential fuel shortages could be nearly equalized if California businesses and citizens immediately did their best to save by:

Carpooling, which could save up to 50,000 barrels of oil per day if commuter cars carried an average of 2.8 passengers instead of the current estimate of 1.4.

Reducing home thermostats to 68 degrees, which could save up to 100,000 barrels a day of oil or the equivalent.

Implementing various industrial "thermal management programs," which could save 75,000 barrels per day in the short run and even more over a longer period.

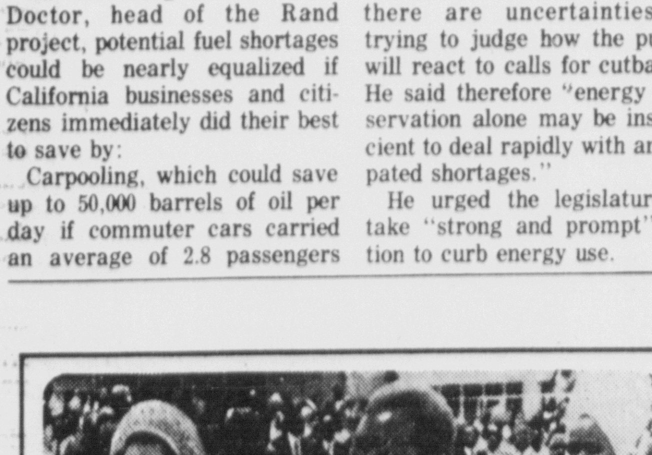
Cutting back industrial lighting, both in the number of bulbs and the hours used, which could save a whopping 125,000 barrels of oil per day.

The total possible savings of 350,000 barrels of oil per day is roughly equal to 20 per cent of the state's expected oil needs of two million barrels a day by mid-1974.

Other assorted short-term energy cut-back efforts, such as a speed limit reduction and a ban on outdoor advertising, could add another 100,000 barrels a day in savings.

Doctor cautioned, however there are uncertainties in trying to judge how the public will react to calls for cutbacks. He said therefore "energy conservation alone may be insufficient to deal rapidly with anticipated shortages."

He urged the legislature to take "strong and prompt" action to curb energy use.



Kenyatta and Kenya

Kenya gained its independence from Great Britain 10 years ago today. Its leader since then has been 83-year-old Jomo Kenyatta, shown with Queen Elizabeth during her visit to Kenya last year. The fight for Kenyan independence was not without violence. The terrorist Mau Mau rebellion resulted in brutal slayings of whites and Africans serving whites, and equally brutal retaliation by the white community. The British jailed Kenyatta as the alleged Mau Mau leader. He was freed in 1961. After independence, he became Kenya's first and only President. He is affectionately known as Mzee, meaning "the Old One."

Accurate Quake Prediction Made

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Columbia University team claimed yesterday the first successful prediction of an earthquake.

The quake was predicted last Aug. 1 in the Blue Mountain Lake area of New York. The team concluded that a quake of a Richter magnitude 2.5 to 3 would occur in a few days.

On Aug. 3 a quake did occur. Its magnitude was 2.6.

Paul G. Richards, a Columbia seismologist, told the annual meeting of the American Geophysical Union that the prediction was made on the basis of the controversial theory of "the dilatancy effect."

This effect was first observed several years ago by the Russians in studying data concerning the Tadzhik earthquake. It was noticed that before the quake, a change occurred in the ratio of two kinds motion waves in the earth.

This theory later was applied to a follow-up study of California's San Fernando quake of 1971. James H. Whitcomb of the California Institute of Technology told the convention the dilatancy effect occurred 1,300 days before the quake.

But the Columbia team's effort was the first successful attempt to predict the size and timing of a future quake. The experiment was carried out with seven seismographs in an area with constant "microquakes" whose motion waves could be measured. Motion waves also can be produced for measuring by setting off underground explosions.

Richards said the usefulness of the dilatancy effect method still needs proof. If the method is better developed, he said it would apply to about half of the world's earthquake prone areas.

Along California's San Andreas fault, where catastrophic quakes have occurred, Richards said the method probably would not work. However, in the Los Angeles basin he said it should.

A Scientist Doubts The Pollution Crisis

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A meteorologist startled scientists yesterday at the annual meeting of the American Geophysical Union by arguing that the air of industrialized nations has been getting progressively cleaner since the turn of the century.

Hugh W. Ellsaesser, the meteorologist, said the United States' $100 billion effort to clean up the air is nonsense. The only benefit, if any, he said, would be aesthetic.

The air has always been polluted by particulates from dust, forest fires and man's domestic burning, he said.

But in recent decades, he said, pollution actually has decreased because of a switch to cleaner fuels such as natural gas, the irrigating of arid areas, development of lawns and the paving of highways.

He said this cleansing has more than made up for pollution from autos and factories.

Ellsaesser based his conclusion on an analysis of numerous studies and observations by others through the years.

Ellsaesser is a University of California scientist who works at the Atomic Energy Commission's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory in Berkeley. Currently, he is studying the climatic effects of supersonic aircraft, and believes the effects are negligible.

In the so-called air pollution disasters in London in 1952, Donora, Pa., in 1948 and the Meuse Valley of 1930, Ellsaesser said, no evidence has ever been developed to prove that the hundreds of dead died because of smog's toxic effects. He speculated that some other factor might have been the cause.

The federal Clean Air Amendments of 1970, in which the U.S. committed itself to a $100 billion program to clean up the air, "are not based on logic at any point," Ellsaesser said.

"I don't know anything in air pollution that is worth $100 billion," he said. "The only real argument is aesthetics."

Ellsaesser said the energy crisis should bring a realistic reappraisal of the air pollution program. He said that "in terms of air pollution bureaucracy, we should go back to where we were in 1967."

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Elroy "Crazylegs" Hirsch, the former Los Angeles Rams professional football star, has filed a $1.1 million suit against the Johnson Wax Co., charging the firm named a women's shaving cream "Crazylegs" without his permission.

Hirsch, now the athletic director at the University of Wisconsin, claimed he earned the nickname on the gridiron. He also called the way the firm is using it an "indignity" which has caused him "embarrassment, humiliation."

"Everybody has been joshing the hell out of him" since the name first appeared, Hirsch's attorney said.

U.C. Gets Grant To Tap Steam Energy

BERKELEY (UPI) — The University of California announced yesterday it has received the first major funding from the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission for basic research in tapping geothermal energy sources.

The university said it would receive nearly 90 per cent of a $4.7 million research grant to develop electricity from hot dry rock, hot water and brine trapped deep underground.

"Extracting energy from geothermal resources would make a significant contribution to the nation's electricity supplies," said a university spokesman.

The AEC national goal is to generate 20,000 megawatts of electricity from underground sources by 1985 and 80,000 megawatts by the year 2,000. By comparison, California's capacity from all energy sources is presently 37,000 megawatts.

The university said $3 million will go to the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, N.M., operated by UC, to study geothermal technology in hot volcanic rock beds.

The Lawrence Livermore Laboratory will receive $350,000 for research on use of hot brine from the Salton Sea Trough to generate electrical power.

Steam is the easiest but scarcest form of geothermal energy and only one producing steam installation exists in the U.S. run by Pacific Gas & Electric Co. in California's Sonoma County.

The $3 million grant will go toward drilling a second test hole into hot, dry volcanic rock 7,500 feet into the earth near Los Alamos. Research is underway to determine the feasibility of pumping water into the rock beds and using the heated water to turn turbines, officials said.

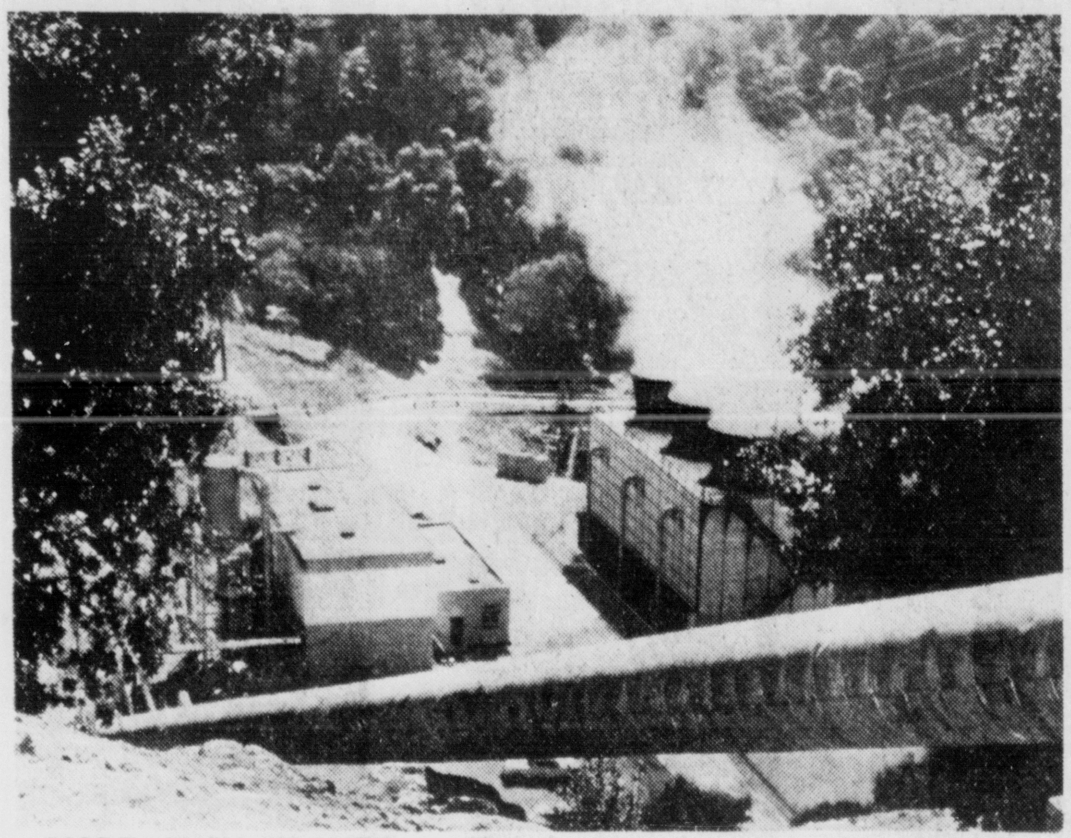
By 1980, he said, scientists hope to demonstrate that the unseparated, corrosive hot brines of the Salton Sea Trough — salts and all — can be put through a turbine with a higher efficiency of energy production than any other geothermal method.

"The method, if successful, can be applied to virtually any of the hot water geothermal deposits in the country," he said. "By bringing into production a vast, available and untapped resource, the technology could have a far-reaching impact on the national energy situation in the 1980s, for example, by giving virtual energy independence to some large population centers such as southern California."

The effort represents the first serious attempt to tap salty hot waters underground, he said, and could produce 60 per cent more energy than steam-only methods.

Scientists must develop a non-corrosive, non-clogging nozzle through which 570-degree bride could be used to turn a turbine that generates electricity. The equipment, he said, must operate under variable conditions without close tolerances of present gas turbines.

The Berkeley laboratory will work on development of low-salt hot water technology, officials said. Scientists will search for reservoir sites in northern Nevada and hope to have production wells and a demonstration plant by 1975.



MORE SUCH PLANTS — The University of California will soon embark on a federally funded program for tapping geothermal energy sources. Presently the only steam generated power plant — a geysers outlet — is located in Sonoma County and run by Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

Tree Lighting To Be Allowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans may use electric lights on Christmas trees inside their homes this season despite the energy crisis, William E. Simon, head of the Nixon administration's new Energy Office said today.

"I do not want American families to lose the festive spirit of Christmas because of the energy crisis. . ." Simon said in a statement.

But he said his office would wage war against other Christmas lighting, including outdoor promotional displays and ornamental lighting of homes and apartments.

He said the ban on such lighting is voluntary at present, but he will enforce it as soon as he receives authority to make the ban compulsory.

Simon suggested families can compensate for electricity used to light home trees by turning off other lights in their homes.

A Japanese Favorite For Entree

Chicken is a staple food throughout the world, utilized by many cultures because of its high nutritional value at relatively low cost. Every variation produces a different flavor, through cooking method or use of spices.

Here's a Japanese favorite utilizing fresh chicken and shrimp, cooked quickly in a broth to maintain fresh taste and texture. All the ingredients are easy to find in your local supermarket, and the cooking time is short.

1 fryer, about 2 lbs. (cut into 2-inch pieces)
½ lb. fresh shrimp
1 lb. bamboo shoots (1 can-whole)
½ lb. (1 package) snow peas (you can buy these frozen in the supermarket)
1 tsp. salt
6 to 8 fresh mushrooms
1 cup chicken stock
4 Tbsp. soy sauce
4 Tbsp. sugar
5 Tbsp. Sherry
Pinch of powdered ginger

Boil the shrimp in a cup of salted water for about one minute; remove the shells and clean. In a saucepan, place the chicken stock, sugar, ginger, soy sauce and sherry. Boil the shrimp in this liquid for a few minutes more. Remove them; boil the snow peas for one minute and remove. Cut the chicken into two-inch pieces and boil in the mixture until done, less than ten minutes. Remove the chicken and sprinkle it with soy sauce.

Cut the top of the bamboo shoots in half lengthwise, the lower parts in small pieces, and boil in the broth along with the mushrooms for about two minutes. Place all ingredients back into the saucepan and boil for several minutes. Serve with rice. Makes four servings.

Instead of fighting crowds of shoppers, you can stay home and create delicious holiday treats for those on your Christmas list. Whether for a friend, relative, hostess or an elderly neighbor, these presents are sure to be warmly appreciated.

Fruitcake is one of the most traditional holiday foods. Packed with fruits and nuts, these cakes were originally considered a delicacy that could not be afforded other times of the year. Mini-fruitcakes are ideal for giving. They can be made days ahead of time since storage improves their flavor, and one batch makes four mini-cakes. Wrap in cellophane or plastic wrap and tie with a ribbon.

MINI-FRUITCAKES

2½ cups chopped walnuts
2 cups (1-pound jar) candied mixed fruits and peels
½ cup raisins or currants
¼ cup chopped candied cherries
1¼ cups unsifted flour
⅓ cup margarine
⅓ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground allspice
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
½ cup orange juice
4 whole candied red cherries

In a large bowl, thoroughly combine walnuts, candied mixed fruits and peels, raisins or currants, candied cherries and one-half cup flour; set aside.

In a small mixer bowl cream margarine with brown sugar until fluffy. Add eggs and beat at medium speed for two minutes, scraping sides of bowl occasionally. Combine remaining three-fourths cup flour, baking powder, cinnamon, allspice and cloves. Stir into margarine mixture, alternately with orange juice.

Pour mixture over nuts and fruits; blend well. Evenly divide mixture among four greased 10-ounce deep pie dishes, mounding center. Smooth surface of each and place one whole candied cherry in center of each.

Bake at 275 degrees for one hour and 15 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking dishes and place on wire racks to cool. When cool, brush with warm corn syrup to glaze. Slices best when wrapped in foil and chilled or stored in a cool place for several days. Makes four cakes.

Let Grocer Make Up Holiday Gift

NEW YORK (UPI) — Want to give a holiday gift of food but don't have the time to brew, bake or concoct it in your kitchen? Let the grocer help.

Many food stores cater to holiday trade by packaging and shipping food gifts on order.

A fruit basket can cost less than you think and makes a magnificent gift. Many grocers will make up a fruit basket to the size and price you specify. During the holidays the baskets usually have grapefruit, navel oranges, tangerines, pears, yellow and red apples, grapes and bananas. Larger baskets also contain cheeses, fancy cookies, candies, nuts, liver pate and crackers.

If you can afford a higher price tag, the basket might contain also canned hams, imported salamis, preserves, marmalades, fruit cakes. They make a nutritious and fine gift everyone in a family can enjoy.

Beef Stew Ideas

Variations on beef stew come in many guises. In France, boeuf bourguignon is made with red wine, onions and mushrooms. Hungarian goulash features paprika flavored beef brisket or stew simmered with potatoes and onions. A Basque style ragout cooks beef stew with onions, carrots, turnips and white wine.

Keeping Eggnog

Eggnog, like other fresh dairy foods, needs to be kept cold and covered at all times. When properly handled, it'll keep for two or three weeks.

Treat For Chanukah Season

The traditional Chanukah food, latkes served with applesauce and sour cream will be featured at the Marin Jewish Community Center's Chanukah family celebration Sunday at the center in San Rafael from 3 to 5:30 p.m.

The members share two latke recipes for readers to try:

OLD FASHIONED LATKES

6 med. potatoes
1 small onion
1 tsp. salt
1 egg
3 Tbsp. matzo meal or flour
¼ tsp. baking powder

Wash, pare and grate raw potatoes. Strain out excess water. Add a little of the meal or flour; if there is excess liquid, add more. Grate and add onion. Add salt and egg. Beat well.

Mix in remaining ingredients. Drop by spoonsful into hot oil and brown on each side. Drain on paper towels. Keep latkes warm in oven. Serve with applesauce on top and sour cream. Serves four or five.

BLENDER LATKES

From Alice Braunstein of Terra Linda

Peel, wash and slice six medium potatoes. Place in blender (can be done in two batches by dividing all ingredients.) Add two eggs and one medium onion, diced. Blend, adding sufficient matzo meal to thicken batter. Season with salt and pepper. Add half teaspoon baking powder and blend. Drop by spoonsful and brown as above.

Serves four or five.

Cranberry Jelly Makes Ideal Gift

Cranberry jelly in decorative jars makes a welcome gift to the hostess during the holidays. It is simple to make, also.

Almost everyone has some names on the Christmas gift list followed by big question marks. How about something made in your own kitchen, something they can enjoy and share during the traditional holiday repast?

Consider homemade cranberry jelly. It is very simple to make, and once canned in some special holiday jars, can be a timely and delightful, delicious surprise.

To make six half-pints, mix 3½ cups cranberry juice cocktail with one 2¼ ounce package of powdered fruit pectin in a large kettle. Begin to cook, and stir until boiling. At that point, immediately stir in 4 cups of sugar. Then bring the mixture to a full rolling boil, and boil it hard for two minutes, stirring constantly.

Next, remove the mixture from the heat and stir in ¼ cup of lemon juice. Skim off the foam as the jelly begins to cool, and pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. It is a good idea to put a towel or rack under the jars as you pour to avoid possible breakage due to sudden temperature change. A quarter-inch of melted paraffin poured on top makes an excellent seal.

Beef To Braise

Select beef to braise from some of the less expensive, more flavorful cuts. Brisket, shank, bottom round and rump are all excellent choices for moist heat cookery. Simmer at low heat on top of the range or in a slow oven for fork-tender beef.

A British Inspired Holiday Feast

When you prepare Christmas dinner this year, why not try the traditional, Old English style? Your family can dine royally on the same Yuletide fare as Queen Victoria did in 1895.

The entree for the holiday feast sets the mood for the British-inspired repast. The conventional turkey makes way for a savory goose. As a change in typical American holiday diet, you'll find this bird an epicurean delight.

The recipe was made available to readers by the gourmet chef at the Southampton Princess Hotel in Bermuda.

ROAST GOOSE WITH APPLE STUFFING

1 goose (8 to 10 lbs., dressed weight)
2 packages stuffing mix
½ cup diced celery
¼ cup dried parsley flakes
4 tart apples, chopped
1½ teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons poultry seasoning
¼ teaspoon coarse black pepper
½ cup golden raisins
½ cup giblet stock
2 tablespoons minced onions

Wash goose inside and out; pat dry. Cook giblets to make stock. (Use chopped giblets in gravy.) Prepare stuffing mix as directed on package. Add rest of ingredients; mix thoroughly. If stuffing is not moist enough, add a little more stock to taste.

Stuff and truss goose; place on rack in large open roasting pan. Do not add water; do not cover. Roast at 325 degrees for four or four and a half hours until thoroughly done. (If goose is very fat, prick skin lightly after first hour.) Makes eight servings.

MARIN WOMEN'S STUDY

On Children And Divorce

By PAT BALMES

How does a child feel and what does he fear when his parents undergo divorce?

Those were among questions two Marin women at Marin Community Health Center sought to answer in their research project on "Children in the Crisis of Divorce."

Originator and principal investigator Judith Wallerstein of Belvedere, a lecturer at the University of California School of Social Welfare, and Dr. Joan Kelly of Mill Valley, clinical child psychologist at Mt. Zion Hospital, hope to share their findings through professional journals, a book for parents, and with judges, psychiatrists, social workers, family counselors and lawyers to help prevent much of a child's pain during divorce of his parents.

Their research on 60 Marin divorcing couples and their 131 children will also be presented at the International Congress of Child Psychiatry and Allied Disciplines in Philadelphia next July. And Judith Wallerstein will give a workshop for lawyers and judges at the national meeting of the Conciliation Courts in Hawaii in May.

Reasoning that during divorce preoccupied parents are less available to their children, the clinicians offered preventive intervention, helping parents assess their child's needs and to respond in a useful way. The counselors hoped, also, to be available as neutrals so the child could express his feelings.

"IF HE IS angry at his father, a child is reluctant to express it. He doesn't want to antagonize his overburdened parents," explained Dr. Kelly at her Mill Valley home, where she is analyzing stacks of research data.

Each family was counseled during the divorce for six weeks with about six interviews with each parent, usually separately, and three or four with each child. The counselors followed up with an interview a year later.

Dr. Kelly learned that the preschooler worries about who will take care of him. He does not understand divorce, only that one parent is absent. She advised that a parent should be specific, saying, "You will live with me."

The youngster should be told that his father will still be his father and will continue to love and visit him, she said.

Regression at this early age is universal. The preschooler may give up bowel control and revert to temper tantrums. At 5 he may have nightmares and want to come into his parent's bed, which should be discouraged, she said.

A mother should not say, "You are the daddy of the house now." The child should be allowed his position as a child and not become a pseudoadult which would hinder his development, she said.

"Putting a child into a father's role can also be hazardous for an adolescent boy at a time when he should be psychologically beginning to disengage himself from his parents," Dr. Kelly said.

WHEN A divorced mother must work full time, her child's recovery is jeopardized because he loses both parents. Parttime work is better, providing her with gratifications that complement her ability to be a good mother, she said.

"Most of the children wished their parents would get back together; the difference is what they did about it," said the psychologist. Six to 10-year-olds were most active in pleading and maneuvering for reconciliation, frequently with one parent's implicit consent.

Almost always one partner wants the divorce and the other does not, she said. The dissenting partner may garner the children to effect a reconciliation, but only both parents can effect a reconciliation. Saying, "Tell your mother I want to move back in' or 'Ask your father to come over for dinner' is too hard on a child,' said the psychologist.

If parents are sure divorce will occur, they should tell their children why in a way appropriate to their age and say there is no possibility for reconciliation.

She suggested telling the children together, using words like, "We are getting a divorce because we have not been able to live happily together; you have seen us fighting. We do not love each other. We think we will be happy apart."

Be honest without brutally derogating the other parent, Dr. Kelly cautioned divorcing parents.

"After all, that parent remains a parent of your child," she said.

The child is the product of both parents, to derogate one is to derogate that part of the child which he identifies with the "bad" parent.

Expressing hatred of a former spouse can backfire; it angers adolescents because they realize that there are aspects of themselves similar to that parent, she said.

"THEORETICALLY, BECAUSE the adolescent is psychologically moving away from intense parental ties anyway, he should be less devastated by the divorce. However he is the one who shows the most obvious pain; he has had to telescope his normal five-year disengagement period into an intense disengagement," Dr. Kelly stated.

Often miserable parents try to reverse roles with adolescents saying, in effect, "Agree with me. Support me in what I want and need. Take care of me."

The adolescents seemed aloof as they tried to disengage themselves, expressing that the divorce was not their problem. They withdrew to protect themselves from anger and disappointment, to take it later in small doses, so that they could continue functioning. A year later these adolescents who had been aloof from their parents were able to reach out and sympathize, Dr. Kelly said.

She does not advocate waiting to divorce until the children become adolescents. The researchers were astounded at the violence reported between parents during their marriage.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Mother Wonders If Teachers Really Trade Grades For Sex

DEAR HELEN:

My daughter, who is away at college, sent me two newspaper clippings.

One revealed that several women students were accusing college instructors of the "A for a lay" policy, which means they bribe girls into sexual relations —and those who don't succumb find the courses suddenly so difficult that their grades plummet.

The other article said some 40 professors at one state university admitted having sex with girl students.

She ended her letter, "You'll be happy to know I'm not on the honors list this semester!" Always the humorist! But . . .

Is it possible that a "loose" girl could make it through college without any brains at all? Will a college "A" come to be the "Scarlet Letter" of the 1970s? — WORRIED MOM

DEAR MOM:

College diplomas on the "layaway" plan? Stop worrying!

It's true that certain instructors aren't exactly immune to women students, and vice versa —and a few might ease up on grades for favors rendered — but the majority of professors wouldn't jeopardize their jobs for a passing fanny, er, I mean fancy. —H.

DEAR HELEN:

Your recent item about a club for "shy ones" prompts me to tell you about International Toastmistress Clubs.

A former shy member says she still has "butterflies" when she faces an audience, but since her Toastmistress training, they fly in formation.

Toastmasters offers a similar program of communication and leadership training for males.

Friendliness and acceptance are the keynotes at these clubs, and shy ones are particularly welcomed. — M.M.

READERS ALL:

As a former Toastmistress, I can vouch for the club's effectiveness and real help. Information about the branch nearest you can be obtained from ITC Headquarters, 9068 East Firestone Blvd., Suite 2, Downey, California, 90241. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

The letter from "Alice's Mother" in a recent column was a fine example of the kind of ignorance we doctors see every day. She was sure her virgin daughter couldn't have an "internal examination."

My stock answer is that a girl who can't comfortably undergo a doctor's vaginal examination stands a good chance of turning the honeymoon into a disaster. After all, just how virginal should a girl be on her wedding night? Namely, enough to make her point, if this is important, but not enough to ruin the evening.

Actually out of literally thousands of girls I have examined, I recall only one or two who couldn't be examined without damage to their "virginity."

Many come equipped with no hymen to speak of in the first place, and once in a while I run across the pregnant "virgin," which just goes to show how far a "nice" girl will go in making out. — COLLEGE PHYSICIAN

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? A fun idea? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Tips On Saving Refrigerator Energy Given

Tips to save energy in use of the refrigerator are offered by the State Department of Consumer Affairs.

Keep the refrigerator full to use fully the space that is refrigerated, advises John Kehoe, director. But allow enough space for air circulation, so the air flow is not interrupted forcing the refrigerator fan to overwork.

Avoid constant door opening by removing or storing several items at once. Planning ahead what you want to take out before opening the refrigerator door will save energy.

Maintain a temperature of 37 to 40 degrees in the refrigerator to keep a uniform, steady operation. To test the temperature insert an outdoor thermometer on the middle shelf.

If you go away on vacation, raise the temperature to 40 to 45 degrees. When the refrigerator door is not opened, the box will keep the temperature constant. Leaving a few milk cartons filled with water in the refrigerator while you're away helps to keep its temperature constant and uses less energy.

Avoid putting several warm dishes into the refrigerator at once. One doesn't change the temperature much, but several will. Cool the foods first.

Check the refrigerator door seals by placing a paper towel half in and half outside the door, shut the door and pull the paper out. If there is resistance, the seal is tight. If not, consider replacing the seal.

Frost thicker than a quarter inch acts as an insulator, forcing the refrigerator motor to work harder. Defrost frequently for a more even cold temperature.

DENISE FERRIS
January bride

Engagement Of Denise Ferris Told

Mr. and Mrs. John Ferris announce the engagement of their daughter, Denise Ferris, to Brad Friedlander, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Friedlander. All are residents of Novato.

Denise is the sister of Gary, Darryl and Wesley Ferris, all of Novato, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Ayres of Grass Valley and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ferris of Mooreland, Okla. She will be graduated in January from Novato High School. The future bride is employed at One Hour Martinizing in Novato.

Brad is the brother of Gary, Glenn and Barbara Friedlander, all of Novato. A. S. Friedlander of Quebec, Canada is his grandfather. He was graduated from Novato High School and College of Marin.

The couple plans to be married Jan. 27 at the First Baptist Church in Novato.

Bride's Brother

The bride's brother, Tom Crawford, was incorrectly listed as the brother of the bridegroom in the wedding story of Janice Crawford and Charles Rolf in Monday's Independent-Journal.

Marin Women Make Study Of Divorce And Children

The violence was no respecter of social class or education.

"To hold that kind of marriage together 'for the sake of the children' is potentially devastating to their emotional development," she said.

After divorce conflicts about money and children can continue, joined by visitation hassles. One parent may lock up the child as a possession not to be shared, such as when a wife makes plans for a child for a time she knows his father had planned to visit.

"We try to resolve visitation hassles because they always involve the kids. If the court rules, there will be a rigid visiting schedule. The child must visit when he might rather go to a slumber party. It is better for parents to work out a flexible schedule.

"Understand that children have needs apart from the parents' needs. Make it possible for the child to function at school and among peers so his development is not interfered with," she advised.

While Dr. Kelly does not advocate a rigid schedule, she believes the child should know when he will see his father so he can structure his life. Taking a child out for a hamburger on a week night is a very nice way to see him, she said.

SHE ADDED that a child comes under too much pressure when, on returning from a visit with his father, his mother asks spying questions or makes "catty" remarks about the father's girlfriend. She will make her child feel badly about his attachment to his father and alienate him. Both sexes are guilty of this, she said.

According to Judith Wallerstein most of Marin fathers stay in contact with their children and continue a family structure after divorce, unlike reports she has had from the East that many fathers move away.

In Marin County the divorce rate is higher than one in four marriages, one of the highest in the United States, which has the world's highest divorce rate. In 1970, per 1,000 men, women and children, there were 3.5 divorces in the U.S., 4.2 in California and 5.7 in Marin. The rate has gone up since, according to Dr. Kelly.

"We are neither pro nor anti divorce. Divorce is here to stay. We have a lot of very bad marriages in our society; people who should not have married and have begun to realize it. We want to make the divorce experience as untraumatic as possible for their children," the researcher said.

Their research project was unique because the information comes from normal population instead of psychiatrists' patients, the researchers believe.

During the project the researchers gave free counseling to the couples and children, and the counseling service continues to be available to them.

Funding came from the Zellerbach Family Fund, and Marin Community Mental Health Center provided facilities and staff, including child psychologist Dr. Angela Homme and psychiatric social workers Doris Juvenal, Susannah Roy and Janet West.

Students To Sell Holiday Greens, Holly Saturday

Children of the Park School in Mill Valley will sell Christmas greens and holly from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at the school.

They hope to raise funds to assist with improvements on the school playground. They have been working to cut greens at their own homes and those of neighbors and friends, and will spend some time Friday bundling the greens and attaching hand made cards.

During the sale on Saturday, the school children will sing carols to guitar accompaniment.

The activity is endorsed by the Park School Parent-Teacher Association. Mrs. Alan Scott is chairman, and Mrs. Gerald Freedman, assistant.

Holiday Movie Will Be Shown

A holiday movie, "Why The Chimes Rang," produced by parents and children of the Sausalito Presbyterian Church, will have its first showing at 4:30 p.m. Sunday at the church on Bulkley Avenue, Sausalito.

A family Christmas party, including refreshments and tree trimming, will follow the film. The public is invited to attend.

The actors are all Marin children under 14 years of age. Mrs. Douglas Fancher and Mrs. Eugene Nelson directed the film, with Mrs. Nelson and Douglas Fancher doing the camera work. Paula Fancher also wrote the script, adapting a short story by Robert Alden.

How To Save Appliance Service Calls

Save yourself unnecessary service calls on laundry appliances by first making some checks yourself, suggests Robert Payne, general service manager for a national appliance manufacturer.

Payne suggests using the checklist in the instruction booklets of major appliances. Often the washer or dryer lid is not completely closed and machine does not operate. The timer dial should be pulled out, pushed or advanced as per booklet instruction.

Perhaps the appliance is not plugged into a live outlet. Check by plugging a radio or lamp into the socket to check it. Cause of a dead outlet, Payne said, could be a line power failure, a burned out fuse or a tripped circuit breaker.

If an automatic washer stops in mid-cycle, it could be that an unbalanced load has tripped the unbalance switch during a spin. The load should be redistributed and the controls reset, if so, he said.

Shopping Tips For Diamonds

By United Press International

Some fashion tips from Tiffany for the Santa's helper contemplating a gift of a diamond.

There are 58 tiny facets on the diamond. Each should be thought of as mirrors. The cutter must place each of these facets in exact geometric relation to one another in order to achieve maximum fire and brilliance.

Few diamonds are properly or perfectly cut. The vast majority are what is called "spread." This means that the cutter has compromised the ideal proportions and has cut the stone to weigh more than it should.

The word carat is derived from the Carob tree, the seeds of which were so uniform in weight that they became the standard for measuring the weight of gems in ancient India.

One one-hundredth of a carat is referred to as a point. Tiffany's smallest diamond ring, 15 points, would be 0.15 of a carat.

The size of a diamond alone is almost meaningless unless you take into account the other qualities: cut, color, clarity.

A diamond is said to be flawless if no inclusions can be seen when the diamond is magnified 10 times by the usual jeweler's loupe.

Diamonds occur, by rare accident of nature, in pink, green, red, blue. More frequently they appear in yellow and brown. But the traditional engagement diamond is a clear, dew-drop white. Although these appear colorless to the untrained eye, the majority contain varying tints. The more colorless the diamond, the greater the rarity and value.

Although the ancient Egyptians wore a bridal ring on the third finger, left hand, it was not until the 15th century that the diamond was first recorded as a bridal jewel.

Bleak Days Are Seen For Family

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Item: father of five skips and starts a new nest with his mistress and their child 3,000 miles away. Without benefit of divorce, without any new marriage license.

Item: Mother of nine leaves home, taking two young children under five. To bill and coo in a new nest with her lover. No divorce, no new marriage.

Add to these items: People breaking up marriages and families legally, through divorce. Approximately four of every 10 couples married in 1973 will not live happily ever after. They will divorce after, on the average, seven years of conjugal bliss and bitterness.

Marriage dissolution could be the number one subject on the family front in 1974 and perhaps the number one subject of the decade.

That point was made by numerous authorities launching new U.S. Senate subcommittee hearings on "American Families: Trends and Pressures." The hearings, under the chairmanship of Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., will move to the front burner in 1974.

THE INSTITUTION of legalized marriage, what's more, is being questioned by young persons. Cohabitating without a marriage license is a growing trend on college campuses — so much so that social scientists at Cornell University's College of Human Ecology now put out a Cohabitation Research Newsletter, reporting on studies on that subject at colleges nationwide.

Research in this area cannot be as exacting as research in physics. But it is evident that many students on the trial marriage trail are themselves progeny of the soured marriages of their parents. They have seen the toll of marriage on the rocks, they have tasted its bitter harvest — bickering, hurt and hurt and hate. They are not going to seal a conjugal deal themselves unless they can be reasonably sure it will work out. In the interim there is cohabitation on campus or off. It stems from a search for an emotional mooring and mistrust of marriage.

In the year ahead, inflation and the energy crisis will affect families that don't break up. The Census Bureau estimates there are 46.3 million husband-wife families and 8.1 million of some other type. The latter category includes 6.6 million families headed by a female.

THE CENSUS Bureau defines a family as a group of two or more related persons who live together in a house or apartment. Two out of every three of the husband-wife families have children or a relative living with them.

Inflation continuing will mean families having increasing difficulty even robbing Peter to pay Paul. It will mean further taking in of the belt and it will mean more and more mothers out of the home working to help pay the bills. Most mothers who work are helping pay bills and otherwise provide for their families, including in many cases, dependent parents.

Federal agencies estimate over 40 per cent of all wives are in the labor force. Among those with children under six years of age, 30 per cent are working outside the home — making adequate daycare facilities a number one priority on the family front again in the year 1974 and every year thereafter until enough are established.

The energy crisis, cramping vacation and other pleasure driving, may inject more togetherness on homefronts everywhere — especially on weekends. For families accustomed to being on wheels much of the time, for family members used to going separate and distant ways, the new togetherness may be a plus or a minus. Either it will make the family stronger — discovering one another's company as something pleasant. Or — it will make the family weaker, exposing sources of friction and leading to arguments and, perhaps, eventual breakdown of communication.

THE ENERGY crisis carries the seeds of financial disaster for some families. If a fuel-dependent industry must shut down, paychecks stop. In an energy-dependent society such as America has become, there are solid signs many paychecks will be disrupted in the new year.

Dr. Urie Bronfenbrenner, a professor of human development and family studies, College of Human Ecology, Cornell University, doesn't see much to cheer about on the family front. He told the subcommittee on children and youth:

"The situation is especially critical for the families of black Americans. Of all black children, over half (53 per cent) live in families below the poverty line; the corresponding figure for white is 11 per cent.

"Of all black children, almost half (44 per cent) have mothers who are in the labor force. The corresponding figure for whites is about a quarter — 26 per cent.

"Of all black children, over 30 per cent live in single-parent families; the corresponding figure for whites is seven per cent.

"The census does not provide comparable information for other groups living under duress, such as American Indians, Mexican Americans, whites living in Appalachia and so on. If and when such data become available, they are likely to show similar trends."

ALL ISN'T rosy with intact families, the well-off economically ones — black or white. Dr. Bronfenbrenner, considered by his peers the nation's number one authority on the family, said:

"Among these families, research shows parents are spending less time in activity with their children." A trend is to children's hotels, places where well-off parents may park their children when they want a week in the sun or a month at sea.

The authority sees the family needing all kinds of help — from the neighborhood, from the world of work, and from social and political institutions at the local, state and national level.

"The family," he said, "is the most humane, efficient and economical system for 'making human beings' known to man."

Bennett Loses Round Over Nixon's State Income Tax

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state tax board, in a 2-to-1 politically partisan action, refused yesterday to find that President Nixon owes past California income taxes.

"So now we have a coverup in the state of California, as well," shouted Democratic board member William M. Bennett in a reference to the Watergate scandal.

After the heated, volatile meeting in jampacked, tiny chambers, Bennett of Kentfield told Republican board chairman Houston I. Flournoy: "If we can't settle it here, let's go outside and settle it."

Martin Huff, the board's executive officer, implied to newsmen that his staff was investigating Nixon's tax status. But he declined to report that publicly to the board, a position that angered Bennett.

"We look at every case, believe me, and our record shows that," Huff told persistent reporters after the meeting.

Nixon, a native Californian who maintains a voting residence and seaside villa at San Clemente, has not paid state income taxes since becoming President, the White House disclosed Saturday.

The White House said the decision not to pay California taxes was based on state law which differentiates between a domicile, which is required for voting, and a citizen resident, who is liable for income taxes.

"This is a case of tax evasion involving Richard Milhous Nixon," declared Bennett, an outspoken liberal who has built a reputation as a consumer advocate.

Insisting "the President should be treated like every other taxpayer," Bennett moved that the State Franchise Tax Board file a "notice of assessment."

Such a notice would have been a declaration that Nixon owed past California income taxes. The President would have been entitled to a series of appeals — to the Franchise Tax Board, then to the Board of Equalization which Bennett chairs and ultimately to the courts.

But there was no second to Bennett's motion, and it was ruled dead by Flournoy, state controller who is a candidate for the 1974 GOP gubernatorial nomination.

The third board member is state Finance Director Verne Orr, a political appointee of Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"It's hypocritical and it's favorite treatment," shouted Bennett when the board sided against him as expected.

"If there's a liability, I'm confident the taxes will be paid," responded an angry Flournoy.

"Let the record show two Republican votes for Richard Milhous Nixon," continued Bennett.

"You's out of order," insisted Fournoy.

"If you don't like it, Mr. Chairman, you know what you can do about it," declared Bennett, his face flushed.

"Order that man to make an investigation," demanded Bennett, pointing at Huff.

"You have no knowledge what our staff has done or not done," replied the normally mild mannered Huff.

Orr noted Huff never previously had discussed publicly who he was investigating. He asked Huff whether there was "any particular reason why you should now."

"Yes," insisted a woman from the audience.

Bennett moved that the meeting be adjourned, packed his papers and stalked out.

"First let me lick my wounds," Bennett told newsmen when asked whether he intended to continue his assault on Nixon's tax status.

Bennett's term on the Franchise Tax Board ends at the end of this month. "It's up to them," he said, referring to the two GOP members. "They can ignore it or whatever."

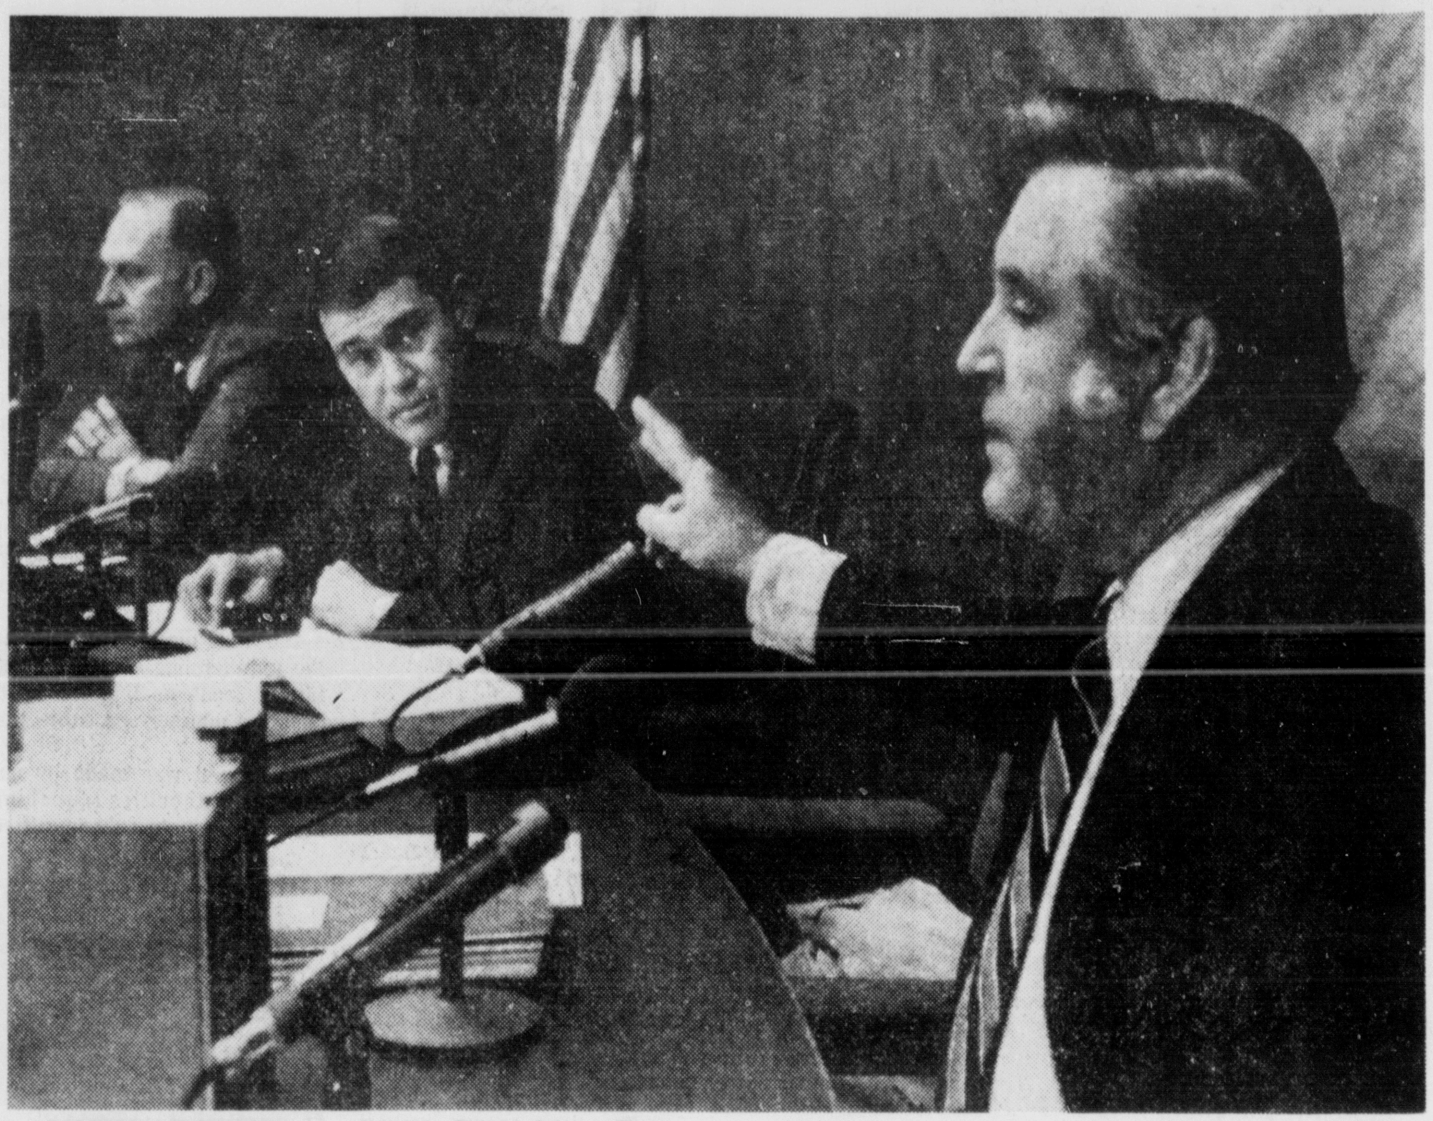
At the start of the discussion, Flournoy read a prepared statement saying:

"The Franchise Tax Board has traditionally operated free of any political interference. As chairman, Idefinitely intend to see that it continues to be the practice.

"It should also be noted that under law and long-standing policy, no unauthorized disclosure will be made as to whether or not a person has filed a tax return, or whether a tax investigation is being conducted on an individual . . .

"The President will be treated in all respects like everyone else. He is subject to the same requirements and liabilities, and is entitled to the same rights of confidentiality and fairness."

Strongly hinting the Nixon case was being probed, Flournoy concluded: "Knowing the efficiency of the staff and operating procedures, I think it should be quite obvious that it has been on top of this entire situation without the need for specific directions from the board."



LOSES ROUND — State Franchise Tax Board member William Bennett (right) of Kentfield, a Democrat, demanded but lost a round yesterday that the board file a "notice of assessment" against President Nixon. The other two members of the board, State Finance Director Vern Orr (left) and State Controller Houston Flournoy (center), refused to go along and the motion died of a second. (UPI Telephoto)

Marin Cagers Whip Laney

OAKLAND — College of Marin took hundreds of steps backward and one giant step forward last night, getting back on defense to shut off Laney College's fast break for a 66-45 non-league basketball victory.

"It was a super team effort," proclaimed coach John Panagakis. "I think they (Laney) only got one fast break bucket on us the entire game. I can't remember Laney being held to 45 points."

Both teams were undefeated entering the game, and Marin extended its 1973 record to 7-0 and was able to "get back" for last year's 85-67 loss. The Eagles are 6-1.

Guard Bill Donnellan scored 21 points to lead Marin, and Wil Garner dropped in 17.

"Donnellan played a fantastic game — he was all over the court," said Panagakis. "So was Leonard Smith," now a forward with Jared McFerrin starting at guard.

"Wil and Harry Norman did a great job on the boards — and they must've blocked 10 shots between them. When they got into foul trouble, John Channell came off the bench, alternating with them, and did a fine job."

Marin held a 23-17 lead at halftime, saw it dwindle to one point then hit "two or three in a row" to pull ahead for good. The Tars maintained a lead of eight or 10 points until about five minutes remained, when "they (Laney) started coming after us, and we got some longpass layups because they overplayed. The game turned physical right at the end, but the kids kept their poise," Panagakis said.

Marin committed only five fouls the first half. "That was a key factor — we kept them off the line."

Marin — Smith 3-2-8, McFerrin 3-2-8, Norman 2-0-4, Garner 8-1-17, Donnellan 8-5-21, Channell 2-4-8. Totals: 26-14-66.

Laney — L. Williams 4-6-14, Robinson 1-0-2, S. Williams 7-0-14, Nikcevich 1-0-2, Myles 2-1-5, Letcher 2-0-4, Kidd, 1-2-4. Totals: 18-9-45.

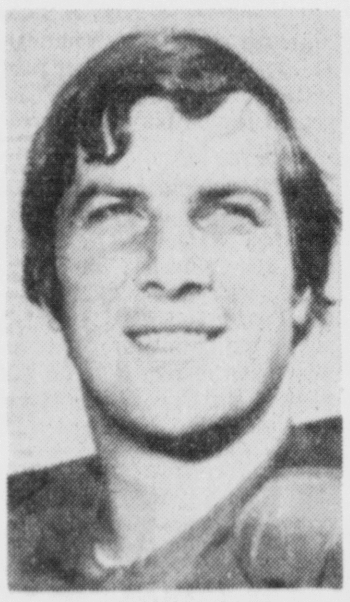
Sniadecki Proud Of The Defense

Jim Sniadecki replaced Frank Nunley as middle linebacker for the 49ers midway through this season and he replaced him again last night. This time it was at the 49er Goal Rushers dinner at New Joe's in Corte Madera.



JIM SNIADECKI

Sniadecki didn't know why Nunley couldn't make it, and was asked to fill in for him only two hours before the start of the meeting via a rush telephone call from Dick Berg, 49er promotions director. Maybe Nunley was busy talking to his lawyer, since he's one of six 49ers involved in a lawsuit against their agent because of real estate losses amounting to $233,000.

There was a turnout of 50 faithful followers, a surprisingly large number considering the plight of the 49ers this year. Sniadecki waded through the questions very well, but as quarterback for the defense, didn't have anything to be ashamed about in the team's 16-10 loss Sunday to the New Orleans Saints.

"My job is defense," said the man who calls the defensive signals for the 49ers, "and believe it or not, we had one of our best defensive games of the season." The offense is another question and it looked just as bad to Sniadecki from the sidelines as it did to the fans at home in front of their television sets.

SNIADECKI WAS somewhat irritated by the tone of the questioning, since by now the questions are starting to hurt, but he kept his cool. Questioners wanted to know what was wrong with the offensive line, why there were not any O. J. Simpsons on the team, and was there disharmony among the players.

At one point he said: "Sometimes you people think you know too much about football. It's a complicated thing. It really boggles my mind."

Sniadecki, at 220 pounds, is one of the smallest middle linebackers in the National Football League. Before he replaced Nunley, most of his work had been at outside linebacker, replacing injured starters. When the 49ers drafted Willie Harper in the second round at the last draft, speculation was that right side linebacker Skip Vanderbundt would be moved to the middle and Harper would take Vanderbundt's spot. Instead, head coach Dick Nolan replaced Nunley with Sniadecki and Harper ended up in the outside linebacker position replacing an injured Vanderbundt.

"Before the Atlanta game, I had little experience in the middle," Jim said. "I didn't envision myself as a middle linebacker." But that's all changed now.

ABOUT THE TEAM, Sniadecki said, "Football is a team effort. If enough of us feel bad about it (a losing season), we'll be back winning next year."

Another question came asking if the players were close to each other. "Maybe this year we are not as close, and you have to be close as a

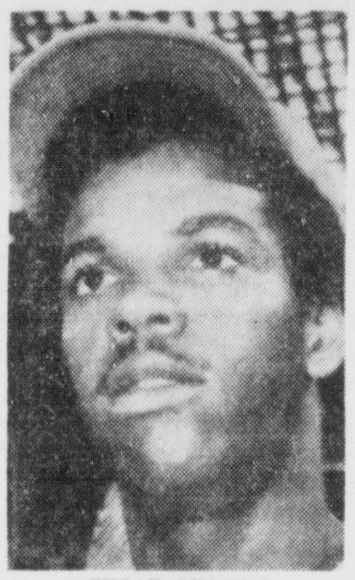
Court Questions Cedeno About Shooting



CESAR CEDENO
Role probed

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — Houston Astros centerfielder Cesar Cedeno was questioned today in criminal court here on his role in the fatal shooting early Tuesday of a 19-year-old girl in a local motel room.

Judge Socrates Diaz Curiel began questioning the young ballplayer about 9:50 a.m. EST after he was taken to the 4th Circuit Court from police headquarters where he had been held since he turned himself in yesterday morning.

Cedeno, 22, was charged with voluntary manslaughter, the equivalent of second degree murder in the United States.

But District Attorney Maximo Henriquez Saladin, who filed the charge, indicated it was simply a formality.

A police report issued after informal questioning of the baseball star said, "It has not been possible to fix any blame on Cesar Cedeno." The police said, however, the case was submitted to the courts to get a full hearing.

Cedeno, one of the best young players in baseball, was arrested yesterday morning and charged with "voluntary manslaughter." Legal experts in San Juan said it was similar to the charge of second degree murder in the United States.

Police said Cedeno, a native of the Dominican Republic, spent the night at the Ensanche La Fe Prison, two blocks from Quisqueya Stadium, the scene of his early exploits as a baseball player.

The examining magistrate said he would also question an unidentified witness to the shooting today before winding up the official interrogation—the first step in Dominican judicial proceedings.

Legal experts said the magistrate would then hand the case over to a police court judge with the authority to release Cedeno on bail.

An employe at the Keko Motel told police Cedeno and Altagracia checked into a bungalow early Tuesday and asked for two bottles of beer. He reported hearing a shot about 10 minutes later.

He said Cedeno called the motel office to report the shooting and then left in a sports car. The baseball star returned with his father later and handed himself over to police.

A police colonel said Cedeno told authorities the girl had picked up his .38 caliber pistol to admire it and the weapon went off when Cedeno tried to get it away from her.

John W. Mullen, the Astros' assistant general manager, met with Cedeno at a Santo Domingo police station and quoted the star as saying the gun went off accidentally.

"The word is that this was an accident—that's what Cedeno said," Mullen reported. "He had a gun. He has a permit for it. She asked to see it. He said no. And she tried to wrestle it away from him and it went off."

But Doug Rader, one of his Houston teammates, has this to say about Cedeno's present situation:

"Just because he's a ballplayer doesn't mean he's guilty. If he was Joe Blow he'd get the benefit of the doubt. Why shouldn't he get the same benefit as Cesar Cedeno? Sometimes when something sensational happens to someone in the public eye, people automatically feel he's guilty. I say Cesar Cedeno is a human being. More than that, he's a good person. Like anyone else, he should get the benefit of the doubt until proven guilty."

Warriors Ignore Injuries To Win

OAKLAND (UPI) — The more guys who are hurt, the better the Golden State Warriors seem to play.

With Rick Barry out with an ankle sprain, Cazzie Russell hit a career high 49 points last night to lead Golden State past the Houston Rockets 114-107.

Since Los Angeles lost again, the win shoved the Warriors 1 ½ games ahead in the Pacific Division with a 16-9 record.

Russell hit 22-of-43 from the floor to top his previous high of 46, made earlier this season. It was his fourth 40-point or better performance and came on the heels of a 50-point outburst by Barry in the previous game Saturday night as the Warriors dumped the Lakers. The other forward, Clyde Lee, has been sidelined for several weeks.

"I felt really good shooting the ball," a happy Russell said, "and the guys kept passing to me. I might have felt I had to work a little harder with Rick out but I didn't start out looking for points."

Russell knows that he has to shoot well when he plays for the Warriors since defense is not his specialty.

"Let's face it," he said. "I have to score to help our club. It's no secret that I'm a high percentage shooter so if I don't hit, I'm not helping the club."

Rookie Derrek Dickey played 39 minutes and also was outstanding as he scored 10 points and hauled in 19 rebounds.

Since Nate Thurmond got 16 rebounds, it showed that the Warriors pretty well controlled the boards.

Mike Newlin led the Rockets with 26.

Namath Eyes New League; Trade Denied

NEW YORK (UPI) — Will Joe Namath be playing in the NFL next year and if he is, will he be playing with the New York Jets?

Neither Namath nor the Jets is saying but his contract runs out at the end of this season and his lawyer, Jimmy Walsh, admits he's looking at the new World Football League.

The speculation about the possibility of Namath leaving the Jets popped up yesterday after Namath's lawyer, Jimmy Walsh, said that Namath at age 30 has reached a "minor crossroads."

The spokesman also said the Jets have had no discussions with any team about the possibility of trading Namath.

The key point in the crossroads is the foundation of the World Football League, which presumably is willing to offer Namath something like the $2 million contract that persuaded Bobby Hull to jump from the National Hockey League to the World Hockey Association.

It's not just a coincidence that Gary Davidson, the man who founded the American Basketball Association and the WHA, is also starting up the new World Football League.

Jets' owner Phil Iselin might decide that it would be better to trade Namath than to get in a bidding war with him against Davidson's league

Namath is currently concluding a two-year contract that is estimated at a half million dollars or $250,000 per year. But Namath has been injured so often that he's averaged only seven games a season in the last four seasons.

Walsh admitted that none of the WFL teams has made any "definite offers" for Namath but he said that the league has expressed "a definite interest" in getting Namath's services.

REDWOOD, MARIN 'CATS

2 Teams Travel To Cage Tourneys

While five Marin basketball teams are rekindling old rivalries with their friends and neighbors in the Drake Pirate Classic, Redwood and Marin Catholic high schools will be traveling to out-of-town tournaments beginning tomorrow.

Redwood will face Liberty of Brentwood at 4 p.m. in the Yuba City Tournament, while Marin Catholic will play Analy of Sebastopol at 5 p.m. in the Rose City Tournament in Santa Rosa.

Success at Yuba City is almost force of habit for Redwood, which has won three championships, two second-place trophies and one consolation title in seven years.

To win this year, the Giants probably will have to get past Livermore, the 10th-ranked team in the East Bay, in the second round. The Redwood-Liberty winner will face the Livermore-Marysville winner at 7 p.m. Friday. Also in the tourney are Mira Loma of Sacramento, Washington of Fremont, Vacaville and Yuba City.

Marin Catholic (2-2) faces a tough opening-round test in undefeated Analy of Sebastopol, champion of the Cloverdale Tournament, which boasts a front line measuring 6-foot-6, 6-6 and 6-4.

A victory would put the Wildcats in against the winner of Thursday's game between St. Patrick's of Vallejo and Montgomery of Santa Rosa on Friday at 8 p.m. Montgomery has victories over San Francisco powers St. Ignatius and Lowell.

In the other bracket are perennially tough Hayward, Crusader Classic Champion Riordan of San Francisco, Santa Rosa and Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa.

Back home, the Drake tournament was scheduled to begin today with two games — Novato vs. Ells of Richmond at 5 p.m. and Petaluma vs. San Rafael at 6:30 p.m. Tomorrow's matchups are San Marin vs. Terra Linda, 5 p.m., and Napa vs. Drake, 6:30 p.m.

The eighth Marin County Athletic League team, Tamalpais, was to play a non-tournament game against visiting Lincoln of San Francisco at 3:30 p.m. today.

Webster To Step Down As Giants Grid Coach

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Alex Webster, saying "I feel like Wellington Mara is like a father to me," announced today that he's resigning as coach of the New York Giants after the National Football League season's final game Sunday against the Minnesota Vikings.

Webster, who took over as coach of the team the week before its regular-season opener in 1969, said he told Mara, the Giants owner, that he was quitting before Monday night's nationally-televised 40-6 loss to the Los Angeles Rams.

He said he contacted Mara in Los Angeles for a "long discussion" and, he added, "the way our season has gone, it's time for a change."

The Giants have a 2-10-1 record this season after winning all six of their exhibition games when they were being touted by their fans as a likely playoff contender. They have lost 10 of their last 11 games, beating only the St. Louis Cardinals.

Under Webster, the Giants have a five-year record of 29-39-1.

Seals Still Can't Capture Road Victory

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — The California Golden Seals still have won only once on the road, but they seem to be coming closer to victory.

The New York Islanders rallied for a 6-3 victory over the Seals last night to snap a four-game losing streak but the game was a lot closer than the score indicated.

Hilliard Graves of the Seals was sent off for tripping Ed Westfall at 4:23 of the third period to give New York a man advantage. Then Lorne Henning won a faceoff and passed back to Denis Potvin, whose shot from the point was put in by Billy Harris on the rebound to make it 4-3.

Bob Nystrom then scored into an empty net with 22 seconds to play and 16 seconds later Potvin added his seventh goal after California had returned goaltender Bob Champoux.

Defenseman Bert Marshall's first goal of the season gave the Islanders an early lead at 3:36 of the first period but scores by Ivan Boldirev and Bob Stewart put California on top at the end of the session.

Ralph Stewart was set up outside the crease for his ninth goal early in the second period but Craig Patrick pushed California in front again five minutes later.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Some Tips About Winter Storage

In winter, there are really only two things you can do with a boat. You can get rid of it, or be prepared to give it the best winter storage conditions possible.

Based on the first impulse, many people north of the Gulf Coast, where these circumstances do not apply, actually sell their boats when winter comes. It's always a good time for a buyer to pick up a bargain.

But most of us just do the best we can to beat another winter. There's no question that boat owners are plagued by boat storage problems. No other topic brings as many questions.

Q. Is it okay to leave my fiber glass boat inside our summer cabin ?

A. It's a good place. There's one thing you should watch out for, however. Don't leave the boat lying on its side as it might develop a distortion and perform poorly next year. Set it up on the keel. Provide support for it at stem and stern, and at each side to keep it upright. I use old cushions and cartons, and I've stored a boat this way for about 10 years without trouble.

Q. I can buy a boat that's 40 years old and has been in salt water on the Maine coast all of its life. It looks like a tremendous bargain. How about it?

A. It could be a bargain, but get it out of the water before you buy. Look at the bottom, or, better still, get an expert to look at it. Boats in salt water do not rot very quickly, the salt is a preservative but they do suffer borer damage. If you take the boat into fresh water it could go to pieces quickly unless thorough rot preventive measures are taken.

Q. I left our life saving cushions outside for a month this fall. They were soggy. Will they be all right for next summer if they dry out?

A. They'll be great to support your boat, as suggested earlier, but please don't trust your life to them. Even when new, cushions aren't the best life saving device. Try out one of the dried cushions, and I'll bet it gets soggy again very quickly.

Q. Is it too late to paint a wooden boat before putting it in storage?

A. If it's a small one, and is kept indoors where the temperature can be kept up and the humidity down. To paint a boat that is stored outside in December in southern Wisconsin is asking for trouble. It's usually much too cold for the paint to flow, and too damp for it to stick well. Much farther south or west, you would not have these problems.

Q. How can I make sure that my new fiber glass boat won't fade? It's a gorgeous chartreuse.

A. Just keep it out of the sun. This practice is important with any plastic boat stored outside during the winter. Keep a cover over it. Often the pigments fade unevenly.

Q. My plastic windshield became scratched and cloudy last winter while the boat was in a large storage building. How should I protect the new one?

A. Above all cover the windshield with a plastic cloth or canvas cover to keep dirt, grit and grime off it. Then in the spring be very careful how you wash it. Use lots of detergent and your bare hands to remove any abrasive grit. Windshields scratch very easily.

St. Vincent (4-3) held a 35-28 third quarter lead over the Broncos, but were able to convert just one field goal out of 13 attempts in the final quarter to fall behind.

HOCKEY ROUNDUP

Minnesota Has Productive Duo

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Bill Goldsworthy and Dennis Hextall have become a powerful offensive force for the Minnesota North Stars and last night they started and finished their job on the Los Angeles Kings early.

Bill Goldsworthy scored three goals in the first seven minutes and 25 seconds fof the game, with an assist on each from Hextall to spark Minnesota to a 6-3 victory over Los Angeles.

After Goldsworthy's opening flurry made it 3-0, the teams traded goals to end the first period with Minnesota leading 4-1.

Los Angeles rookie Phil Hoene made it 4-2 in the second period, scoring on a penalty shot, but Danny Grant and Dennis O'Brien scored for Minnesota to put the game out of the Kings' reach. Goldsworthy and Hextall assisted on Grant's goal.

The victory was Minnesota's 21st consecutive game against Los Angeles without a loss, a streak including 17 victories and four ties dating back to March 1970.

In other National Hockey League games, the New York Islanders rallied to beat California 6-3, St. Louis romped over Toronto 7-3 and Vancouver and Montreal tied 2- 2. In the only WHA game, Minnesota dropped Chicago 5-3.

Garry Unger scored a hat trick and Glen Sather had a goal and four assists to power St. Louis to its highest goal production of the season against Toronto.

Rookie winger Paulin Bordeleau's first NHL goal with less than three minutes remaining gave Vancouver its tie with Montreal. Bordeleau, a junior draft selection, scored on a brilliant rink-length rush during a Vancouver power play at 17:39. Last year Bordeleau had 54 goals in 56 games as a junior.

Mike Antonovich scored two goals to lead the Minnesota Fighting Saints of the WHA to their victory over the Chicago Cougars, pulling the Saints to within three points of first place Edmonton in the West. It was the Cougars' seventh straight loss.

OFF TO ROCKY START

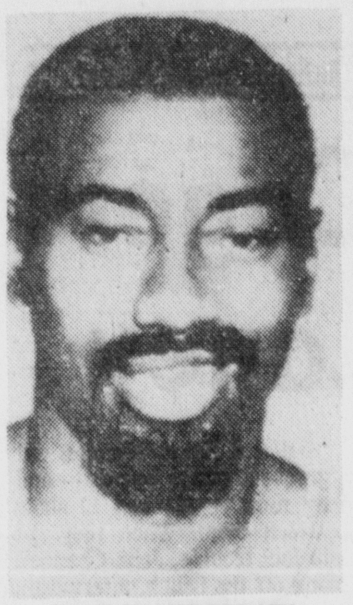
NEW YORK (UPI) — Wilt Chamberlain, off to a rocky start as the rookie coach of the American Basketball Association San Diego Conquistadors, just lost the best player he might've had—himself.

With the news that arbitrator Peter Seitz had rendered a decision in favor of the Los Angeles Lakers' claim that they had properly exercised their option rights regarding the former National Basketball Association superstar, Chamberlain can now look forward to earning the $600,000 he is being paid this year solely as the world's tallest coach.

If the layoff doesn't take too much off Chamberlain's 37-year old body, he will be back in uniform next season, earning the remainder of his $1.8- million three-year contract as a player-coach.

"We're studying the issue to determine what in fact we could do," said Seymour S. Goldberg, Chamberlain's attorney in Los Angeles. "But as a practical matter the season is running, and it's problematical as to whether we could get a hearing in time for it to be meaningful."

"We got him as a coach for the first year and a player-coach for the next two," said Conquistador General Manager Alex Groza. "Anything above that was a bonus. We were just trying to see if we could get him to play this year."



WILT CHAMBERLAIN
A setback

The Lakers, who knew they had lost Chamberlain's services for good in any event, refused to allow him to play for the rival league. When Chamberlain jumped to San Diego last summer after leading Los Angeles to one league and four Western Conference championships in five years, the Lakers obtained an injunction in Los Angeles County Superior Court prohibiting him from playing for any other team.

The court directed the Lakers and Chamberlain to agree upon an abitrator who would then decide whether the option clause in Chamberlain's contract had been properly executed.

"I awarded the case to Los Angeles," Seitz said here yesterday, "because I decided the Lakers had properly exercised the option right by offering him a contract for one more year comparable to the one he had been receiving."

There was a curious and, as yet, unexplained lag between the time of Seitz' decision (Dec. 3) and its public disclosure yesterday. "I was surprised that I hadn't seen it in any of the papers," Seitz said. "I can't imagine why it wasn't made public."

The Conquistadors certainly could have used Chamberlain as player. The Q's are mired in last place in the ABA West with an 11-18 record and the worst team defense in the league—they've given up an incredible 117.7 points per game.

Several attempts were made by UPI to contact Chamberlain about the arbitrator's decision but Wilt, ever the individualist even as coach, was unreachable at the Le Baron Hotel in San Diego while his players were 2,000 miles away in Indianapolis preparing for tonight's game against the Pacers.

Brodie To Play Briefly Saturday

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — John Brodie will play at quarterback for the first one or two series against Pittsburgh Saturday at Candlestick Park and then be removed in favor of Steve Spurrier, according to San Francisco 49er Coach Dick Nolan.

"I'm going to take John out so he can receive the ovations he deserves," said Nolan, "and then use Spurrier because he needs all the playing time. he can get.

The game will be televised locally after radio executive Paul Cassidy of KSFX-FM purchased the last 103 tickets and promised to give the tickets to boys clubs and charitable organizations.

Nolan said tight end Ted Kwalick's wrist is bruised and not fractured, as earlier feared, so that he can probably play Saturday. So can strong safety Mel Phillips, linebacker Willie Harper and halfback Vic Washington, who are nursing various hurts.

Biletnikoff Blasts Football Officials

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders, who seek their sixth division championship in seven years here Sunday against Denver, like to use the bomb. But their star receiver, Fred Biletnikoff, says game officials frequently make it a dud.

As an example, Biletnikoff pointed out Sunday's game against the Kansas City Chiefs. He said he was tripped and lying flat on his face in the end zone when Ken Stabler passed to him, but no penalty was called.

"I can name you six or seven things those officals did me out of this year," the 30-year-old wide receiver complained yesterday.

But even with the ones that got away, Biletnikoff has been able to lead the Raiders in catches so far this season with 42 for 602 yards. He has caught 40 or more passes for seven straight years.

Biletnikoff goes into Sunday's game ranked 22nd on the National Football League's 11-time list of receivers with 402 receptions, 54 of them for touchdowns.

If his catches Sunday add at least 35 yards to his 6,454-yard total, Biletnikoff will pass former Cleveland Browns end Dante Lavelli to become 21st on the all-time list for total yardage.

Suburban Five Wins As Stone Scores 19

Tim Stone scored 19 points last night as Suburban Auto squeaked by First American Title, 59-56, in San Rafael Recreation Department adult basketball league play at San Rafael High.

Gary Sheffield had 16 points for the losers. In other games, the San Rafael Ward Saints rode Ron Collins' 13 points to a 50-37 victory over McPhail's, and Fourth and D Copy Center topped the Little Store, 61-44, as Bob Banovac scored 16 for the winners and Dave Morey 18 for the losers.

Auto Club Plans To Go Ahead With Racing Sked

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The U.S. Auto Club still plans to go ahead with its 1974 racing schedule — with one eye on the fuel crisis and the other on attendance figures.

The USAC earlier had expected no real fuel problem because its racers, for the most part, use methanol, a special alcohol-type fuel with a natural gas base instead of gasoline.

But now USAC officials say methanol supply problems are cropping up and the 1974 schedule, though still on, is "very much up in the air."

"We plan to proceed with the January schedule as planned," USAC News Director Jeb Cadou said in an interview, "and we have made no decision yet to cancel any race on the 1974 schedule."

The January slate is light — two midget races, Jan. 6 and Jan. 20, at Allen County Memorial Coliseum in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Action picks up in February with some races in California, and with practice opening Feb. 25 for the California 500 at Ontario.

Leonard Manley, sales promotion manager for the Valvoline Oil Co., which has supplied about 90 per cent of USAC's methanol, was quoted by The Indianapolis News as saying methanol is now in critical short supply.

The News said Valvoline, a division of Ashland Oil Inc. of Ashland,ky., would trim methanol supplies by 40 per cent for 1974, which would mean a curtailed racing schedule of possibly only the 500-mile races at Ontario, Indianapolis and Pocono, Pa., and a couple of others.

Manley would not comment on the 40 per cent figure.

"I've heard the 40 per cent figure kicked around," Cadou confirmed, "but USAC has no official comment on it. At this point it's just speculation."

Methanol itself, Ashland officials say, is not scarce. It's just that the company has diverted production away from methanol to meet other petroleum needs.

Of the five USAC divisions, only the stock cars currently use gasoline. Dirt cars and some midgets could possibly be retuned to run on regular gasoline. Cadou said. But the sprints and Indianapolis-type cars are committed to methanol unless costly changes are made.

If other racing groups such as NASCAR are facing fuel cutbacks, they have so far kept mum about it. Officials from NASCAR and the National Hot Rod Association say there are no supply problems yet, but everyone is cautious.

Of equally great concern to race sanctioning bodies is attendance next season. The racers may find fuel for their cars, but will spectators find gasoline for theirs?

Traveling great distances to auto racing events is not uncommon, especially to stock car events in the South. But gas rationing could finish off that practice quickly, racing officials fear.

BAD TIMES FOR CEDENO

Star Didn't Want Publicity

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The easiest possible way ever to get Cesar Cedeno to frown was to sit down and talk with him, talk with him earnestly I mean, about some of the extravagant publicity he was receving.

At 18, they were comparing him with Willie Mays; at 20, they were comparing him with Roberto Clemente; at 22, there simply wasn't anybody left to compare him with anymore.

I remember how not too long before he died, Roberto Clemente was talking about some of the younger players coming into the game and how different they were now than when he came up, and when I asked Clemente if there was anyone in particular who reminded him of himself, say 15-20 years ago, he didn't think very long before saying "Cedeno."

Cesar Cedeno enjoyed hearing something like that, particularly coming from Roberto Clemente, another Latin whom he admired so much.

But the sensitive, slender Houston outfielder didn't go for publicity in general that much. He didn't enjoy it, perhaps because it became burdensome to handle.

"I don't want so much publicity," he'd say. "So much so soon."

Now he's got too much.

Unfortunately, all the wrong kind.

Police say the fatal shooting of a 19-year-old girl with whom Cedeno had checked into a motel in San Domingo early yesterday morning apparently was accidental. Nevertheless, the Astros' young superstar has been charged with what amounts to "voluntary manslaughter" and according to Latin American legal experts on criminal law, that charge is the approximate equivalent of second degree murder in the U.S.

By baseball law, Cesar Cedeno's career is in the balance. Should he be found guilty, he'd be all finished in baseball.

Insofar as Cedeno's baseball ability is concerned, he could easily be called the No. 1 player in the game today without much argument.

He batted .320 this year for the second straight season, hit 25 homers as compared with 22 last year and stole 56 bases, one more than the year before. No player in all baseball history can be recalled who was able to able to steal 50 or more bases and hit 20 or more homers two years in a row.

"He's the most dominating young player in the game today," says Sparky Anderson, the Cincinnati manager, who has a couple of older dominators of his own in Pete Rose and Johnny Bench.

"I like Cesar, not only as a ballplayer, but as a basically good individual," Anderson goes on. "On the last trip in September, I called him over and said to him, 'what's this? I pick up the paper and see you mouthing off about Durocher. You're a star in this game. You're too big for this sort of thing, and it's wrong for you to do it.'

"Cedeno said, 'he's wrong. He's always yelling at me.'"I told him I didn't care. I didn't want to get into that and I didn't ever want to pick up the paper again and see Cesar Cedeno connected with anything about anyone else that wasn't in a good constructive vein.

"He promised," says Sparky Anderson. "He said, 'I no say no more.'"

That was the last time the Reds' manager saw Cesar Cedeno.

The last time I saw him was after the Astros' final game of the season.

NBA ROUNDUP

McAdoo, Maravich Duel

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Bob McAdoo and Pete Maravich wouldn't budge a point Tuesday night as they battled for the National Baksetball Association scoring lead.

McAdoo, who leads The Pistol by the slimmest of margins, 28.8 to 28.7, scored 36 points in Buffalo's 132-127 victory over Atlanta. Maravich kept pace as he also tallied 36 for the losing Hawks.

Little Ernie DiGregorio was the deciding factor in the game with seven points in a five-minute extra session after the game ended 117-all in regulation time.

Lou Hudson, the game's high scorer with 40 points, hit 16 for Atlanta in the last period in rallying the Hawks from a nine-point deficit to send the game into overtime.

In other NBA action, Cleveland surprised Los Angeles 101-100 in overtime, New York downed Phoenix 105-97, Milwaukee bombed Seattle 130-91, Chicago nipped Kansas CityOmaha 105-104, Golden State defeated Houston 114-107 and Capital topped Portland 87-82.

Fred Foster's 12-foot jumper with 1:02 remaining in overtime pinned Los Angeles with its fourth consecutive defeat and equaled Coach Bill Sharman's longest losing streak with the Lakers. Jerry West scored 32 points for Los Angeles, which led by 13 points at halftime. Austin Carr led Cleveland with 24.

Dave DeBusschere scored 28 points and Walt Frazier added 22 for New York as the Knicks held off a fourth quarter Phoenix rally that cut an 18- point deficit to five midway in the period. Dick Van Arsdale's 23 points led the Suns.

Milwaukee won its 10th straight game with six Bucks, led by Lucius Allen's 28 points, scoring in double figures. Seattle, led by Fred Brown's 23 points, lost its 23rd game in 33 starts this season.

Chicago captured its fifth in a row behind Bob Love's 23 points against KC-Omaha. The Kings were topped by Jimmy Walker's 27 points.

Miranda Is Outpointed By Seales

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sugar Ray Seales, 150, Tacoma, the only U.S. Olympic Games boxing gold medalist of 1972, remained unbeaten as a pro last night as he pounded out a unanimous 10-round decision over Jose Miranda, 148, Mexico City at Civic Auditorium.

Seales scored his 14th consecutive victory as he repeated an earlier triumph over the outgunned Miranda, who won only one point on the three official scorecards. There were no knockdowns.

Lunny, 136, was unable to put Cassius, 137, away despite his superiority in every round as Cassius offered little resistance.

Unbeaten San Francisco heavyweight Larry Frazier, 222, made Mike Weaver, 194, Los Angeles his sixth consecutive knockout victim in the second round of a scheduled six-rounder.

Although the presence of the three unbeaten favorites drew a good house of 2,731 who paid $15,408 for the Civic Auditorium show, it was the opening bout that turned out to be the best one.

Tommy Howard, 145, Seattle, won a split decision over Johnny Melendez, 147, San Francisco, in an eight-rounder that had the fans on their feet roaring. Money was tossed into the ring after the bout.

club. Yes, we should be closer, but I don't want to comment any further."

This seems to happen when a team is losing. The players find themselves grumbling at one another and walking their separate ways. It happens in all sports, not just football. For every losing team there is talk of dissension. The A's are the only team that is surrounded by stories of dissension even when they are winning world championships.

SNIADECKI WAS ASKED, and gave, his opinion on Nolan's announcement yesterday that John Brodie, playing in his last football game as a professional, would only play the first two series the 49ers had the ball.

Jim backed his boss all the way. He's no dummy. "We are building for the future. The coach has to play the quarterback who is going to be the quarterback of the future," in this case either Steve Spurrier or Joe Reed.

Nolan is doing the practical thing. For the sake of the fan, it would be a much better show if Brodie was given the chance to play the entire game in his farewell to football. But for that to happen, emotions would have to play a big part in the decision. The 49ers do much of their planning by computer. And computers don't have emotions.

White Sox' Santo Is Happy Man

CHICAGO (UPI) — The first entry in Ron Santo's social calendar as a new member of the Chicago White Sox is to pay a call on Bill Melton.

"That's the first thing I want to do," Santo said yesterday when White Sox introduced him as their latest addition after a trade with the Cubs, who got four players in return.

Melton is as highly prized a third baseman with the White Sox management and fans as Santo used to be with the Cubs. Melton, 28, missed a lot of last season with a back problem, but he belted 33 home runs in 1970 for a team record and hit 33 again in 1971 for an American League season high.

"I know how Melton would feel if the positions were reversed," Santo said. "I know Bill and the first thing I want to do is to talk to him about this deal."

"When I heard the White Sox wanted me, it made me feel happy. Then when I knew they really were interested in men I was elated and excited."

Going to the Cubs in the deal are pitchers Steven Stone, and Ken Frailing and catcher Steve Swisher and a player to be named later.

Galivan's Grid Crown Stripped

SAN MATEO (AP) — The California Junior College Association has taken the small college division football title away from Gavilan College and awarded it to Mira Costa on grounds Gavilan used three ineligible players this season when it beat Mira Costa 16-0 in a playoff final.

The Coast Conference, where Gavilan was champion, was placed on probation until it gives assurance all its schools will comply with the state code on transfer rules, the JC Athletic Committee said Tuesday.

Gavilan's athletic director, Paul Latzke, said a court injunction would be sought to keep the state committee from denying Gavilan the championship it won Dec. 1.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Careful Study Should Be Given Investments, Short Term Losses

If you have investments with short term losses, it may be a good idea to take them in 1973. If you have long term losses, be careful that you don't take more losses than are necessary to offset capital gains because you can only claim long term losses to the extent of capital gains plus $2 of long term loss to offset $1 of ordinary income up to a maximum of $1,000 of ordinary income offset by $2,000 of long term losses.

Excess losses can be carried over to subsequent years and remain long term or short term. Short term losses are used first, then long term.

If you have large capital gains, actually compute your tax and see which year will come out best. Don't forget, income averaging applies to capital gains and the maximum tax on capital gains over $50,000 is now 35 per cent.

There are nine types of income subject to the new 10 per cent preference taxes.

They are: (1) depletion; (2) accelerated depreciation on real estate and amortization of on-the-job training and child care facilities; (3) restricted qualifid stock options; (4) net long term gains; (5) amortization of certified pollution control facilities; (6) amortization of railroad rolling stock; (7) bad debts — financial institutions; (8) accelerated depreciation on personal property subject to net lease; and (9) some foreign source tax preference income, but only to the extent that it reduces domestic income.

However, tax preference items have to total more than $30,000 before they are subject to tax because you have a $30,000 exclusion plus excluding your regular tax liability.

Warning Issued On Fast Buck Operators

Fast Buck operators posing as inspectors for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) are preying on businessmen in the Bay Area, the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco warned this week.

Don Schwartz, executive vice president of the San Francisco BBB, said the most prevalent and hardest to stop is the high pressure selling of unnecessary products or signs to businessmen trying to comply with safety regulations.

"Business owners or managers can avoid falling prey to this kind of scheme by checking carefully the credentials of anyone representing himself as an 'inspector'," said Schwartz. "If in doubt, call your Better Business Bureau. No money should be given to the inspector in payment for fines or violations.

"Before buying equipment or signs, ask yourself: Does it really improve safety conditions? Is it workable? Does it have real value or does it only create a false sense of safety? And, as with any product, is it the best overall value for my money?"

BUSINESS MIRROR

Demand Is Expected To Grow For Paper Goods

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — If you are a businessman with a room full of files or a homemaker with a house to keep in order you might find it hard to believe but, yes, there is a paper shortage.

This one isn't so much the result of inadequate production-although there is that aspect to the shortage — but of the semingly insatiable appetite of the economic system for newsprint and printing paper and paperboard and paperbags and tissue.

Last year that hunger resulted in between 63 million and 64 million tons being consumed. This year's consumption has been at the rate of between 67 million and 68 million tons, or about 640 pounds per person.

Looking into the immediate future, analysts foresee little or no letup in demand. In fact, some industry officials believe that by 1975 the country will need eight million tons a year more but that capacity will grow by only half that.

One of the ironies of the problems is that this demand grows in spite of dedicated efforts to reduce man's reliance on paper. In some industries the battle may be considered critical.

The banking system, for example, feels as if it sits beneath a constant shower of confetti in the form of 23 billion checks a year that descend upon its clearing facilities. Bankers everywhere agree that it can't keep up.

Now being developed are systems to record transactions through the use of electronic system that add to or deduct from your account without the medium of the check.

In the securities industry, to cite another example, the inadequacies of paper stock certificates, beautiful as they are, was made obvious by the big increase in transactions during the 1960s.

Unable to transfer certificates quickly, some brokers merely let them pile up in back offices, almost bringing down the entire industry. The confusion hardly can be exaggerated.

But try as he does, man has been unable to dig out from under the pile.

The electronic computer was supposed to help, but few businessmen or academecians or customers are willing to take the computer's word that it has all the information tucked away in its memory. No, they want a printout.

Technology, rather than easing the situation, seems in fact to be creating more problems, as can be attested to by anyone who has ever watched a highspeed electronic copier at work.

Every now and then Uncle Sam makes an effort to reduce paper demands such as by attempting to simplify the income tax form. But then there develops this business of wage and price controls — and consumption rises.

Unforeseen developments, such as Watergate, add to the appetite for news, and that means more newsprint is used. It now amounts to 11 million tons a year, only 3.5 million of which comes from domestic supplies.

Magazines, business forms, annual reports and all the other items that make up the printing paper category add up to another 13 million tons.

Paperboard, such as for corrugated boxes, and construction paper, such as tarpaper, add another 16 million to 17 million tons to the total.

The mere increase in population adds enormously to demand, as witness the five million tons of tissue, much of it light as a feather, that is consumed each year.

When the economy expands, as almost every American hopes it will, up goes paper consumption, automatically and seemingly inevitably, almost as if it were all flypaper attached to the coattails of mankind.

Just to carry the groceries home from the market, for example, requires five million tons of paperbags a year.

Stanford Graduates Like Their Job

STANFORD (UPI) — A study of seven classes of graduates from Stanford University's master of business administration program shows job satisfaction and success are remarkably high.

Two-thirds of those surveyed expressed a high degree of satisfaction with their jobs, while three-fourths rated their job success as high. Starting salaries ranged from $600 a month in 1961 to $1,000 in 1967.

Stocks Drop Sharply Second Straight Day

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, showing concern over the nation's economy, plunged today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

There was little news in the background to influence the market's action. There had been a couple of rallies in recent sessions in a technical reaction to heavy losses in the past two months. Many analysts said the overall decline still had not found bottom.

Prices also were lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

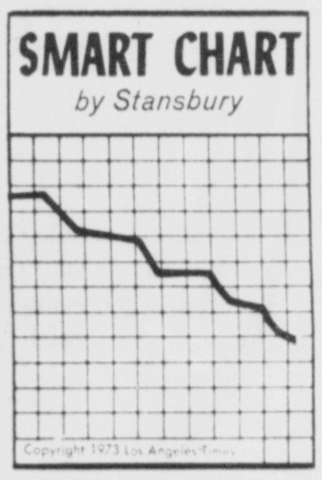
Oils were lower. Some analysts said the Middle East problem has depressed some oil prices. Losers included Ohio Standard, Getty Oil and Exxon.

Chemicals lost ground. DuPont, Eastman Kodak and Monsanto were down.

Some of the glamors took a pounding. Among those on the decline were Polaroid, Xerox and Corning Glass.

Alberto-Culver was one of the most active issues, primarily because of a block of 234,900 shares at 6 ⅞, off ⅛. Publicker Industries had a block of 116,100 at 2 ½, of ¾.

Gold mining issues did well in light of rising prices abroad. Dome Mines, Campbell Red Lake, Homestake Mining and Asa Ltd. advanced.



"This year, Chief, in our annual report, we can blame the fuel shortage instead of the Post Office."

To Double Output

TOLEDO, OHIO (UPI) — Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp. recently announced plans to double the company's 40-million-pound capacity for producing polyester resins.

Montgomery Tire Service To Move To Francisco Boulevard Location

Montgomery Tire Service, located at 807 Third Street in San Rafael, will relocate next spring into a new building to be built on Francisco Boulevard next to Francisco Dodge Center.

Oscar E. Montgomery of Novato, who has operated the tire service for 20 years near the corner of Third and Lincoln, said his new building will be tilt-up concrete and should be ready about March of next year. It will have 5,000 square feet of floor space, plus better facilities and more convenient offstreet parking.

Montgomery Tire Service will add wheel alignment to its complete tire service at the new Francisco Boulevard location.

Montgomery and his former partner, Elroy Hall, started Montgomery-Hall Tire Service in San Rafael 20 years ago, but Hall retired five years ago and is living in Grass Valley.

JOHN L. MOSS, 31, of San Rafael has been named Coldwell Banker's regional personnel manager, with offices in divisional headquarters at San Francisco's Embarcadero Center. Moss will administer recruitment and staff relations programs for the real estate firm's more than 400 employees in Northern California, Washington and Oregon.

Dado

ARNOLD E. DADO of San Rafael has been named manager of the Santa Rosa agency of Mutual of New York (MONY). In his new position Dado will be responsible for the agency's policyholder service, sales and recruiting.

Dado joined MONY in 1967 as an assistant manager in the Oakland agency with five years of previous insurance experience. In 1971, he was appointed manager of MONY's San Rafael agency.

SALT OF THE EARTH Inc., featuring folk artifacts from the Americas, will open this week at The Port, 393 Miller Avenue in Mill Valley.

The new store is owned by David Valensky of Corte Madera, and Barbara Karten and Jerold Meltzer of Santa Rosa.

Salt Of The Earth features Huichole art (yarn and embroidery art by a group of Aztec-descended Indians in Mexico); American Indian artifacts such as etched boxes, trays and chests; glass and brass boxes; hand woven blankets; hand-embroidered bags, and various textile and basket products.

Miss Karten graduated from University of California in Berkeley in 1970 as an architect, then went to Columbia University and worked toward a master's degree in historic preservation and restoration. Her interest in anthropology led her to collect artifacts from North, Central and South America.

Valensky, a musician, and Meltzer, who formerly managed music groups, have been trading in American Indian artifacts for about four years.

SHIRLEY'S ANTIQUES And Other Things, another antique and gift shop, opened today in San Rafael at 544 Third Street, next to The Cellars restaurant, across the street from United Market's nursery.

The store is owned and operated by Shirley Narin, wife of Stanley Narin of Harbor Estates. Mrs. Narin was a buyer for Sak's Fifth Avenue in Beverly Hills for about five years and began collecting antiques about two years ago. Shirley's Antiques carries not only antiques and furniture but also small accessories and gift items. The store is open Tuesday through Saturday.

NOR-CAL SIGNS of 1064-E Machin Avenue in Novato will hold a closing-out sale this coming Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Items available include office equipment, desks, work benches, hand tools and paints.

Dirf Benford of Novato, who has owned Nor-Cal Signs since August 1971, said he is closing the shop because of drop in business, and will go to work for the U.S. Post Office in Petaluma.

MILL VALLEY CHEVRON is the new name of Lou's Chevron Service at 5 Ashford Avenue in Mill Valley.

A new owner, Stephen Gifford of Novato, took over the service station this month from Louis J. Pizzio of Mill Valley, who is moving to Sacramento. Gifford managed a service station in San Anselmo for three years before taking over Lou's Chevron.

The new Mill Valley Chevron will offer full service, including minor repairs, brakes and tune-ups. It will be licensed for smog device installation and inspection and headlight adjustments. Gifford's station is open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Dallas, Fort Worth Attracting Businesses

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The nearby cities of Dallas and Fort Worth, dubbed the Southwest Metroplex, led the state in attracting new manufacturing plants during the first six months of 1973.

The Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas reported the Metroplex also had 31 plant expansions during this period.

San Rafael Planners Cool To Office Idea

A proposal by Marin Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere for an office building at 1292 Lincoln Avenue received an icy reception from the San Rafael Planning Commission last night.

A representative of the project withdrew a use permit application needed to proceed with development plans when it became apparent the commission would deny the request, according to Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner.

Hotchner said commissioners made no ruling on the merits of the proposal, but said the project could not be considered until the city general plan is completed.

The city planning department had recommended that the proposal be denied.

Roumiguiere had proposed that three single-family homes be razed to make way for a two-story office building and 40 parking spaces.

The San Rafael Planning Commission also:

CHAIRMAN — Put over until Jan. 22 election of commission chairman.

SMITH RANCH — Told representatives of Smith Ranch airport to apply for a new use permit by February.

GUIDELINES — Told staff to study guidelines for studios and one-bedroom apartments.

USE PERMITS —Approved permits for a two-lot subdivision at 13 Hazelwood; swimming instruction at 46 Brentwood Drive and a mobile home sales office at 548 DuBois Street.

MULTIPLE USE — Put over to Jan. 8 consideration of a permit for multiple residential uses at 513-517 B Street.

Car Pool Telethon Under Way

About 150 commuters telephoned the Marin unit of the Sierra Club last night in the start of its telethon to form car pools.

Gilbert Deane of San Rafael, president of the unit, said he did not know "whether that's good or bad, but was somewhat disappointed."

The telethon to register commuters will continue today and tomorrow from 5 to 11 p.m. Commuters may call either 461-3000 or 456-7830, Deane said. A permanent telephone number will be announced Friday.

Registration forms also are available at all Marin branches of the Crocker Bank, Petrini's in Greenbrae, Frank Howard Allen real estate offices, Ross Valley Savings and Loan offices, all open markets in the Safeway, United, Cala, Mayfair and Roger Wilco chains, Long's in Novato and Viking Ventures bicycle shop in Tiburon.

Golden Gate Bridge toll officers also will hand commuters the registration forms, but no one at the bridge office knew when the distribution will occur.

Six teams of club members wearing sandwich boards urging commuters to register in the car pools appeared again this morning along heavily traveled roadways.

Neil Brixon Won't Seek Reelection

Neil R. Brixon, senior member of the Larkspur City Council, announced today he will not be a candidate for reelection next March.

"After 14 years, it's time to retire to a less active life," said Brixon. "The city is in good hands now. I feel I've accomplished most of the goals I set out to accomplish, particularly in the management of the city."

Brixon's term is one of two expiring on the Larkspur council, the other being that of Alfred J. Malvino, who is mayor this year. Malvino has not yet said whether he will seek another term.

Under a new state law, which moves the municipal elections to the first Tuesday in March, filing deadline for incumbents is Dec. 27. Nonincumbents get three additional days to file, until Dec. 30.

Boom Predicted For Parts Firms

CHICAGO (UPI) — Frederick J. Mancheski, chairman of the Motor and Equipment Manufacturers Asociation (MEMA), yesterday said automotive parts makers can expect a boom instead of a slowdown in 1974, despite the energy crisis.

Mancheski said the auto parts industry "will run counter to the economy and post an 8-10 per cent gain in 1974."

Symphony Foundation Picks Junior Members

The San Francisco Symphony League of Marin has announced the winners of their first junior memberships.

Mrs. Thomas Stanton, chairman, worked with the music faculties of Marin County high schools who made the selections.

The winners are Beatriz Csery, Sir Francis Drake High School; Sarah Hall, Tamalpais High School; Thomas Macfarlane, Redwood High School; Dennie Joanne Mehocich, San Rafael High School; Polly Boissevain, San Marin High School; Robert Elkjer, Terra Linda High School; Jean Anderson, Novato High School; Sharon Parks, Tomales High School; Carol Ross Strong, Katharine Branson School; Diana Watt, San Domenico School; Lynn Pieri, Marin Catholic High School, and Leslie Tomkins, Marin Academy.

The memberships will entitle the music students to attend dress rehearsals of the orchestra, the finals of the Symphony Foundation's national competition, and a special concert for members in the spring.

State To Fight Cut By Airline

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Maryland Aviation Administrator Robert Aaronson says the state will contest Pan American Airlines' plan to suspend service to Baltimore.

Aaronson said yesterday he will meet with Pan American officials to discuss alternatives to dropping service to the city. If that fails, he said he would ask the Civil Aeronautics Board to refuse the airline permission for the one-year suspension of the international flights.

The airline said its decision was based on the need to conserve fuel.

To Name Panel

Members of a new Citizens Advisory Council for the Kentfield School District will be named at a special meeting of district trustees Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the district office. Trustees will also review the district's policy handbook.

ESP in Concert, Psychics to Meet Here

The date of December 16 has been set for the all-day conclave of famous ESP/psychic phenomena experts, called PSYCHIC 74. The event is expected to be one of the most unusual of its kind because it features no less than six noted psychics.

Scheduled to appear are: DR. DAVID HOY, who will demonstrate the same psychic abilities which caused Sonny & Cher to make him their personal psychic consultant; KAY BECK, who has made psychic healing a science, and has won affection from many by reason of her unique approach to counseling; SEBASTIAN X. KING, Ph.D., author, psychologist and 'happener'; and DAVID JOHNSON, a medium and Psychic Noble who has brought a special meaning to the word 'reading' and has expanded the numerological index from 9 to 365!

Also featured on PSYCHIC 74 will be: DR. RICHARD IRELAND, clairvoyant, entertainer, and consultant to many Hollywood stars, including the indominable Mae West. Dr. Ireland, who performs regularly in Las Vegas, is "the most outstanding clairvoyant in the world today (Las Vegas Sun)." The celebrated author of The Phoenix Oracle will be speaking about the psychic universe, and giving demonstrations to the audience.

ROBERT R. LEICHTMAN, M.D., will also appear on the program. Dr. Leichtman brings with him the experience of having been a practicing physician for a number of years. He is still often employed as a medical consultant, and uses his psychic gift to aid his colleagues in their diagnoses.

All participants have varying approaches to the realm of ESP and related disciplines, but they all agree on one point: psychic ability is not just for a chosen few, it is a talent which can be perfected just like any other. The audience will have the unusual opportunity to participate in a question and answer period, as well as in-depth discussion sessions.

Other out of the ordinary happenings for an event such as PSYCHIC 74 will be to impart the manner in which individuals may develop their own 'ESPotential' to the fullest; guidelines for using this power for personal needs and for those of others; techniques for detecting 'psychaholics'; pitfalls to be avoided—and numerous other information which is available no where else.

Many of the psychics will give out their New Year predictions, much of which will be startling information. However the overall message of PSYCHIC 74 is that psychic phenomena is real, and that it is there in each human being waiting to be used. Area residents will have a unique opportunity to participate in the ESP seminar/demonstration between the hours of 2 PM and 10 PM.

All tickets, reasonably priced at $5, are on sale at Macy's and major agencies, or by mail from Downtown Center Box Office. For information call 775-2021.

FUEL PROTEST — Truckers who blockaded a truck stop near Old Worthington, Ohio, for five days are now using it as the command post in their call for a nationwide trucking shutdown on all trucking tomorrow and Friday. A similar blockade at a truck stop in Cordele, Ga., was called off this morning. Meanwhile, Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del. rode with one trucker and talked to hundreds. His trip convinced him the truckers make a case worth listening to.

New Fuel Proposals To Cut Into Gasoline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration today proposed new fuel allocations regulations that would result in less gasoline and higher prices for the consumer.

The proposed regulations, announced by new energy chief William E. Simon, call for an increase in production of distillates such as home heating oil, petrochemicals and residual fuel oil that is used by power plants.

The new mandatory program, supplementing incentive program announced last week, would cut back gasoline output by an estimated 15 per cent and raise heating oil 8 or 9 cents a gallon and gasoline 6 or 7 cents a gallon.

The proposed rules are scheduled to take effect Dec. 27. They were prepared for publication in the Federal Register. The proposals are not final but probably will take this general form when put into effect after allowing time for public comment.

Under the proposals, a priority of users will be established. Emergency services such as fire and police departments, public transportation, agriculture and fuel production will get 100 per cent of their requirements. Other users will get about 90 per cent. All specifics of the proposal were not immediately disclosed, but the Washington Star-News said these were among its elements:

A cutback in gasoline output by 15 per cent at the refinery level, plus an additional 10 per cent at the gasoline pump.

Electric utilites will have to bear the shortages in heavy heating oils, possibly necessitating power cutbacks, especially in the Northeast.

Big domestic air carriers would be allotted 95 per cent of their 1972 use until Jan. 7 and 85 per cent after that. Small regional airlines would get 95 per cent until Jan. 7 and 90 per cent afterwards and international carriers would receive 100 per cent until Jan. 7 and 85 per cent after.

An equitable sharing of all available fuel with requirements that prices charged be uniform for all users.

The regulations provide for no gasoline rationing but since the rules cover distribution from producer to wholesaler to gasoline station, the gas available to the consumer will be affected.

Simon stressed the allocations "were not rationing but a system to assure equitable distribution at the wholesale level."

"If in such a monumental undertaking there could be a key word, that word would be flexibility," Simon said in a statement.

He said the program was designed to "keep food on the table, people at work and maintain the health of the nation."

There were renewed allegations that the energy crisis was brought about by the large oil companies.

Truckers' Case Is Worth Hearing

(EDITOR'S NOTE: — Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., member of a Senate subcommittee which has been hearing complaints of truckers about the energy crisis, rode a big rig from Delaware to Ohio to observe for himself. Here is his report.)

By SEN. JOSEPH R. BIDEN JR.
U.P. INTERNATIONAL

I rode all night in a 47,000 pound cargo truck carrying hollow-shell pipe from Bear, Del., to Hamilton, Ohio. The distance was a chilly 536 miles. It snowed the last 150 miles of the trip covering five states, but this was nothing compared to the snow-job truck drivers I met believe the government is handing them.

They may be right; they may be wrong. I made the trip because I wanted a first-hand account from the truckers, who say they carry 50 per cent of all the goods shipped within the United States. They make a case worth listening to.

Along the way, I talked to more than 300 drivers, most of them self-employed "independents," as the mammoth truck I was riding in stopped for fuel at five stations during the 15-hour trip. At a major fuel and rest stop along Route I-70 at the Shiloh truck stop in Ohio, I talked to a spontaneous meeting of 200 drivers. They're both angry and frustrated, as is Spencer Malcom of Bear, the independent whose "rig" I rode in.

The trip was also a fascinating glimpse at an aspect of life-on-the-road little known to most Americans, including myself until I made the trip. The truckers drivers are burly, plain-speaking laboring men who seek fair shares in the America they fought in our wars to protect.

At the Shiloh stop, I found the beginnings of a massive block-in—whereby a cordon of trucks would block access to diesel-fuel stations that truck drivers (not civilian auto drivers) use.

It took some negotiations to get in: The truckers didn't want me if I wouldn't stay and listen, and I didn't want in if they wouldn't let my truck out so I could complete my trip.

The result taught us both something. I talked to the truckers in a large room. They were orderly but blunt in their criticisms.

JOSEPH R. BIDEN JR.
Senator rides a rig

They made these points:

1. Some drivers were hauling full tanks of motor fuel. They reported seeing fuel ships in Delaware Bay and along other coastal areas waiting to unload. Their question: Was there really a fuel crisis?

2. The proposed speed-limits are unfair. Big rigs can't get into high gear at 50 m.p.h. and waste fuel at that speed. One trucker claimed he gets 3.2 miles a gallon at 50 m.p.h. and 4.6 miles at 60 m.p.h. A big truck's gears, he said, operate so that driving at 50 m.p.h. is like driving in a passenger car in second gear.

3. They don't want an increase in freight rates, although there is talk within the Nixon administration of permitting an increase to cover increased costs. Truckers say that ultimately such increases, while immediately useful, would result in increased food prices that their wives will have to pay. And, two truckers said, the consumer would blame food-costs increases on them.

4. There is a wide variation in prices at stations where they buy their fuel. Malcom, with whom I rode, stopped for fuel five times and, in all, we checked fuel prices at a total of nine or ten stations. Prices ranged from 39.9 cents a gallon to 54.1 cents a gallon for diesel fuel. Rig tanks hold between 200 to 300 gallons. Truck-stop managers told me, however, that they have not increased their margin of profit, but their inceased prices only reflect increased costs to them.

But dominating the entire discussion was a feeling, which I also have from talking to my constituents in Delaware, that the Federal Government isn't listening. It doesn't matter who's in the White House, a Republican or a Democrat. The truckers just feel "left out." This, also, has damaging implications in the long-run for our democratic political institutions.

Visitor To Ride School Buses

REDDING (UPI) — Shasta County school children can expect a "visitor" on their school buses for awhile.

The California Highway Patrol says yesterday it will begin putting a traffic officer equipped with a walkie-talkie on some of the buses in a crackdown effort to catch motorists who don't stop when the bus lights are flashing.

A normal patrol car will pick up signals from officers on buses when a violation occurs, and hunt down the offending motorist, a patrol spokesman said.

The Correct Safety Play Can Guarantee South The Contract

What card should you use to win the first trump trick when you have the three top trumps? It may seem that one top trump is as good as another, but it would be wrong to jump to conclusions.

WITH KING

West opened the queen of diamonds, and South won with the king. Declarer knew that he would have to give up three heart tricks sonner or later, and he therefore concentrated on avoiding the loss of any other trick.

The first step, clearly, was to draw trumps. Should he win the first trump trick in his own hand with the king or queen, or should he lead a low trump to dummy's ace? The fate of the contract hung on his answer to this question.

COUNTS CAREFULLY

South counted his trumps carefully, noting that he was missing only four, headed by jack-ten. Any line of play would work if the trumps were divided, but he might be in trouble if one opponent had all four trumps.

What could be done if West had all four trumps? Not a thing. West would surely manage to get a trump trick.

What could be done if the four trumps were on the other side of the table? This was a different story, provided that South found out in time.

BAD NEWS

South therefore led a low trump to dummy's ace. West discarded a diamond, and the bad news was out in the open. East had all of the trumps.

Fortunately, South had found out in time. He returned a low trump from dummy. East put up the ten, and South won with the queen. Declarer could return to dummy with the king of clubs to lead another trump through East. No matter what East played, South could win a finesse with the king-nine.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids one spade.

The next player bids two diamonds.

You hold:

♠- A 6 2
♥- 9 6 4
♦- 7 3 2
♣- K 6 5 4

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

This may be your only cheap chance to show modest values together with trump support for partner's suit.

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 12, the 346th day of 1973 with 19 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

John Jay, first chief justice of the United States, was born Dec. 12, 1745.

Also on this day in history:

In 1901, a wireless message was transmitted across the Atlantic Ocean for the first time.

In 1937, Japanese planes bombed and sank the U.S. gunboat Panay in the Yangtze River above Nanking, China.

A thought for the day: British statesman Sir Winston Churchill said, "Politics are almost as exciting as war, and quite as dangerous. In war, you can only be killed once, but in politics many times."

THIS HOME NEEDS
A FAMILY TO SPEND CHRISTMAS WITH
The owners of this well-maintained family home in Mariner Highlands are being transferred East & reluctantly have had to put this on the market. They tell us they'll miss the life style it gives them: nestled into the hill, a block (by path) to Granada School, the tree-lined street with underground utilities, formal living room & paneled family living are (where the fireplace is), 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, built-ins in the kid's room - a relaxed easy sort of life. It's been good for them. If this style seems like it might fit you, be sure to see it. $48,950 (and worth it).

Oakland Firm Books Flights To The Moon

OAKLAND (UPI) — Want to visit a profoundly silent, smog-free resort with a fantastic view of the heavens? And earth?

Vacation moon flights may be only a few rocket developments away and it's not too late — or too early — to join the cosmic crowd.

Just call your local travel agent.

"We have over 10,000 reservations in our charter moon flight series," said Robert J. Ziener, lunar project director for Trans International Airlines TIA. "Most of these are people really serious about wanting to go."

Ziener said TIA, one of the world's largest charter airlines, believes a crash program for developing nuclear energy is the giant step needed for making lunar launches commerically commonplace.

President Nixon's recent "energy crisis" speech indicated a speeding up of nuclear power development, Zeiner said.

"This will be the harbinger of nuclear fuel to power moon flights. It's the first step in making such flights possible."

Already holding round-trip tickets to such exotic places as the Sea of Tranquility and Newton's Crater are NASA scientists, congressmen, movie stars and "lots of news media people," Zeiner said.

The computerized reservation stubs quote no price, which is expected to be very high. And it states: "Flight departure times to be announced."

Ziener said TIA has approached space travel seriously and scientifically because it believes airlines must pioneer space travel to avoid going the way of the railroads.

"We not only think moon travel is a distinct possibility, but the only reason we got into it in the first place is because we believe it's inevitable," Ziener said.

Other airlines also have approached the idea, notably Pan American Airways which booked 30,000 moonflight passengers, but TIA put out the only batch of "moon firsts," including an illustrated travel brochure, a stewardess modeling outer space attire, lunar posters and a recording of a simulated moon journey.

ACLU Director Sees Impeachment

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Charles Morgan Jr., director of the national office of the American Civil Liberties Union is predicting yesterday President Nixon will be impeached.

Speaking at the downtown YWCA, Morgan said it is inevitable that the House of Representatives will vote to bring Nixon to trial in a constitutional manner on specific charges but he did not say when.

Escaped Con Fools Officials At Two Schools

BALTIMORE (UPI) — An escaped convict, who talked himself into a job as a substitute teacher, has been returned to jail, leaving school officials unable to explain how he got the job.

Curtis J. Lewis was arrested Friday after teaching an afternoon music class at Gwynns Falls Junior High School. He had taught English and metal shop classes at another school for two days last November, but was removed from the substitute list there as "unacceptable," the principal said.

Lewis escaped from the Maryland House of Corrections at Jessup in October 1972, while serving time for auto theft. He was approved as a substitute teacher less than a month after his escape.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Christmas Tree Can Be Fire Hazard; Be Sure Yours Isn't

Make this a safe Christmas. Most of us are lucky, considering the fire hazards that we create year after year. This is the season for parties, festivities, gift wrappings, decorations, and loads of special fun. And to this scene, we usually add one of the most highly flammable objects in the world — the Christmas tree. It burns like fury unless dipped in or sprayed with a flame-proofing or flame-retardant compound.

Most Christmas trees are cut well in advance and may be dry by the time they reach the retail outlet. When a tree is too dry, it sheds needles easily; its branches are brittle; and it burns faster.

AUTHORITIES TELL me that the best way to test a tree for freshness is to bounce the butt hard on the ground. If needles shower down, it is too dry. The needles should offer some resistance when pulled out. A stump that is sticky with resin may be messy, but it means that the tree is fresh, moist, and less likely to burn.

The next step is to keep the tree outside (or in the garage) in a bucket of water or in the snow until you are ready to put it up. Before it is set up, saw off one inch from the trunk and keep the tree in water as long as it remains in the house. Don't put it near heat or the stairs.

No one uses open-flame candles but electric lighting gadgets can cause trouble, expecially when the tree is dry. Check cords and sockets for fire and shock hazards.

CHRISTMAS WRAPPINGS grow like Topsy unless disposed of each day. Never burn them in the fireplace. For decorating the house, noncombustible materials such as metal, glass, and asbestos are preferred.

Keep plenty of ashtrays handy, but no matches. Be emphatic about the "no smoking" rule when near the tree. And if it is your turn to play Santa Claus for the children, don't smoke. Those whiskers ignite easily and burn quickly unless flameproofed.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

LUMPY JAW

A ready writes: How does actinomycosis start? Does it affect the glands around the neck? Can it be cured?

REPLY

This fungal infection begins usually as a painful swelling of the jaw that comes to a head and ruptures through several small openings. The disease often extends into the lung and intestine. Involvement of the glands is not a characteristic feature of the disease. Cure or marked improvement follows the use of penicillin or the tetracycline drugs.

WATERY EYES

L. T. writes: What causes the eyes to water a lot?

REPLY

Eyes water excessively because they are irritated, the tear glands are too active, or the drainage system is inadequate. May I suggest an examination?

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Big Stars No Longer Sneer At Job Offers

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Many big movie stars—perhaps most—used to sneer at television when considering projects and outlets for their talents.

They were foolish and couldn't see the future. They deluded themselves with a snobbism towards video. They regarded television as a possible retirement home when their stars began to fad.

Now, however, several seasons of network gambling with movie stars have exposed the fact that, in most cases, they mean little or nothing in attracting video audiences. The snobbism is a thing of the past.

Only a handful of movie names, such as Steve McQueen, Marlon Brando and Paul Newman, can afford at this point to bypass television when contemplating their film ventures.

A handful of major movie names—George C. Scott and Charlton Heston among them—have been wise enough to see the delusion in the snobbism, and have successfully mixed in video roles with their motion picture parts.

What they knew, as intelligent performers, is that the sole factor of genuine importance is the quality of a production and their parts in it. The status nonsense associated with old-style movie star buildups is, for all practical purposes, dead.

The studios that once built up the stars now look forward to selling motion pictures to television, which is on a firmer day-to-day financial footing than the movie industry.

Many egos have been deflated in the last few years as movie stars of the past—and present — saw unimpressive video ratings result from their home screen projects.

Now, having sneered at television for a long time, some motion picture headliners wish they could cash in on its potentially great economic rewards.

But there are indications that the networks have definitely wised up to the realities regarding movie star appeal in home screen shows.

And those ridiculous prices that have been paid to some film names who have turned to video are surely a thing of the past in most cases.

Television has learned that, in general, its biggest stars are the ones it has built up itself. Carroll O'Connor and Redd Foxx are bigger stars on the home tube than Rock Hudson and Jimmy Stewart.

Mullin Is Guilty In Death Of Catholic Priest

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Convicted mass slayer Herbert W. Mullin, 26, was found guilty yesterday on charges of second degree murder in the Nov. 2, 1972, death of a Roman Catholic priest.

Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge William A. Ingram announced his decision after Mullin, a former mental patient, withdrew his insanity plea in the death of the Rev. Henri Tomei, 62, in St. Mary's Church in nearby Los Gatos.

Ingram set Dec. 21 for sentencing.

In Santa Cruz County Mullin was convicted of killing 10 persons. He was sentenced there to life imprisonment.

Public Defender C. Randal Schneider said his client decided to change his plea because he wanted to settle the case immediately.

TV Special Produced By Ignacio Man

"The Borrowers," a Hallmark Hall of Fame television special to be broadcast at 8:30 p.m. Friday on NBC was produced by Warren L. Lockhart of 93 Calypso Shores, Ignacio.

Lockhart is a business associate of Charles M. Schulz, originator of the Peanuts comic strip. "The Borrowers" is the first Schulz show which does not use Peanuts characters, according to NBC officials.

In Lockhart's program, based on a book by Mary Norton, bedridden Aunt Sophy lives in a house occupied by the tiny Clock family, which "borrows" such items as scissors, thimbles and spools.

Dame Judith Anderson plays Aunt Sophy, and the Clock family is portrayed by Eddie Albert, Tammy Grimes and Karen Pearson.

An NBC spokesman said the program took 18 months to complete because of the technical difficulties in "shrinking" the Clock family.

Musical score for the show was written by Rod McKuen.

Tijuana Taxi Drivers Can't Pay Increases

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI) — Drivers of the famed low-rate Tijuana taxis are threatening to strike because they can't pass on to customers the cost of an overnight jump in gasoline from 32 to 64 cents.

Drivers in the 800-member Cab Driver's Union attempted to pass the increase to customers and 200 of them were cited by the government for overcharging.

"If the governor does not authorize new tariff rates in view of the gas price increases, we will strike," Salvador Aguirre Sanchez, spokesman for the drivers said yesterday.

"We are not trying to take advantage of the public. We only want some measure which is just and will protect our workers."

Handless Artist Earns Master's

DETROIT (UPI) — Paul Kohler, who lost both hands in a machine shop accident, paints with brushes taped to his forearms. Yesterday he was awarded a master's degree in art from Wayne State University.

"Right after the accident happened I didn't know what I was going to do with my life," he said. "But within an hour I knew I was going to be an artist. I remembered they had these hooks and I knew I would make it work."

Kohler, 26, said he painted his first picture within weeks of the accident five years ago. It sold for $200 at the Macomb County Community College student art fair

Commercials Make Mason Reese A Star

By JO ANN LEVINE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

They suspect that the wisdom of this red-haired 7-year-old reaches further than the authoritative counsel he gives to mothers about a certain chicken spread, and "thick and frosty" chocolate shakes.

These are the main reasons Mason Mitchell Reese now is a star — a star at a vulnerable time in his career, a time when many who are trying to consume what they see as "Mason Reese, the property" are grabbing at him for commercials, television shows, movies, records, books, beanies, tee shirts, and buttons.

It is up to his family to protect Mason, and Mason's family is more sophisticated than most. His father, William Reese, is a partner in a New York marketing communications company. His mother, Sonia, a former actress, and mother of Lanny, 19, Mark, 18, and Suky, 16, is wise to the world of children.

They have said "yes" to a few more commercials, "yes" to a 65-page hard-cover book with 25 to 30 pictures of Mason (to be published in the spring by Dodd-Mead Company, and tentatively entitled "Mason's Moments") and "yes" to another appearance on the Mike Douglas Show.

MASON REESE
Protected by family

They have said "no" to television shows out of the New York area — shows such as Dinah Shore's, Johnny Carson's, and Merv Griffin's. They have given a vehement "no" to T-shirts, beanies, and buttons with Mason's picture on them.

Mason has come near to being mobbed in several places. Said his sister, Suky, "In one place, a lady took him by the shoulders and shook him and said, 'You are so cute, so cute' until I thought his eyes were going to rock out of his head."

Mason has begun to do features on WNBC news, where he has thoroughly disliked being put on the back of a circus elephant and thoroughly enjoyed sampling every Baskin Robbins flavor before telling his viewers that "orange coconut was best."

To help weed out offers being made to Mason, his parents have just signed him with an agency.

"I don't know how much Mason is making," said Suky. "I only know he won't have any trouble going to the college of his choice."

"We try to teach him what the word 'grace' means, and this is difficult, because sometimes people won't let him be gracious, his father said. He gave an example of the woman who wanted Mason's autograph, and when she got that, wanted a kiss.

"The second thing we teach him," Reese said, "is 'stay close to daddy.' Then, if he can't handle it, he can tuck his head in my shoulder while we walk away."

Roth's Advice To Democrats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate William Matson Roth of Ross says Democrats must also pursue public financing of candidates and other election reforms if they are to escape a Watergate backlash.

Roth told the Los Angeles Democratic Central Committee yesterday that a poll he had taken recently shows that "a majority of voters are suspicious of office-holders from both parties and are in a mood to replace them with challengers who are not identified with the old politics.

"The best chance Democratic incumbents have to escape the Watergate deluge is to take the lead in working for legislation to restore integrity to the electoral process," said Roth, a regent of the University of California.

Village Sales Said Brisk

Christmas sales are reported brisk throughout the Town & Country Village this season with some new trends in clothes purchases.

Little Daisy manager Patti Marsh said that there will be more women wearing black satin pants and slinky halter tops dripping ropes of pearls.

"With hemlines falling to floor lengths, boots become unfashionable and overly warm for the women," said Ed Nahigan of the Village Shoe Den. "We are beginning to see greater sales of new shoe fashions, laced or strapped, in the double sole and clog styles."

Many village women's shops such as Gigi, Inc. recommend the layered look to the fashion minded woman. "Not only can anyone achieve and wear this style but it is highly practical as the clothing can be re-coordinated throughout a woman's entire wardrobe," said Betty Heyman, co-owner at Gigi's.

Reminders about the Christmas crush are reflected by Bob Lee of Hickory Farms of Ohio. "I am mailing twice as much this year as last. Our customers are planning earlier and anticipating the Chirstmas jam early due to local news reports from County post offices."

Mutts of Marin also indicated that the pet shop is already extremely busy with appointments.

"More pet owners want their animals presentable for the holidays this year. Cats and dogs well groomed and clean while sleeping beside the hearthside this Christmas add to the warm friendliness of holiday cheer," said owner Anne Keleman.

A Festive Spirit At Village Shops

The pleasure of shopping under covered walkways which protect from rain or inclement weather is one of the natural benefits of the Town & Country Village. But there's something even more pleasing at Christmastime — the Strawberry center becomes transformed into a storyland of Yuletide tales.

They are told through the colorful picturebook windows of the many shops in the Village at Christmastime. It becomes a gaily decorated trip through a myriad of gift ideas.

A visit to Strawberry for a holiday shopping chore can be made every evening beginning tomorrow through Christmas. Many shops will be open on Sunday.

STUFF THEIR STOCKINGS WITH BOOKS

The world of books is an exciting and popular one. A gift may be chosen for any family member depending upon his or her interest or hobby. Dianne Nordhoff, co-owner at Capricorn Books, suggested illustrated cookbooks as gifts. These could be incorporated into a library collection and also serve a useful purpose in the kitchen. Traditions Behind The Yule Cards

On the origins of Christmas cards Bob Farell, owner of RoJean's Card and Party Shop in Town and Country Village, says the early cavemen exchanged greetings with rocks, leaves, flowers and stones and that the first greeting card was presented on New Years in 1450, 400 years passed before the Christmas card was introduced.

Sir Henry Cole, first director of the Victoria and Albert Museum in London, conceived the first Christmas Card in 1843. John Horsley designed the first card. The postal charge for mailing was one penny.

The first card was divided into three panels. The center panel pictured a jovial family gathering. The side panels depicted "feeding the hungry" and "clothing the poor". The message was "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

Louis Prang, a German immigrant, introduced the Christmas card to America in 1850. He featured the Killarney Rose and nativity scenes.

LIGHT UP YOUR CHRISTMAS

Betty Heyman of Gigi's Inc. and Mahmood Degan of Lamp Array, of the Strawberry Town & Country Village, discuss the unusual idea of giving a lamp for Christmas. Mahmood recommends the soft glow of lamp light to accent the beauty of your home and to give a feeling of added warmth during the dark winter months.

THE LAYERED LOOK

Often style goes out the window in favor of warm, heavier clothing during the winter season, but not so at the Daisybug in Strawberry's Town & Country Village. Sandy Marcelli of San Rafael, has chosen the layered look of blouse, sweater vest and pantsuit. The pantsuit is a green, maroon and navy plaid with matching maroon vest by Outlander, a total look of style, yet winter warm.

BUSY TIME OF YEAR

Soon we'll find women all over America busy in their kitchens preparing gifts of food for friends and family. Chris Gartman, co-owner of the Original Hick'ry Pit at Strawberry's Town & Country Village, is no exception. Each holiday, he dons his chef's cap and helps with the responsibilities of filling all the pie orders.

Some Gift Ideas For The Kitchen

The kitchen hosts a wealth of ideas for Christmas gift giving. It is the one room of the house which everyone enjoys. Family and friends feel welcome there and spend a good part of the time eating and talking around the kitchen table.

Therefore, it is more than natural to help make this room more comfortable and pleasant an experience for everyone, and this is why a kitchen gift is very popular.

Gift ideas, of course, include all the necessary utensils for making cooking and serving more fun and easy for the cook.

The Caravansary owner, Hildy Sarkissian in Strawberry Town & Country Village, suggests that these might include a casserole dish from France, bright copper cookware for also displaying in a kitchen cookware collection, a Norelco coffeemaker set which includes a grinder for wonderfully fresh brewed coffee, or cooking made simple with cook-in-clay Romertorf.

"In addition to the utensils," exclaims Dianne Nordhoff of Capricorn Books, "new, exotic cookbooks are ideal gifts for the gourmet."

Imports International manager, Kay Taylor, enthusiastically supported the idea of something for the kitchen since both men and women are taking an active part as cook.

Ideal Stationers was asked for a suggestion and they recommended calendars which add an interesting touch to the kitchen walls, and can be found in a variety of themes.

In keeping with the current trend to bring the outdoors in, hanging plants do well in the kitchen due to the warm moist air. The Village Florist has a variety of hanging plants and holders to choose from.

New Owner For Shop In Village

Nancy Person has announced the purchase of the Village Sweet Shoppe in Strawberry's Town & Country Village.

A resident of Greenbrae, Mrs. Person was born in San Francisco where she attended Lowell High School and graduated from San Francisco State College, majoring in recreation. She continued her graduate work at the University of California at Berkeley and UCLA, specializing in sociology and gerontology.

On completion of her academic work she was employed by the San Rafael Recreation Department as "licensed supervisor of recreation and specializing in senior citizen projects and meal programs."

Mrs. Person is the recording secretary of the Business and Professional Women of Marin, a member of Soroptimist of Marin and the California Park and Recreation Society.

Nonelectric Noel

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — In view of the energy crisis, only nonelectrical Christmas decorations will be used this year in 591 U.S. and Canadian offices of State Farm Insurance, according to the company's vice president for operations, Robert O. Noel.

A New Look At Polynesian House

Owner Dick Marcus has announced the remodelling of his Polynesian House in Strawberry's Town & Country Village.

Recently, Marcus closed his Miracle Mile store after nine years when the premises were sold. According to Marcus his entire Marin inventory is now consolidated at the Village offering Marin County residents a better selection than ever.

The Polynesian House is a wonderland for the modern homemaker. With the energy crisis there is re-newed emphasis on comfortable casual living at home.

"Every item we carry, whether it be clothing, footwear or furniture, it reflects casual living," said Marcus.

He said this Christmas season indicates that there is a strong demand for long dresses also with swimsuits for Christmas vacation cruises and on the other hand, pantsuits.

Dick and Molly Marcus, residents of Marin, opened the Village location in 1965. Dick buys the furniture and Molly the apparel. They now have stores in Sacramento, Citrus Heights, Napa, Merced and Santa Rosa. New Polynesian shops are scheduled for Modesto and Stockton in 1974.

The largest recorded number of human beings gathered in one place at one time is five million at the Hindu feast of Kumbh-Mela on Jan. 21, 1966.
